RALPH McGILL

He Stopped to Plant an Acorn

I put the receiver back in its cradle. Gov. James M. Cox was dead at his home, Trail's End, near Dayton, Ohio. Sorrow and remembering flooded the mind.

It was autumn. We drove out to the old home farm at nearby Jacksonburg. The land had been bought in 1809 by Gilbert Cox, his grandfather. Across the way was the site of the log cabin he and his bride had occupied in their first years of marriage. Before us was a brick house of simple, yet beautiful line. Gilbert Cox had burned the brick, quarried the stone, cut and sawed the walnut timber to build it. Wooden pegs in the floors, doors, and cupboards are like the timbers themselves, sound to this day. He was three years in the building. He and his family occupied it in 1820.

There were pictures on the walls. Among them was a walnut-framed daguerreotype of a small, solemn boy, dressed in his Sunday best.

"You?"

He nodded. The light of remembering softened his face.

Corn Crop

We went outside. The corn pickers were busy. The great cribs were overflowing and special storage bins were near to capacity. We watched for a while, noting the delicate beauty of the ears in their golden shucks.

"This, not wheat, is the grain that built America," he said. "Corn bread, fried mush and parched corn. It was the strength and the life of the men and women who settled the country."

We walked on to a pasture. There was a clear pond in it, its surface rippled slowly by one of those soft breezes which early autumns know. Fat cattle stood drinking from it, or grazing nearby.

Suddenly he stopped, bent and picked up two or three large acorns. With his finger he made holes in the soft loam, pushed the acorns in and covered them.

He stood and said, "I guess a lot of people seeing me do that at my age (80) would think me a fool. But I've been planting acorns for many years. I'll never live to see the trees but someone will enjoy them."

We had talked often of the great events and figures in history. He had been a participant in many of the major events and he had known most of the presidents, kings and statesmen who had played major roles in the news of their time.

He revered Woodrow Wilson and had given much of his life, integrity and courage to the concept of a League of Nations. As the Democratic presidential candidate in 1920, he steadfastly refused those who urged him to pussyfoot on the league.

One learned from talking with him, but one also was exhausted by the vitality of his mind and the great range of its questioning interests. When he was born in 1870 the buffalo herds still made the prairies echo with their million-footed thunder. The Plains Indians were on the warpath. Stage coaches carried the mail. Oxen drew the freight wagons. He was a part of all that he met across his 87 years. One minute he might talk of a conversation with Grover Cleveland. He might then turn to some talk he had with an atomic scientist, a baseball player, a golfer, with Woodrow Wilson or Franklin Roosevelt..

But, best of all, one came to know the real man as he talked of his boyhood. He had worked in the fields as a child and boy. At 10 he was sexton of the church which his grandfather had built. His "salary" was a dollar a month. He was janitor for the two-room school, sweeping it clean each morning for 40 cents a week. At 17 he was a grade-school teacher. Less than three weeks before his death he had told me of the thing in his life of which he was most proud. It was a simple thing. Just before his mother's death she had said to him, "Jimmy, I want you to know you have never given me a moment's sorrow." His voice broke as he told it, the only time I ever knew that to happen.

He was a great and inspiring man for a newspaper editor. When I first met him he said, as our talk concluded, "You'll never hear from me about policy. But that's just half of it. I don't want to hear from you." We both kept that promise. The world, especially the newspaper world, is the poorer and emptier without him.

Gov. Cox Is Eulogized Across U.S.

Nation's Leaders Mourn His Death

Both Democratic and Republican leaders across the nation paid tribute Tuesday to James M. Cox, 1920 Democratic nominee for president, former three-term governor of Ohio and newspaper publisher. Gov. Cox died Monday night at his Dayton, Ohio, home.

Gov. Cox was chairman of the board of The Constitution and The Journal and published newspapers in Ohio and Florida.

Gov. Cox's death came after several years of failing health. He was active in the direction of his newspapers until last Thursday afternoon when he stumbled and fell while working at the Dayton Daily News, one of his newspapers. That night he suffered a stroke. He went into a coma Friday and never regained consciousness.

Former President Harry S. Truman, at his office in Kansas City, Mo., issued the following statement to The Constitution: "Gov. Cox was a wonderful man and a great citizen. I am sincerely sorry to hear of his death, and so is Mrs. Truman."

GEORGIA SENATORS

Both of Georgia's senators paid tribute to the Ohioan.

Sen. Richard B. Russell said that he felt a "deep sense of personal loss" and, "The whole nation will grieve the passing of this great American."

Sen. Herman Talmadge called Gov. Cox's life "an inspiration not only to all of those in public service but all with the desire to serve their nation. His passing will be a distinct loss not only to the newspaper profession but to all phases of life in our country."

Georgia's Gov. Marvin Griffin said, "Gov. Cox was a great American and had a long tenure of public service. His campaign of 1920 was the first presidential campaign I was old enough to remember and take an interest in. When he ran for president on the Democratic ticket with Franklin D. Roosevelt as his running mate they were not elected because the Republican slogan of 'Return to Normalcy' caught the fancy of the voters. I regret his passing."

"EVERLASTING EFFECT"

Florida's Gov. Leroy Collins said that the contributions to Florida of Gov. Cox "will have everlasting effect. Gov. Cox was one of our greatest Americans. His service in public life, and in business, clearly proved him

A Statement By James M. Cox Jr.

The death of James M. Cox marks the passing of a great American and the end of an era which is almost gone. His span of life, 1870-1957, saw the world change from the horse-and-buggy days to the atomic age.

He leaves an imprint on his time as a statesman, journalist and humanitarian which will stand unchallenged. He loved Georgia and Atlanta. The purchase of The Journal in 1939 and the later merger with The Constitution were, he felt, two of his crowning achievements. He was proud of both properties and constantly sought to improve them.

His passing is a great loss to us who have been privileged to know and work with him through the years. He has been on the bridge, so to speak, of his newspapers for a generation and has guided us all with a kind and tolerant spirit.

My associates and I humbly accept the responsibilities of operating his property, aware of the high concept he held for the place of a clean, aggressive newspaper which keeps the faith with all classes and has as its objective the common good.

JAMES M. COX JR.

Beaten Cox Fought On For Ideals of League

By JAMES RESTON
(Copyright 1957 by The New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON, July 16—The politicians in Congress said so long today to an old warrior, James Middleton Cox of Ohio.

Almost as if they were apologizing for history, they rose in the House and Senate, both Republican and Democrat, to mourn the death of the prophet who lost the presidency in 1920.

Wistful eulogies come easy to politicians. They can and do spout eloquent nonsense about almost anyone who ever got elected to public office. But there was something special about today's performance.

REDEEMED BY HISTORY

For nothing moves the Congress like the passing of a politician who was defeated for being right. To fight and lose for a cause redeemed by history, and to work on to see that cause prevail—this is a triumph dear to the heart of every politician, and this is what the senators and representatives saw in the departure of Cox today.

It was different 37 years ago when he was scalding the Republican senators who were opposing America's entrance into the League of Nations. On the Republican side of the ajsle, they condemned his efforts to use America's power in defense of peace, but he made the League of Nations the issue even when his advisers told him it would cost him the election.

HE FAVORED THE FIGHT

"I am in favor of going in," he proclaimed in Dayton when he was notified of his nomination for the presidency in 1920. "This is the supreme test. Shall we act in concert with the free nations of the world in setting up a tribunal which will avert wars in the future?

"This question must be met and answered honestly and not by equivocation. We must say in language which the world can understand whether we shall participate in the advancement of a cause which has in it the hope of peace and world reconstruction or whether we propose to follow the old paths which always led to

Suspect Tied To Slaying of Widow Here

A robbery suspect charged with terrorizing a Northeast section for the past six months has developed into "the hottest suspect yet" in the Saturday night slaying of a woman laundry station operator, police said Tuesday.

Lt. R. E. Little said the man, a 37-year-old Negro, was said to have been seen in the neighborhood in which Mrs. Inez Rosser, 62, of 788 Greenwood Ave., NE., was beaten and strangled. Little added that the time at which the suspect was reported seen tallied with the time when Mrs. Rosser was robbed and killed.

WITHHOLD IDENTITY

Investigators asked that the suspect's identity be withheld temporarily.

Sgt. G. H. Christian and Detective J. H. Barnes said the Negro had been identified positively in street robberies of three white women in the vicinity of the Rosser slaying.

In one instance, detectives said, a victim was threatened with a knife in the back when she screamed.

PARKS CAR

Mrs. Birdie Mae Bryan of 420 Boulevard, NE, said she parked a car across the street in front of her home the night of July 8 and started across the street when a Negro man ran up and grabbed her purse. Police said he put a knife to her throat and when she began screaming kicked her down.

The Negro escape dwith Mrs. Bryan's purse containing $47 and personal papers.

This incident was said to have occurred a few doors from where Mrs. Rosser was slain in the laundry station at 478 Boulevard, NE, officers said.

HOSPITAL ROBBERIES

Detectives said the Negro also had been identified in robberies of Mrs. Diane Parks of 640 Boulevard, NE, on March 16 at Boulevard and Wabash avenue, NE, and Miss Mary Hogan, 458 Ponce de Leon Ave., NE, on June 14 at the parking lot at the rear of Georgia Baptist Hospital.

Similar robberies near Georgia Baptist Hospital this year prompt-

$411,600 Lien Filed by U.S. in Wagering Case

The Bureau of Internal Revenue Tuesday filed a lien for $411,600 against Miss Ida Stanley of Riverdale for wagering taxes which the bureau said she owes.

The woman was freed during trial in federal court here last week on criminal charges of operating a lottery without paying a special U.S. gambling tax, after government prosecutors refused to turn over investigative reports to her attorneys.

The assistant district director of the bureau, Dalmon Davis, explained that the dismissal of the criminal case has no bearing on the tax lien.

Liens were filed against Miss Stanley in superior courts of Fulton, Fayette and Clayton counties.

Vice Squad Bolstered, Told To Clean Up City

By KEELER McCARTNEY

Police Chief Herbert Jenkins Tuesday heavily reinforced the detective bureau vice squad and issued orders for the men to "sweep Atlanta clean."

Jenkins' order assigned Negro detectives to the vice squad for the first time. He directed patrolmen E. H. Lyons and J. D. Hudson to report to the squad Wednesday.

Two captains and two sergeants were assigned to direct the squad. Capt. E. O. Mullen and Sgt. R. E. Sheppard were assigned to the evening watch and Capt. J. L. Tuggle and Sgt. L. L. Hause to the day watch.

Jenkins stressed that there will be no conflict between the detective vice squad and the new Metropolitan Lottery Squad headed by Lt. W. M. Cox. He said detectives and patrolmen were instructed to arrest anyone found with lottery evidence. However, he said information which required lengthy investigation would be passed on to Cox.

The decision to strengthen the vice squad was prompted by information that many persons put out of the lottery business are going into other types of vice operations, Jenkins said.

"Atlanta always has been the cleanest city of its size in the country and we intend to keep it that way," he declared.

Objectives of the vice squad,

3 Georgians Drowned as Boat Upsets

BLUE RIDGE, July 16—Three persons, including a father and small son, were believed drowned late today when their boat overturned in Blue Ridge Lake, police said.

The victims were tentatively identified as Frank Harper of Morganton, his 5-year-old son and a man named Chastain, first name unknown, of Loving.

W. W. Hemphill of Blue Ridge said the three evidently had gone out in a flat-bottom boat on a fishing expedition. Residents along the Garren Cove section heard shouts for help.

One man got into a rowboat and went out to help, Hemphill said. In the darkness he was unable to locate the three or the boat.

Hemphill said the overturned boat still was floating in 40 feet of water in the cove. State troopers and Fannin County authorities began attempts to locate the bodies.

Hemphill said the lake, a popular spot for night fishing, was very calm at the time.

Ike Okays Military Cut Of 100,000

Expects Saving Of $200 Million

From Wire Reports

WASHINGTON, July 16. President Eisenhower today approved a 100,000-man cut in the armed forces to be carried out within the next six months.

Secretary of Defense Wilson issued the reduction order to the military services after receiving a White House okay to carry out an economy move that Wilson said will save approximately 200 million dollars.

The Army was ordered to absorb one-half the total cut from its authorized strength of one million men. The Navy's reduction quota was 15,000, the Marine Corps' 10,000 and the Air Force's 25,000.

ACTUAL STRENGTH

The actual strength of the armed forces on May 31, the last compilation available, was 2,789,642.

A Defense Department spokesman said it was his understanding that the 100,000 cut was based upon this year's authorized strength of 2,800,000 uniformed men and women. The order would thus mean an actual reduction of 89,642 from the latest known total strength.

Wilson, in a "memorandum for the President," said the reductions can be made "without materially affecting deployments of major combat units abroad, including those in Western Europe."

The latest figure on actual strength was made public as of May 31.

In a memorandum to Eisenhower, Wilson said, "I propose to reaffirm to the congressional committees concerned the urgent need for the remainder of the funds now under consideration for restoration to the defense budget."

Wilson indicated that further manpower cuts would be considered when the fiscal 1959 budget is being prepared late this fall. He specifically told the services to plan a further cut of 8,135 officers.

COMPARATIVE STRENGTH

Following is the authorized strength of the services followed by their actual present strength and planned strength:

Army—1,000,000; 1,000,217; 950,000.

Navy—675,000; 675,933; 660,000.

Marine Corps—200,000; 197,392; 190,000.

Air Force — 925,000; 916,100; 900,000.

Wilson told Eisenhower his action would not materially affect overseas deployment, including the American forces in Western Europe.

Dr. W. H. Galvin To Direct Grady's Anesthesia Program

Dr. William H. Galvin Tuesday was named to head the anesthesia program at Grady Hospital.

The announcement was made by Dr. Arthur P. Richardson, dean of the Emory Medical School.

Tuesday's Constitution carried the story of a 14-month-old survey conducted by Dr. Robert Hudson of Western Reserve University, which showed that lack of a proper anesthesia program at Grady contributed to 20 to 40 patient deaths in one year's time.

Dr. Richardson stated, however that the appointment was not a spontaneous reaction to the news story in The Constitution.

He said that Dr. Galvin had been selected for the post recently but that his appointment would not have been made public for a few days yet, in order to permit Dr. Galvin to name a successor for himself as assistant professor of surgery and director of anesthesia at Emory Hospital.

Dr. Galvin will, as of Sept. 1, become chief of anesthiology for the Emory Medical school. He has been recommended to the Fulton-DeKalb Hospital Authority as chief of anesthiology for Grady Hospital, which is the first move to correct the conditions named in Dr. Hingson's report. The job at Grady will consume a major portion of Dr. Galvin's time.

Dr. Galvin will be responsible for adding two full-time anesthetists to Grady's staff. The expanded Grady program will also include the establishment of a resident training program.

In commenting on Dr. Galvin's appointment, Dr. Richardson pointed out that the anesthesia

SOUTH GEORGIA LEARNS TOBACCO VALUE YOUNG

South Georgia Hums: Tobacco Time Is Here

By CELESTINE SIBLEY
Constitution Staff Writer

MOULTRIE, July 16—Put the chairs in the truck and the shoes on the young'uns . . . South Georgia's going to town.

It's the eve of the opening of the tobacco market—that heart-lifting, back-breaking season of the year when an ugly green weed turns to gold for thousands of South Georgians.

Promptly at 9 a.m. Thursday in a ceremony as ordered and formalized as the coronation of the Queen of England, tobacco sales open throughout the 68 counties in Georgia's tobacco belt. The auctioneer's twangy, humming chant will reverberate through the dim, fragrant warehouses and his strange crablike dance will begin along the giant rosettes of golden tobacco.

And almost immediately "tobacco money," the thing for which men, women and children have poured their sweat, their hopes and their strength into the land, will begin flowing.

"We'll pay for our guano and our seed and then if there's any left over . . ." said Mrs. Arthur Powell of Statesboro dreamily.

"Furniture . . . the children want more furniture for the house," said Mrs. Homer Patton of Douglas.

"Use to be you'd take all the children to town and buy 'em a suit of clothes," said Clem Day of Broxton. "Now you just pay for what they've already been wearing."

For every farm family throughout the tobacco belt tobacco money means something different. But

South Plans Amendments Or Filibuster

By ALBERT RILEY
Constitution Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, July 16—The Senate overrode the objections of a small band of Southern Democrats late today and voted 71 to 18 to take up the civil rights bill as pending business.

President Eisenhower promptly expressed pleasure at the Senate action and threw the powerful weight of White House influence against a Southern-backed jury trial amendment.

In a statement from the White House, the President also seemed to slam the door on hopes of a Southern compromise to restrict the bill to a right-to-vote measure.

29 AID GOP

Twenty-nine Democrats, mostly from the North and West, but including both senators from Tennessee and Texas, joined a solid bloc of 42 Republicans in voting for the motion by GOP leader Knowland of California to take up the bill.

A short while later the Senate then defeated a motion by Sen. Morse (D-Ore), to send the House-passed bill to the judiciary committee for seven days of study.

Southerners picked up some Northern and Western strength on Morse's motion, which was defeated by a slightly closer but still overwhelming margin of 54 to 35.

EXPECTED TROUNCING

The Dixie forces had expected to be soundly defeated on the motion to take up the bill.

The Northern "liberal" victory, hailed by President Eisenhower, now means that the Senate will tomorrow begin a long debate on the controversial proposal—a debate that likely will result in a Southern filibuster before the issue finally is resolved.

Southerners undoubtedly will concentrate at first on trying to amend the bill so as to confine it to a right-to-vote measure with a jury trial proviso. And they will also seek to restrict the investigative and subpoena powers of a civil rights commission that would be created by the legislation.

They gained some additional support toward at least one of those objectives today from Sen. Aiken (R-Vt), who urged elimination of part three of the bill

SILENT BATTLE OVER THE YEARS

Double Goal for Medical School Underlies Grady-Emory Conflicts

By CHARLES SOPKIN

At one time or another, every diagnostician—laymen or professional—has taken a guess at the cause of the conflict between Emory University Medical School and Grady Hospital.

Although Emory University insists that there is not a controversy, there is strong evidence at hand that a silent battle has been waged for the past 11 years, and possibly longer.

This is the second of two articles on problems of the joint medical program of Emory University and Grady Hospital.

The Emory Clinic, the Emory administration, the Hospital Authority, money, personality differences, poor patient care at Grady, and other factors have been advanced as reasons for the many resignations this year.

They are all contributing factors, as has been the lack of a department of anesthesiology. Emory Tuesday announced establishment of an anestnesiology program at Grady Hospital.

However, the crux of the matter lies in that Emory Medical School desperately needs the facilities at Grady, but does not want to, or does not feel it can afford any large-scale development.

Also, Emory fears the possibility that if she built up Grady Hospital to any degree, the Hospital Authority could sever relationships with Emory, and Emory would practically have to rebuild her medical school in the clinical teaching field.

These theories have been put forth by a number of competent authorities.

Actually, Grady Hospital is an extremely valuable asset, in that a multitude of conditions and diseases can be found in its clinic. This gives the medical student, the intern, and the resident un-

West Cannot Accept Russian Arms Stand

Zorin Proposes Ban on Tests And Use of Nuclear Weapons

By DREW MIDDLETON
(Copyright 1957 by The New York Times Co.)

LONDON, July 16—The Soviet Union has developed a disarmament proposal for the prohibition of nuclear weapons on two conditions. First, the East and West are to agree never to use nuclear weapons and to destroy their existing stockpiles.

In addition, the Soviet Union proposes an immediate cessation of nuclear weapons tests for at least two years.

This position has been advanced by Valerian A. Zorin, chief Soviet delegate, at recent meetings of the U.N. Subcommittee on Disarmament. The proposal is unacceptable to the West, an authoritative British source said.

OBJECTIONS

The proposed ban on nuclear tests does not halt the nuclear arms race, he pointed out, and the prohibition on nuclear weapons production and the destruction of stockpiles would eliminate the deterrent effect of Western nuclear arms.

Since the Soviet Union has not offered any proposals for an effective control system in its proposed plan for a ban on nuclear arms, the plan puts an added Soviet good faith.

According to qualified sources in other Western delegations, the proposals represent the basic Soviet position and they have a superficial simplicity attractive to neutralist elements in Europe and Asia.

PROPAGANDA

The Soviet Union has not shown the slightest indication that it is prepared to advance from these positions in the disarmament talks. But it is anxious to continue the discussions and benefit from what its government considers to be a favorable propaganda position.

This evaluation of the conference is held by three of the four Western powers participating in the talks, Britain, France, and Canada. Only the United States delegation dissents.

Harold E. Stassen and his colleagues profess to detect indications of concession and willingness to negotiate in the remarks of Zorin where others see only immobility. There is no difference among the four Western powers on the proposals for nuclear disarmament to be put before Russians, but it is obvious that there is a growing difference on tactics.

The conference has been going on for four months today. It will take Stassen a further three or four weeks to complete his exposition of United States proposals.

Bandit Phones To Say He's On His Way

NEW YORK, July 16 (AP)—The first robbery by telephone in the annals of crime—so far as can be learned—was chalked up by New York police today.

A downtown liquor store clerk reported "a gruff-sounding voice" telephoned and said:

"This is a stickup. Get in the back of the store. If you're not there in four seconds, I'm coming in and kill you."

The clerk, Herman Chernow, scuttled into the washroom. He heard the cash register tinkle open and shut. He peeked in time to see a man vanish out the door with $107.

House Told Ike Aims To Save Billion

Brundage Quizzed By Budget Panel

WASHINGTON, July 16 (UP)—Budget Director Percival F. Brundage said today the administration now hopes that about one billion dollars can be saved from President Eisenhower's record peacetime budget estimates.

Brundage told the House Appropriations Committee that his forecast — which would mean federal outlays of about $70,800,000,000 in the current 12 months — was based on a new presidential economy order and on budget cuts voted by Congresss.

SURPLUS

The budget director testified that he believes the Treasury wound up fiscal 1957, which ended June 30, with a surplus of from $1,200,000,000 to $1,500,000,00. This would be a little better than had been expected.

Brundage was called before the committee by its Democratic leaders to explain the new administration order directing federal agencies to hold fiscal 1958 spending to 1957 levels wherever possible.

Chairman Clarence Cannon (D-Mo), who had called off all committee hearings pending Brundage's testimony, said it would resume work on its remaining money bills. But he said members were still "wholly at sea" as to where reductions might be made.

RESCISSION

Cannon said the committee will decide later whether to try to pass a rescission bill barring the administration from spending some of the funds already voted by Congress.

Democratic members of the Appropriations Committee have accused the President of reversing himself by calling for economies now after originally resisting substantial congressional cuts in his $71,80,000,000 budget.

RECORD-BREAKING FLIER GREETED BY FAMILY
Maj. John Glenn With His Wife and Children

NAVY BEATS AF MARK

Jet Flashes Over U.S. At 762 m.p.h. Record

NEW YORK, July 16 (AP)—A Navy single-engine jet fighter flew coast to coast at better than the speed of sound today to smash the Air Force's transcontinental record. Its top speed was over 1,000 m.p.h.

Marine Maj. John Glenn Jr., 36, brought his swept-winged silver F8U1 Chance-Vought Crusader from Los Alamitos, Calif., Naval Air Station to Floyd Bennett field in 3 hours, 23 minutes and 8.4 seconds.

BOOSTS OLD AF RECORD

The old record was 3 hours, 44 minutes and 53.88 seconds set March 9, 1955, by Lt. Col. Robert Scott in an Air Force F84F Thunderstreak.

The speed of sound is roughly 670 m.p.h. Glenn averaged unofficially 726 m.p.h., including three slowdowns to take on fuel in the air over Albuquerque, N.M., Olathe, Kan., and Indianapolis, Ind.

Glenn said his top speeds were "a little over 1,000 m.p.h."

He flew at about 35,000 feet, coming down to 25,000 to refuel.

A second jet fighter took off with Glenn at dawn. But it had to land at Albuquerque when it had trouble refueling in the air.

FIRST TOOK 82 HOURS

The first transcontinental air flight in 1911—east to west—took 82 hours, 4 minutes. Theoretically, at least, Maj. Glenn could fly three times around the world in that length of time.

Rear Adm. Thurston B. Clark, commander of the Naval Air Test Center at Patuxent, Md., planned the speed flight "to test the sustained capability of the Crusader at near maximum power over a long distance."

The venture was dubbed "Operation Bullet." Glenn's jet averaged 140 m.p.h. better than the muzzle velocity of a .45 caliber bullet.

Zhukov Rips Anew at Fired Party Bosses

MOSCOW, July 16 (AP)—Marshal Georgi Zhukov, Soviet defense minister newly elevated to the ruling Communist Party Presidium, revived the "deunciation campaign" against the ousted Kremlin leaders today.

He accused them of lawless acts and warned that the Soviet army would always stand "ready to fulfill the will of our people."

Zhukov, in a Leningrad speech, suggested V. M. Molotov, Georgi Malenkov and Lazar Kaganovich had lost the claim to full membership in the Communist Party.

Malenkov, former premier and more recently minister of electric power stations, is officially reported assigned to manage an electric power plant in Eastern Kazakhstan.

Moscow also has announced new jobs have been found for former Foreign Minister Molotov and former First Deputy Premier Kaganovich. All three, apparently, have retained their Communist Party membership.

An official transcript of the Zhukov speech, delivered to a mass rally in Leningrad on the second day of a Soviet navy celebration, said the defense minister cited proofs of law violations by the three men who were ousted from the party Presidium late in June.

Khrushchev Struts Home, Pleased With Czech Tour

MOSCOW, July 16 (AP)—Beaming with satisfaction, Nikita Khrushchev returned home today from an eight-day tour of Czechoslovakia. He was apparently highly pleased with the display of Czech-Soviet unity which marked the visit.

In the final speech of his tour at Prague, the Communist party chief made a strong bid for closer cooperation among all nations of the Communist camp, including Yugoslavia, and friendship with Western "progressive" parties.

He came away with a Soviet-Czech communique which declared a complete unity of views on everything from Khrushchev's purge of the Kremlin to unconditional outlawing of atomic and hydrogen bombs and tests.

SMILING ARRIVAL

Smiling with satisfaction at these results, the jaunty Khrushchev stepped from a Soviet jet airliner tonight and waved his hat at a high-level crowd of about 200 gathered at the airport to greet him. He was followed closely by Premier Bulganin, the nearly silent man who had accompanied Khrushchev to Czechoslovakia.

President Klementi Voroshilov, Ho Chi Minh, visiting president of North Viet Nam, Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, nearly all the other members of the Presidium, and even M. G. Pervukhin, former economic czar who was demoted in the recent shakeup, were on hand for the welcoming ceremonies.

MASS RALLY

At Lenin stadium, Khrushchev told a mass rally the "genuine affection and friendship of the Czech people for the Soviet people had to be seen to be believed."

The journey, he said, had proved to be no "pleasure trip", but it had resulted in a "complete identity" of views in the interest of peace.

"Our Czechoslovak friends condemned the activities of the Soviet antiparty group," he reported, referring to the Bolshevik stalwarts, V. M. Molotov, Georgi Malenkov and Lazar Kaganovich, who were dethroned from their high positions.

UNSMILING BULGANIN

Speaking after Khrushchev, the unsmiling Bulganin told the welcome-home rally that easing international tension was the main task of "all peace-loving people."

"We have long since proposed to do away with NATO and the Warsaw Pact," he said. "It is not our fault that this has not happened."

Ike's Aid Bill Is Freed of Rider Threat

WASHINGTON, July 16 (AP)—Rep. Bow (R-Ohio) informed the House today he will not try to tie his proposal to end foreign trials of GIs onto President Eisenhower's bill authorizing foreign aid for the coming year.

Bow's announcement greatly brightened chances for passage of the $3,242,333,000 aid measure, without major change.

House Speaker Rayburn (D-Tex) said he thinks the bill, already passed by the Senate, will win House passage in just about the form approved by the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Bow is the author of a resolution which has picked up wide support in the row over the administration's decision to turn Army Specialist 3.C. William S. Girard over for a Japanese trial for the shooting of a Japanese woman.

The resolution in its original form would order the President to seek revision of or denounce the status of forces agreements which provide for foreign jurisdiction over some offenses committed by U.S. servicemen abroad.

Bow says GIs should not be deprived of their American constitutional safeguards. The administration says Bow's resolution would force withdrawal of U.S. troops from all over the world. The House Rules Committee so far has kept the resolution bottled up.

Hit by Rioter, Clinton Pastor Says

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., July 16 (AP)—A Baptist minister gave an account in U.S. District Court today of how he got his nose bloodied by a fellow townsman who taunted him with cries of "nigger loving preacher" during Clinton racial disorders last Dec. 4.

Mrs. Harry F. Miller

It was an oft-told tale, but the Rev. Paul Turner recited it for the all-white jury. He named his assailant as Clyde Cook, 36, an Oak Ridge plant worker and a defendant in the Clinton segregation trials.

The 34-year-old minister's testimony marked a high spot of the government's attempt to prove that 14 Tennesseans and northern segregationist John Kasper conspired to violate an anti-violence injunction at integrated Clinton High School.

The government is expected to wind up its case tomorrow.

The defense, with more than 80 witnesses under subpoena, may take the criminal contempt case well into next week.

Turner's constant repetition of the words "nigger lover" in describing how members of a mob heckled him touched off volleys of angry objections from the defense.

Turner, pastor of Clinton's First Baptist church, was attacked on the town square and beaten after escorting six Negro students to the formerly all-white school.

Clinton High was the first state-supported secondary school in Tennessee to mix the races.

Turner said Cook tried to "jump me" when he started to pass him on the sidewalk.

"I began backing across the street," the minister said. "I kept him away from me by holding my arm out and backing fast."

Someone—he said he did not know who—got behind him and pinned his arms to his sides so that he was "powerless," he added.

"Mr. Cook hit me on the nose with his fist," he related. "The impact separated us by some eight feet."

Defense lawyer Hansel Proffitt, of Sevierville, Tenn., conducted the cross-examination and questioned Turner sharply as to his own responsibility in the mob violence that December morning.

"Do you think all this would have happened if you hadn't gone out that day?" Proffitt asked.

"That's a speculative question," Turner replied. "I don't know what would have happened."

Proffitt then suggested that the preacher had made a radio broadcast the night before announcing he would go up the pine-studded hill where Clinton's Negroes live to bring the children down to the school.

Turner denied he had made any such broadcast. He said he had informed only members of his congregation.

Earlier, a woman schoolteacher, in relating events during the same morning that Turner was beaten, testified about mobs shouting "catcalls, jeers and filth" after the Negroes were escorted to the formerly all-white school.

Mrs. Harry F. Miller, a pert, smartly groomed woman with greying hair, said the explosion of mob disorder came shortly after 8 a.m. when Turner escorted six Negro students back to the school.

The Negroes, admitted to the school in August under federal court mandate, had remained away a week to protest "abuse" at the hands of white students.

Describing the tumultuous scene which she said she witnessed from inside the schoolhouse, Mrs. Miller told the jury:

"There were a lot of people, a most menacing mob of people."

Mrs. Miller, a past president of the Parent-Teachers Assn. in Clinton and a substitute teacher at Clinton high, said the schoolyard and front lawn were "filled with people, muttering, gathering in little clusters."

She identified Lawrence Brantley, a defendant, as one of those she recognized in the surging throngs.

Flu Quarantines U.S. Army Ship

BREMERHAVEN, Germany, July 16 (AP) — The U.S. Army today ordered the quarantine of a troop transport to prevent the spread of Oriental flu. The Army said the transport, Gen. Patch, had 122 flu patients among its 1,256 passengers and crew. The ship, due tomorrow from New York, will be anchored in the Weser Estuary outside the port. None of the cases was reported serious.

Convert, 57, Collapses at GrahamRally

NEW YORK, July 16 —An elderly man fainted at Madison Square Garden tonight as he was making a "decision for Christ" at the Billy Graham New York crusade.

The man, who identified himself as Walter T. Crossman, 57, of Manhattan, apparently suffered no bruises when he fell to the cement floor before the rostrum.

A doctor in the crowd said Crossman suffered a fainting spell, apparently brought on by the heat.

Crossman was one of 530 persons who made "decisions for Christ" at the meeting attended by a capacity audience of 19,200 persons. It brought the over-all attendance to 1,055,400. An estimated 2,500 persons were unable to enter the jammed arena tonight.

Graham said tonight the executive Crusade Committee, along with members of the Graham team, will meet Friday to consider extending the crusade another two or three weeks past its Saturday closing date.

3 Indicted With Ingram Ask To See Secret File

Lean on Jencks Ruling in Demand To View 'Confession' Held by U. S.

By GENE BRITTON

Three persons indicted as coconspirators with Horace Ingram in a gigantic lottery racket here Tuesday demanded to see a confidential document which they say the government plans to use against them at their trial.

Horace Ingram's cousin, John Elmer Ingram, Mrs. Ruby Ingram and Eugene Thomas based their demand on the controversial Supreme Court Jencks case ruling to see a confession which they said another defendant in the case has given to federal agents.

Wesley R. Asinof, attorney for the three, asked the U.S. District Court to direct government prosecutors to turn over a statement signed by Charles Harold Echols.

THREE DEFENDANTS

He said the three defendants "have reason to believe" Echols gave intelligence agents of the Internal Revenue Bureau an "alleged confession as to his participation in the alleged conspiracy." He said the statement might implicate the other defendants.

Asinof indicated in his motion that he might wish to move for a separate trial for all three of the defendants, and that it would be necessary to see Echols' statement before he could do so. Last week, Asinof did ask the court to try Mrs. Ingram separately.

Tuesday apparently was the first time a defense attorney has invoked the Jencks ruling prior to trial.

Asinof admitted that the ruling is "technically applicable only in the trial of the case where a witness is on cross-examination."

RIGHT OF INSPECTION

But he pointed out that the Jencks decision is "based on the right of a defendant to properly prepare his defense by being permitted the right of inspection."

"We ask no more in this motion," he said.

Asinof also asked for a bill of particulars for the trio, in addition to one for Echols, Clarence Walker, Richard Lee Turner, Roy H. Flemming, Otis Freeman and Eugene Williams.

He said certain parts of the indictment are too vague and indefinite to allow them to prepare their defense.

He asked that the district attorney be directed to specify "the manner in which each and every named defendant did attempt to evade and defeat the payment of (gambling) taxes, detailing the specific acts of each defendant. . . ."

Boy Indicted in Car Death

A 17-year-old Dunwoody youth was indicted Tuesday on charges of involuntary manslaughter in connection with the death of another youth who was killed when a car overturned after a 100-miles-per-hour police chase.

The Fulton grand jury charged Curtis Ronnie Walker of 1071 Mt. Vernon Highway, Dunwoody, with the death of Ivan Desmond Fincher, 18, also of Dunwoody, who was killed June 22 when Walker's car—in which Fincher was a passenger—overturned on Roswell road.

The indictment charges that Walker killed Fincher without any intention to do so, but in the commission of unlawful acts, which included driving under the influence of intoxicants and speeding more than 50 miles per hour.

Walker's 1948 model automobile struck another car on a curve and hit a rock column, throwing Fincher out of the car, the true-bill says.

Officers who were chasing the car said they learned it was powered by a "souped-up" engine built for use on a special race-track at Dallas, Ga.

Decatur Votes 2-Hour Parking Limit

Acting to relieve what members termed a "serious parking situation," the Decatur City Commission Tuesday night put a two-hour limit on parking in the downtown area except for the Court Square.

The action, effective August 15, will limit parking on both sides of streets on the square to, the presents one hour. Maximum time in other areas will go up to two hours, at the rate of five cents per hour.

Commissioner Schley Howard said the parking situation is one of the reasons why six merchants have left the downotwn area since January 1.

The commission set a precedent by voting to pay a $189 bill through the city Recreation Department for replacing a lamp at McKoy Park. Action was taken after commissioners heard a blistering letter from the Little League of DeKalb charging that the group has for the past four or five years been "unable to get cooperation" from the city.

The letter, signed by director Arthur W. Bishop, said the Little League has no money for maintenance and its sponsors cannot pay under terms of their agreement. It said the group gave the city a $6,000 light fixture for $2,000 last year, and provides the only recreation program for 13-15-year-old boys in the city, without cost to the city.

Action by the commission marked the first time the city has agreed to pay maintenance costs of facilities used by a private group.

Chrysler Granted Permit For $680,000 Building

By MARION GAINES

The Chrysler Corp. Tuesday was granted a building permit to erect a $680,000 office and shop training center, W. R. Wofford, city building inspector, said.

Builder of the two-story structure, which will be constructed at 2930 Forrest Hill Dr., SW, was listed as the Ira H. Hardin Co. of Atlanta.

A permit to construct a $125,000 office and warehouse at 3333 Empire Blvd., SW, to be built by the Timothy McCarthy Construction Co. of Atlanta, was issued to Hyland and Associates, Wofford said.

In addition, the Antioch Baptist Church was granted a permit for a $60,000 masonry church which will be erected by the McGaughey Co. of Atlanta at 420 McDonough Blvd., SE, Wofford added.

School Building Bids

The Atlanta Board of Education will hold a special session at 4 p.m. Wednesday in City Hall to consider bids on school building projects.

Miss Ira Jarrell, city school superintendent, said the board is ready to let contracts on nine projects. All of the projects, which will be financed under the school bond issue authorized by voters in April, call for additions to present schools, Miss Jarrell said.

"We expect to be started on some of our larger building projects by September," Miss Jarrell declared.

Zone Panel To Meet

The aldermanic board's zoning committee will convene at 2 p.m. Thursday on the second floor of City Hall. The panel's regularly scheduled meeting was postponed because of the Fourth of July holiday.

On the committee's agenda for consideration Thursday is a proposed ordinance by Ald. John A. White which would amend the city's 1954 zoning ordinance by rezoning a Peachtree circle, NE, tract from commercial to residential usage.

Alderman White's measure was placed on the deferred shelf by the committee at its June 6 and June 20 meetings.

Board of Adjustment

The Atlanta-Fulton County Joint Board of Adjustment is scheduled to meet at 2 p.m. Friday in Committee Room 2 on the second floor of City Hall.

The board's agenda calls for consideration of six appeals for zoning variations, plus one deferred zoning application.

Option Given For Second Jekyll Motel

The Jekyll Island Authority approved a 120-day option Tuesday on a proposed 60-unit motel on the island.

The option was granted to Harvey Parks of Waycross. Parks said he believed he could arrange financing of the project within the 120-day limit.

If the plan goes through, it will be the second motel approved for the island. The authority has just signed a lease with Coastal States Development Co. for a 20-unit motel, which is to be completed within a year, and 10 additional units within two years.

In addition, the authority Tuesday heard Harvey Smith of Atlanta submit plans for a scenic railway and other amusement projects for Jekyll. The authority requested him to submit detailed plans in writing at a later meeting.

$200 Million School Work Near Finish

The State School Building Authority reported Tuesday that it has completed or has under construction 97 per cent of the $200 million classroom building job it undertook six years ago.

In an annual report, Chairman George P. Whitman Jr. said work was completed in 30 counties on school projects during the fiscal year that ended June 30.

He said this brought to 102 the total number of counties in which the building program has been completed. Construction is under way in another 42 county systems, he said.

More than 13,000 classrooms are involved in the giant construction program.

A Pharmacist's Lucky Discovery Peels Off Corns

ATLANTA, Ga. — M. W. Sargeant, the distinguished research pharmacist, has made a surprising discovery. While working in his laboratory on a new beauty preparation, he has compounded a remarkable ointment that soaks into the tough, horny skin of corns and calluses—and lets you peel them off easily, safely, painlessly.

Here's how it works. You apply a little of this ointment, called ACNOID, directly to your corn. It relieves the pain at once. Then, a few days later, your corns peels off from the smooth, healthy skin. It's as simple as that!

Already ACNOID is being used and recommended by many doctors, even for corns between the toes, because it is gentle and safe as well as effective.

Ask your druggist for ACNOID today. Only 79c and money back if corns don't go. You'll never remember the name, so tear this ad out to remind you what to ask for!

Fulton Schools Already Offer 'New' Courses State Requires

New state requirements for courses in high schools will have more mathematics and science "little impact" on the curriculum of Fulton County high schools, the County Board of Education was told Tuesday.

Assistant Supt. Douglas G. MacRae told the board the county system long has had math and science requirements for college-preparatory courses which are "far in excess of state requirements."

MacRae emphasized that the public should realize that the new state requirements of 18 units of credits for high school graduation represent the minimum requirements. Old requirements were for 16 units.

HARD MIDDLE COURSE

The official explained that it was a "tough job" for the state to set up one set of study requirements for all children. He said this brought on the danger of being "too lenient" for bright students and "too tight" on students not planning to attend college.

What the state really needs, he said, is two sets of study requirements—one for students planning to attend college and another for those planning to go to work immediately after finishing high school.

The new state requirements call for one additional unit of science or math and substitute one unit of biology for health as a requirement. It also requires nine units of electives instead of seven units.

COUNTY REQUIREMENTS

The county system, for its college - preparatory students, already requires three units of math, as compared to one required by the state; four units of English against three set by the state and four units in languages and/or science.

Referring to other state requirements that language, physics, chemistry and an additional year of English must be offered in all Georgia high schools, MacRae said these things have been done in the county system for 30 years.

Gov. James M. Cox Served His Nation With Energy, Vision, Devotion to Ideals

In literally the last days of his life there ran beneath the graying hair of Gov. James M. Cox, as there had beneath the touseled hair of the young man with printer's ink in his blood, a passion for knowledge, for country and for life.

Here was a man who could, and did, look at life as a philosopher, awed by its mystery, majesty, its nobility and degradation, its beauty and ugliness. Yet he was never the withdrawn man. He went forth and grappled with life like a wrestler, being never afraid or lacking in confidence.

He loved books. The written word had for him a great attraction. He liked writers. He was a great inspiration to editors because he read them. Just a few weeks before his last illness, at the dedication of the new plant for his newspapers in Dayton, Ohio, he stopped in the dedicatory procession to lean over and take by the lapels the somewhat startled young editor of the Springfield Sun. "Boy," he said, "don't you ever stop writing. You hear me. Don't ever stop writing." With that admonition he resumed his place and moved on.

He read books. He liked writers. But again, he did not live with books. He was a speaker of words and a writer of them. He was a mover and a shaper of men and events. As a young editor he did not retreat or appease. When his property was just becoming established he risked it all in an all-out fight on strong, vested interests. He early had learned to hold contempt for privilege and special interests, for hypocrisy and untruth, for political demagoguery and self-serving. The old-timers in Ohio still speak of him, with affection, as "Fighting Jimmy."

In his relations to his times, it may be said of James M. Cox that he was a part of them and that he channeled them. He was perhaps the last of the publishers in the great tradition. He said of a newspaper that first of all it must have a balanced ledger and must keep it that way so that it could have a strong voice. Without a balanced ledger it could not speak. Others could tell it what to say.

He had one "policy" for all his papers.

"Ask yourself one question," he said. "Is it right?"

"Then do what you believe best for your town, your state and your country."

This was all.

He was always the straight thinker.

As a congressman and as three-times governor of Ohio, he was a public servant whose reputation was never tarred nor tarnished. But that was not all. The Miami alley was cursed with floods which took lives and destroyed property. Well before the conservation idea of TVA, Gov. James M. Cox ended floods with a magnificent conservation development which enriched the valley's industrial potential and the lives of its people. He had been a farm boy. He produced agricultural reforms and good roads.

He had been a teacher. He was of great aid to education. He was a humanitarian. Therefore, he was not afraid to fight for legitimate labor reforms and legislation. At the state prison the prisoners used to cheer him for what he had done for them. His time, which was one of 87 years, opposed and prospered him, but because of his relationship to it, the state and nation prospered with him.

And what view of mankind and the world did he shape from it? And how was he himself an external reflection of its spirit?

The answer is an obvious one, revealed by his life. He believed in the American people—in people everywhere if they were given liberty, education and opportunity for a decent life for themselves and their children. He himself was a product of the American dream. He had been a frontier farm boy, earning with his own toil what little money he had. He became a national and international figure. All his life he believed in the meaning of America.

In hours of disappointment he was never bitter.

Nor did he ever question a decision longer than to determine what seemed right.

When he was nominated for the presidency in 1920, powerful men told him if he would abandon Woodrow Wilson and the League of Nations, he would have their support. He went promptly to Woodrow Wilson. He symbolically took the torch of the League from his failing hands and carried it high all through the campaign. He knew, and said, as did Wilson, that if there was to be no League there would be another, and worse, world war. Cox was saying, "Go forward. It is not possible for a people to go backward." Warren Harding, mouthing the directions of others, was saying, "Let us go back to normalcy."

Harding won. But it was almost as if destiny had made up her mind to teach the people a lesson. Having sold out their birthright for a mess of "normalcy," the nation reaped abnormality. Having refused proven personal administrative integrity, the nation was rewarded with all the vast corruption, looting and scandals of the Harding gang. Having refused the League of Nations, the nation moved on inexorably toward war and tragedy.

James M. Cox revealed how his era had shaped him. He moved on to greatness and influence for good in the newspaper world. He became as much a Southern publisher as a Northern one. His newspaper in Miami, Fla., won a Pulitzer Prize for exposing the Capone influences. He was 70 and still planting acorns on his farm for generations ahead to enjoy as trees when he bought The Atlanta Journal. He was 80 when he purchased control of The Atlanta Constitution. He loved Atlanta and the South. The city and its great potential were among his favorite subjects. No Chamber of Commerce dreamer saw a more developing future.

He poured much of his wealth into Atlanta and the South. He never took a nickel in salary from the Atlanta properties. The profits were poured back into the community. He spent much time here. He liked the beauty of the city and never wearied of driving through and admiring it. Now and then shabby, ignorant little men, pursuing some shabby political scheme, would yap at him, feist-like, hoping to profit thereby. He would never permit dignifying them with reply. He gave no instructions on policy. He dictated no editorials. All his papers knew the one rule—decide what is right. Do what is best for the town, the state and the country. No man had more pride or faith in the South's promised future than he.

He was a conservative progressive. He knew that man and his world have never stood still. He himself had ridden ox carts as a boy. He was a friend of the Wright brothers and was privy to their plans for building and flying the first airplane, as he was friend to some who split the atom.

He was a big man. Therefore, he had time for little things. He loved children. He helped many young persons with their education. He was quick to recognize talent and to encourage it. Many a young man and woman was brought to maturity by association with his straight thinking and integrity.

Now, after a life rich and full, he has left us.

It is just as he would have it that his son, James M. Cox Jr., would issue a brief statement of appreciation of that heritage and integrity and journalistic duty and pledge to carry on the properties in that same tradition.

Why the Year's Delay In Action at Grady?

Announcement by Emory University Medical School that an administrator for the anesthesia program has been appointed at Grady Hospital is welcomed. It follows publication by The Constitution yesterday of a disturbing report showing that from 20 to 40 "anesthetic related deaths" occurred in the hospital in 1955. The medical school is responsible for the anesthesia program.

According to our information, the survey was completed and a report on its conclusions was given the medical school in May, 1956. Made by Dr. Robert Hingson of Western Reserve University, the study and the report were not made public and the announcement yesterday is the first acknowledgement that anything was found wrong.

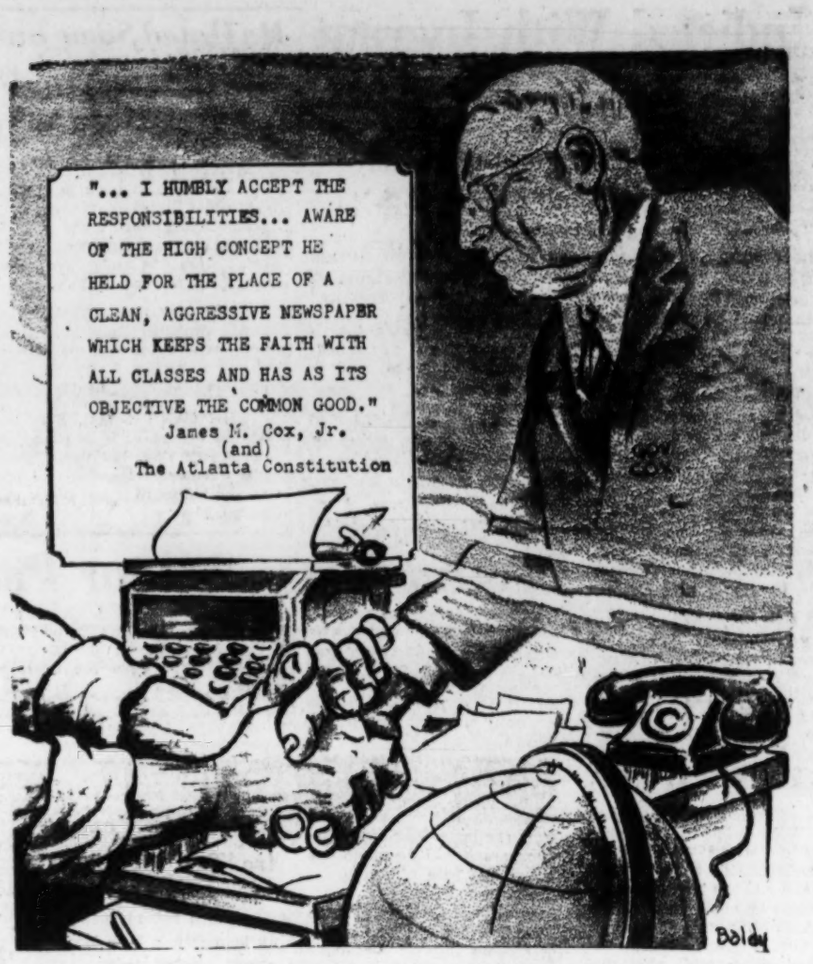

The community, of course, will be disturbed over these disclosures. It is incredible that such a situation could be more or less ignored for more than a year.

Emory Medical School is a private institution. Grady Hospital is not. It was built and will be supported largely by the taxpayers. As such it is a public concern and the concern of this newspaper. A workable tie between the medical school and the hospital is desirable, not only from the standpoint of medical education but for the health of the community.

So what's the trouble? How much responsibility lies with Emory—as in the case of the anesthesia problem—for patient care?

These questions must be answered with a concrete program which clearly details channels of responsibility and accountability. Buck passing and excuses cannot erase the fact that people have died "anesthetic related deaths" because of lack of adequate care.

Somebody has got to face the realities of this situation. The future of Grady Hospital and its relations with Emory Medical School are too important to this community and state to ignore such obvious failings and conflicts as those which have reached the public prints too frequently of late.

Letter Carriers Belittle Summerfield's Idea Of Postal Wages Hitched to Postage Rates

Atlanta—Your editorial concerning the statement of Postmaster General Summerfield on June 25, 1957, while testifying before the House Post Office Committee, that a postal pay increase would bring on a seven-cent letter and would also help bring on inflation, is greatly appreciated by all postal workers because:

1. Our association has always contended that postal wages should not be tied to postage rates but should rather be based on a fair standard of work performance and a wage that will let the postal worker maintain a decent American standard of living.

2. We contend also that it is the duty of the Congress to determine what the rates should be and if they then set them so that the revenue produced isn't enough to meet the cost of operating the postal establishment that the Congress should use whatever means it deems necessary to provide the rest of the monies needed.

3. Our association believes the American public is entitled to and should have the best possible postal service. We believe this need can best be met by more frequent deliveries of mail each day, certainly as many deliveries as can be made within the bounds of necessary economy and need.

State Vice President, National Assn. of Letter Carriers.

Calhoun Citizen Cites State's Election Law

Calhoun — Columnist William Bates, in his column "Political Notebook," on July 3 made the following statement:

"The Republican Party would not have to go through the cumbersome petition procedure if it would conduct a primary to select its candidates."

This statement is grossly untrue. Such is not the law of Georgia. According to present Georgia law, if a party has not had a candidate for a state or national office in the last general election or if that party's candidate for such office did not receive as many as 5 per cent of the total vote in the last general election, then the petition procedure must be followed.

This also applies to "poor old Joe Doakes," who wants to "buck the machine politicians" and do something for the good of the people instead of for the good of the "machine." In other words, the poor old true American is just left out.

The 5 per cent law was enacted for one purpose: To keep competition down in politics. If you would run for state or national office in the so-called "democratic primary," the dictators said, "we will make it impossible for you to run in the general election."

And that is the way it has worked out. Our national Republican Chairman Meade Alcorn has termed this law a "stone-age" law—this is true, but it can also be termed a totalitarian or fascist law. One man or woman has just as much right to have his or her name on the ballot as another, and this is so as long as that person stands for the principles of Americanism. "Totalitarianism" is not "Americanism." When will our General Assembly return to the principles of Americanism and abolish this "un-American" 5 per cent law? HARBIN M. KING.

Editor's Note: The statement in Bates' column that Mr. King challenges grew out of an interview with Secretary of State Ben W. Fortson, the state official responsible for certifying candidates for the general election ballot. Mr. Fortson maintains that if the GOP "legally and properly" holds a statewide primary just as the Democratic primary does and polls 5 per cent of the registered vote, that he can see no reason why its candidates should not be qualified to go on the ballot without a 5 per cent petition. In other words, the primary would satisfy the requirements of the 5 per cent law.

'Daring' Young Ladies Out To Beat the Heat?

Atlanta—Florence G. Bruckner's letter of July 13 complaining of women going around "half naked" is going a little too far.

They wear these sensible outfits only for comfort and to beat the heat and have no intention of being indecent.

These same "daring" young ladies will practically fracture a rib fighting a little gust of wind that has raised their skirts an inch above the knee.

High Court's Decision On Girard Approved

Athens—After a great while the United States Supreme Court has at last rendered a just decision. I have read much in the press and heard much about the injustice of turning William Girard over to the Japanese. As I see it, the only injustice in doing so is in the probability that the Japanese will be too lenient with him.

Because of the agreement between the two countries I fail to see why the Japanese should not try this soldier.

Sen. Russell Rallied Support for South

WASHINGTON—A week ago this column pointed out that Sen. Dick Russell's July 2 speech unmasking the civil rights bill was a master tactical stroke. Since then evidence has increased that it may well go down as one of the major speeches of recent years on the floor of the U.S. Senate.

Rarely has a single speech changed so sharply the climate of opinion over an important political issue. Only time will tell how effective the speech eventually will be as the debate rages on over civil rights.

But certainly there has been so far this week more soul-searching about the civil rights issue on the part of a number of non-South senators and writers in the national press.

Until Russell spoke out, it was obvious many senators, congressmen, editorialists and even President Eisenhower himself did not understand fully the civil rights bill. To them it was just a moderate, right-to-vote bill and not, as Russell pointed out, a cunningly contrived measure to force racial integration on the South.

At first, some liberal editors, columnists and radio and television commentators sought to belittle Russell's argument as merely a sign of Southern frustration and desperation.

But before last week was over, some phases of the bill were being questioned by such publications as the Washington Star, the Wall Street Journal and the New York Times, through its astute political analyst, Arthur Krock.

President Eisenhower's willingness to listen to Russell in a conference at the White House was, of course, another indication of the administration's concern over charges laid down by such a moderate, respected man as Georgia's senior senator.

Just what the outcome will be, no one knows. But at this writing, it seems that as a result of Russell's attack the Southerners have a good chance of getting the bill modified to a right-to-vote bill with a jury trial proviso.

No Courting Under Pretense

In 1670 the Parliament of England legislated providing: "That all women of whatever age, rank, profession or degree, whether virgins, maids, or widows, that shall, from after the passing of this act, impose upon or betray into matrimony any of His Majesty's male subjects, by scents, paints, cosmetics, washes, artifical teeth, false hair, Spanish wool, iron stays, hoops, high-heeled shoes, or bolstered hips, shall incur the penalty of the laws in force against witchcraft, sorcery and such like misdemeanors, and that the marriage, upon conviction, shall stand null and void."

That left the gals strictly on their own.

Which reminds me—Paul Miller, in the highway department office, says a bulletin board at the Minit Car Wash, Rock Springs and Piedmont, has been advertising: For Swap—Slightly used wedding ring for a .38-cal. revolver.

Individual Queried On Bible Reading

Yesterday I was suggesting that the Bible is losing out. Many will protest but let me put a witness on the stand to testify. Suppose you serve as the witness and before the jury of your own conscience, hold up your right hand and promise to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth. Answer these questions one by one:

Do you own a Bible? Is there any dust on it? Do you know or would you need to look and see? Did you read it yesterday? Have you ever read it for as long as one hour at a single sitting? Have you ever read the entire Bible through? Are you sure you have ever read one book of the Bible in its entirety? Are you familiar with only a few favorite passages of the Bible?

Does the Bible contain one, two or three books called Chronicles? Are four of the books of the Bible named Habakkuk, Zephaniah, Haggai, Zechariah? Are you sure as to each one? What is the book Philemon about? Do you have a plan of Bible reading designed to acquaint you with the entire book? Do you really follow such a plan of reading?

Are you embarrassed by the above line of questioning? Let's go a bit deeper into our search to find out if the Bible is becoming a lost book. You are still the witness on the stand. Answer yes or no to the following questions:

Do you study the Bible as well as read it? Do you own any good books of Bible helps and do you use those books? Do you believe the Bible is as important as a game of golf, or bridge, or a motion picture show, or a television program? Have you ever at one sitting spent as much time on Bible study as upon one of the above-mentioned pastimes? Is your Bible study of real value in your life?

I have only a few more questions and then I will submit the case to the jury. Do you consider the Bible as a guide for life? If so, are you sufficiently familiar with it to be guided intelligently by its teachings? Is the Bible merely a book that was written a long time ago or is it God's way for you today? Are you content merely to read its pages or do you delve deep enough to discover its abiding insights? Do you merely repeat, "The Lord is my Shepherd," or do you consider what that really means to your own life? When you repeat, "As we forgive those who trespass against us," do you apply it?

Have you studied the Bible to the point that you can actually say you enjoy it? Are you really honest when you say, "I love the Bible?" If you are a parent, do you care enough about the Bible to teach it to your children?

The main question is not so much whether the Bible is losing out in the world but whether it is losing out in your own life and practice. The fact is that we are in too big a hurry to give the time that a book like the Bible requires, if it is to be of any real value to us. Tomorrow I will make some suggestions for those who might be interested in digging the gold out of the mine.

Texas' Johnson Is On Rights Hot Seat

—WASHINGTON—The one man in the Senate who is on the spot more than anybody else in the current civil rights fight and yet who perhaps is enjoying it the most is the Democratic Party's Senate leader, Lyndon Johnson of Texas. His position is ticklish for several reasons.

He is a Southerner and wants to do the best he can for his Southern colleagues, almost all of whom are really dead-set against any civil rights bill at all. He is a candidate for the 1960 Democratic presidential nomination. Consequently he does not want to get a sectional brand.

He is the party's floor leader in the Senate. In that powerful and responsible post he shares, with his fellow Texan — Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn — the management of this Congress which his party controls. In the absence of a president in the White House, it is in Congress where Democrats make the record that will stand for the party in the coming congressional elections next year and the 1960 presidential election. That imposes upon him and Speaker Rayburn the obligation to avoid getting the party stamped as a sectional party and, at the same time, to avoid widening the rift that exists on civil rights between North and South wings.

It is clear that he looks upon what would ordinarily be a thankless task, considering all the emotions involved in this issue, as a great opportunity to display his talents. If a compromise can eventually be worked out, he intends to get credit for it.

The Texan assumes command at the opening of every session, outlining the program for civil rights debate for the day. He identifies himself as a leader bent on moderation by uttering little homilies about how everybody should be considerate of everybody else and remember that they are members of a great institution.

However, he holds up his hand against any talk of compromise, which is part of his strategy. This is so that his Southerners may, in the end, get what they hope for. What they really want, of course, would be no bill at all — but what they hope for is one that means as little as possible.

What really sticks with them is the right-to-vote part of the measure. For, as pointed out here previously, an extension of voting in the South among Negroes may endanger the senators' futures.

Southerners raised a literal riot call through their leader — Sen. Russell of Georgia —against Section III, which could be used in the school integration process. They believe they can get that eliminated from the Eisenhower measure eventually. Then their other objective is to require jury trial in cases of violation of injunctions issued by federal judges to stop restrictions on Negro voting.

If Sen. Johnson can be helpful in arranging such a "compromise" for his Southern colleagues, it would indeed endear him to them. It is not seen, however, how that would help his chances for the party's presidential nomination, though those never have been too good.

Rough Boy Babies Are Eva's Delight

Miss Eva came from the telephone with her lip all stuck out but with a twinkle in her eye and I could tell she was full of news. She looked as she always does when she is pleased about something but is pretending to be mad about it. "Well, Miss E.," I said, "what now?" "Another little ole grandbaby," Eva said. "Look like every time I turn around another one come along."

"That's fine, Eva," I said. "You ought to be mighty pleased with. . . ."

"Pleased," Eva snorted. "How come they don't have nothing but little old rough boy babies? How come we can't have a nice cute little girl baby just once? You ever seen my two other grandchillun?" She leaned over, which is hard work for Eva, the way she is built, and held her hand palm down about 18 inches from the floor.

"They just about that high. Two of the meanest, toughest little old boys you ever saw. One of 'em 20 months old, one of them nearly 3. Both of 'em talk bass already. The other day they come to see me. They play around in the yard awhile, then come in the house. One of 'em look at me. He say:

" 'Grammaw, we don't like yo' house.'

" 'What you mean you don't like my house?' I say.

" 'You ain't got no rocks. Yo' yard nothing but all grass. We want some rocks.'

" 'What you want with rocks?' I say.

" 'We wants to chunk 'em. We ain't got no rocks to chunk,' he say.

"Wait'll yo' papa come home, he'll chunk you,' I say. That quiet 'em.

"Their daddy can handle 'em. He go to town they holler to go. He tell 'em come on. But they got to keep up and they got to take care of their selfs. So he light out down the street and they stay right at his heels.

"They growing up to be independent. They fall down, they get up and don't cry. You try to take one in yo' lap, he wiggle like a pig until you let him down. You try to take his hand going across street, he push you away. They the brashest little old boys you ever saw. Scared of nobody, scared of nothing."

Eva sounded as if she was fussing. But it was easy to see how proud she was of her grandbabies, of their sturdiness and independence. Pretty soon I heard her on the telephone. She was spreading the word that the new one had come and looked as if he were going to be as rugged as the rest.

The Talmadge Dignity Surprises His Critics

By WILLIAM M. BATES
Constitution Political Editor

Sen. Herman Talmadge once again has shown his liberal critics that he is not the race-baiting demagogue that some of them expected him to be in the Senate of the United States.

His major speech against President Eisenhower's civil rights bill in the Senate last Friday was a model of dignified, high-level discussion of one of the foremost emotional isues of our time.

William M. Bates

When Talmadge was elected to the Senate last year many were the Northern liberals who fully expected him to become a spokesman of the extreme and irresponsible elements of the South. There were Georgians, too—many who had cast a ballot for a Talmadge for the first time—who were far from certain about the path the new senator would follow.

Up until the civil rights bill reached the Senate floor, Talmadge's actions and utterances in Washington must have perplexed the critics who had expected him to become another Bilbo or an Eastland. Cautiously, important Washington reporters, as cynical a lot as you can hope to see, began to indicate that the advance hostility toward Talmadge might have been unjustified.

But still ahead was the civil rights fight. This is the issue, touching as it does directly on race relations in the South, for which Talmadge is best known to the nation. Some of his statements, particularly in the early stages of his political career, unquestionably had been on the extreme side.

What would be the tenor of his opposition to civil rights legislation in that foremost forum of the nation, the United States Senate?

SENATOR'S DECORUM

The answer came Friday. While Talmadge's critics disagreed with the substance of his arguments, they could hardly take exception to the manner and the decorum with which he presented them.

Not once did he mention the word Negro. Not once did he flay the pressure groups that long have urged extreme civil rights measures. Not once did he refer to segregation or integration or to the "Southern way of life."

Instead, Talmadge made a well-documented, constitutional argument that the administration's bill was a threat to the basic rights of all Americans—not just to those Americans who happen to reside in the South. The bill, he maintained, would give additional rights to only one person: the attorney general of the United States.

A CALM SPEECH

From start to finish, Talmadge's speech was a calm, reasoned approach to an extremely explosive situation. His opening words set the tone of the speech:

"Mr. President, as I arise to address myself to this bill I am pleased that I can say with full sincerity and in good conscience that I can speak for the rank and file of Georgians of every color, race, faith and national origin."

He ended on this note:

"I, for one, Mr. President, will not be a party to ushering in another age of hate to blight an otherwise peaceful nation and destroy the unity which exists among our citizens. . . . Rather, Mr. President, I, for one, wish history to record that I stood in defense of the rights and liberties of the American people and the sacred Constitution of the American Republic."

RESPONSIBLE, INTELLIGENT

The tone of Talmadge's speech may not please some of his Georgia supporters who would have preferred him to denounce the civil rights bill in terms of a campaign speech in Georgia.

But it should go a long way toward establishing Talmadge in the eyes of the nation—and in the eyes of his fellow senators—as a responsible, intelligent exponent of the legitimate interests of the South.

And this, in the long run, will be far more important in obtaining a sympathetic understanding of the South and its problems than all the table-pounding and breast-beating of the demagogues.

Missionary Ought To Be Doubt-Free

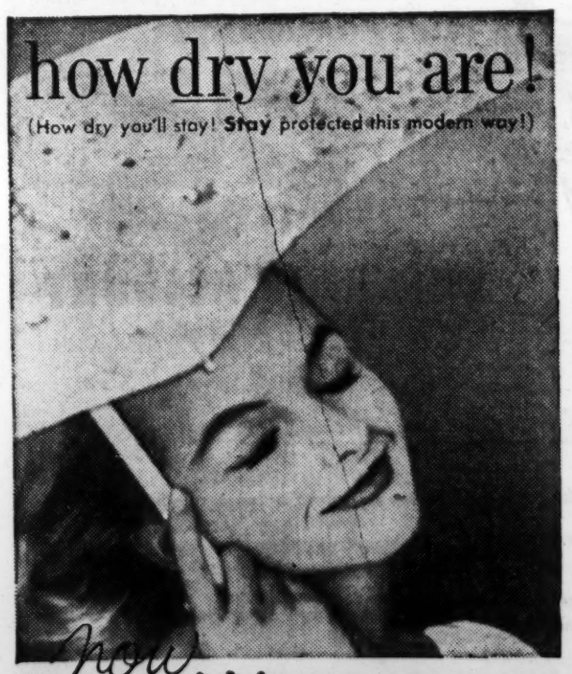

QUESTION: I am planning to go to the foreign field as a missionary. What is the best way to make my plans for this work? —P. W.

Billy Graham

ANSWER: I would suggest first that you make sure of your personal relationship to Christ. None in such a ministry can serve with doubts about his own salvation. We must present to men everywhere a positive faith. Second, you must have an adequate motive for going. It must not be out of mere sympathy or out of a spirit of courageous adventure, but it must be a decision based upon enlightment as to the need existing and the sufficiency of the Gospel message to meet that need. You must go as one who has been divinely commissioned.

The Bible says, "Faith cometh by hearing and hearing by the Word of God. How then shall they believe except they hear, and how shall they hear without a preacher, and how shall they preach except they be sent?"

Courts Said Not Backing Safety Drive

An official of the National Safety Council said Tuesday Georgia courts are "not backing up" the state's traffic law enforcement program as well as those in most other states.

James E. Civils, the council's regional director, said Georgia's courts are returning convictions in 87 per cent of the cases before them. He said the conviction rate should be about 95 per cent.

He suggested the state set up a uniform system of fines for traffic law violations to be observed by all courts. He also recommended that enforcement officials who are on a fee basis be placed on salary.

MEETING

Civils made the recommendations at a meeting with Gov. Griffin, Col. W. C. Dominy of the State Patrol and several legislative leaders in presenting the Safety Council's analysis of Georgia's safety record for 1956.

Civils presented data showing that the state's highway death toll of 1,131 last year represented an increase of 132 fatalities above the three-year average for 1953-1955. However, the 1956 toll was a decline of 1.2 per cent in terms of traffic mileage.

The Safety Council official said most phases of Georgia's traffic safety program, as measured against those of other states, showed improvement in 1956.

He particularly praised the addition of 50 state troopers and the institution of a training program for patrol recruits.

RE-EXAMINATION

But he said Georgia needs a program of periodic re-examination of drivers' licenses to be sure motorists are keeping abreast of new traffic regulations and are in physical condition to drive.

"Too many people don't have the respect for their license that they should have because there is no re-examination program in Georgia," he said.

He also said Georgia lacks a statewide, citizen-sponsored safety council to coordinate various efforts to promote traffic safety throughout the state.

Reds Fire 3 Bosses In Bulgaria

(Copyright 1957 by The New York Times Co.)

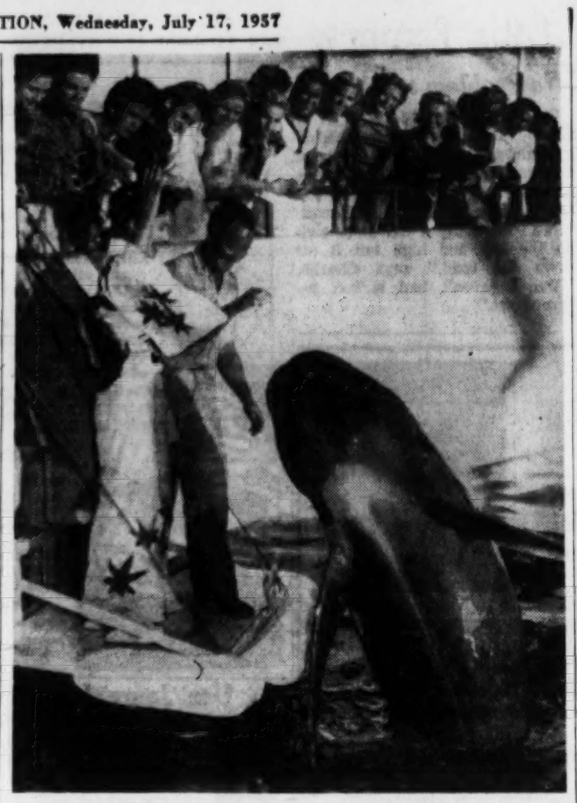

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, July 16—Communist Bulgaria followed the example of the Soviet Union and Roumania today by announcing a shakeup of its top party leadership.

Georgi Chankov, a deputy premier, was dismissed from Politburo, the Bulgarian party's top ruling body, and from the party's central committee. Also dropped from the committee were Dobri Terpeshev and Janko Panov. All three were found guilty by the committee of "anti-party activities."

Almost identical language was used in Moscow two weeks ago when Vyacheslav M. Molotov, Georgi M. Malenkov, Lazar M. Kaganovich and Dmitri T. Shepilov were dropped from the Soviet party leadership.

Unlike Molotov and Kaganovich, however, the victims of the Sofia shakeup were far from being old-guard Stalinists. All three were considered to be advocates of better relations with Yugoslavia and enemies of former Premier Vulko Chervenkov, who was dismissed in April, 1956.

The Sofia shakeup took place at a meeting of the Bulgarian central committee last Thursday and Friday. Chankov, according to the newspaper Politika, was accused of "systematic undermining of the unity and collective working" of the party leadership.

19 Children Among 57 Killed in Dutch Plane

THE HAGUE, July 16 (AP)—The death toll of a KLM Royal Dutch airliner that plunged flaming into equatorial seas off northwest New Guinea was set tonight at 57.

Among those given up for lost were 19 children.

One of the 12 survivors, a Dutch child, died of burns. All hope was abandoned for the other 56 persons—passengers and crew members—who went down with the plane a few moments after taking off before dawn from Biak for Amsterdam.

It was the biggest disaster in Dutch aviation history.

The liner, a Lockheed Super Constellation named the Neutron, was reported to have broken loose its tail on striking the water five miles off Biak island. All the survivors had been seated at the rear.

Three aboard were Britons, all among the dead. The rest were Dutch. Most of the passengers were government and navy personnel and their families.

Dr. Dirk Leiker, 37, a missionary physician, lost his wife and four children in the crash off shores where he had been working among lepers for seven years.

Papuan divers and canoeists helped Dutch navy men in the rescue work and probed the deep water between coral islets for the wreckage and the dead. KLM announced the recovery of 11 bodies.

Japan Lifts Red China Trade Bars

272 Items Taken Off Embargo List

By FOSTER HAILEY

(Copyright 1957 by The New York Times Co.)

TOKYO, July 16—Japan joined the United Kingdom and some Western European nations today in the race for the Chinese Communist market.

The Ministry of Trade and Industry announced after a two-hour Cabinet session a list of 272 items whose shipments to the Chinese mainland, heretofore banned, now would be permitted.

The list followed exactly that announced May 30 by London. It places China in the same category as the Soviet Union and the Eastern European Communist countries.

170 ITEMS EMBARGOED

Still embargoed to all Communist countries are approximately 170 items, including those considered to have direct warmaking potential.

The action will be popular politically among the ruling Liberal Democrats as it robs the opposition Socialists of one of their main platform planks.

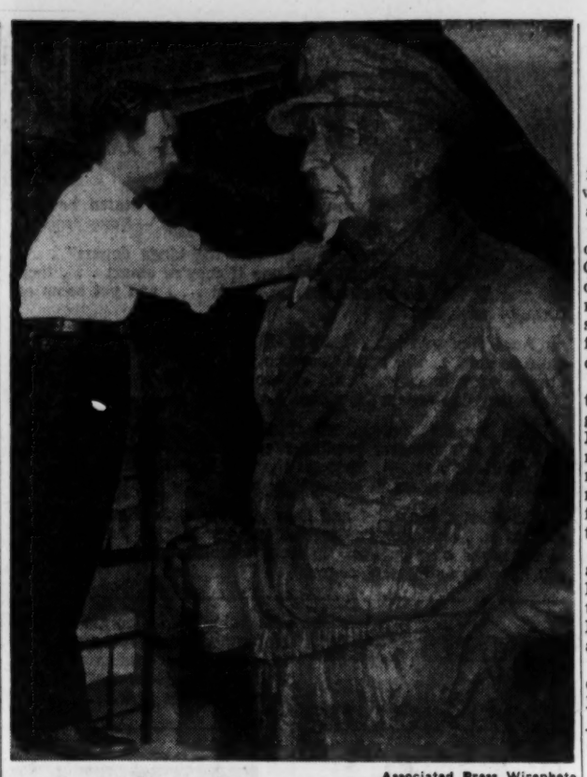

Japanese trading circles, however, expressed skepticism as to whether the action would mean much economically. They pointed out that most of the items on the list were machinery and that Japanese machinery is not competitive in price with that of the United Kingdom and Western European manufacturers.

The only way in which Japan's China trade could be substantially improved, they said, would be for an extension of long-term credits. There was no indication from any government source that that was in prospect.

COULD DOUBLE TRADE

Some optimists predicted, however, that even with the handicaps of high prices and sketchy unofficial relations with the Chinese Communists — there is no formal diplomatic tie between Tokyo and Peiping—trade next year probably could be doubled from 1956's total of $150,000,000. These circles also expressed hope that the trade gap might be decreased, if not wiped out. It was $16,000,000 last year. Little hope was held in any quarter for a substantial increase in the last six months of this year.

The decision of Japan to follow the United Kingdom's lead in rescinding a major part of the American-backed Chinese embargo list came as somewhat of a surprise. Premier Nobusuke Kishi on his recent American visit had left the impression in both his public and private talks that Japan intended to move slowly in amending the embargo out of deference to Washington's ideas. The Japanese press so interpreted his words and censured him for taking that attitude.

Douglas MacArthur. The statue, which will commemorate the Inchon landing under MacArthur's command on Sept. 16, 1950, will be unveiled at Inchon on Sept. 15. The professor said the 13-foot statue will be set on top of a 20-foot base.

Dulles Plans To Set Up NATO Atom Stockpile

By JACK RAYMOND

(Copyright 1957 by The New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON, July 16—Secretary of State Dulles said today that the United States is considering methods of establishing nuclear arms stockpiles for the use of its allies in Western Europe.

Dulles added that plans under study may require an amendment to the Atomic Energy Act. The act prohibits the transfer of U.S. nuclear weapons to any other country.

But, Secretary Dulles pointed out, Western defense plans are predicated on the assumption that nuclear materials would continue to be used for arms even if a disarmament agreement cut off their future production.

"Now, if that is to be the case, we do not ourselves want to be in a position where our allies are wholly dependent upon us," Dulles said at his news conference.

"We don't think that is a healthy relationship," he went on. "Therefore we are studying ways whereby, through perhaps a NATO stockpile of weapons and various arrangements of that sort, there can be assurances to our allies that if they are attacked, if war comes, that they will not then be in the position of suppliants, as far as we are concerned, for the use of atomic weapons."

Secretary Dulles disclosed also that an amendment to the Atomic Energy Commission act may be required to fulfill United States promises to supply Great Britain with intermediate range ballistic missiles. This promise was made at the Bermuda Conference of President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Macmillan last winter.

At the time it was stressed that the United States planned to give the British only the missiles, and not the warheads. Thus, it was explained, amendments to the act were not required. Today Dulles said "certain things" could be done within the confines of the act and "other things" require a change of legislation.

The stockpiling plan was first discussed here last winter at the time of the British-U.S. defense talks in Washington and Bermuda. It has been considered subsequently at military committee meetings of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Dulles said there was at present no thought of creating stockpiles for any allies except those in NATO. For the time being, he pointed out, it was assumed that in the event of an emergency the President would have a right to turn nuclear weapons over to U.S. allies. That is the basis on which the United States now is providing weapons with atomic capability and training allied troops to use them.

The present state of the proposal appears to be far more developed now, since in earlier stages authorities had hoped to avoid the necessity of seeking an amendment in the Atomic Energy Act.

U.S. Bar Refuses To Curb Criticism of Supreme Court

(Copyright 1957 by The New York Times Co.)

NEW YORK, July 16—A resolution urging lawyers to abstain from contemptuous criticism of the Supreme Court and its opinions was tabled by the American Bar Association's Assembly today after a sharp debate.

The assembly followed the recommendation of its Resolutions Committee that it take no action on the proposal which was submitted by Judge Palmer Hutcheson of Houston. Judge Hutcheson failed in an effort to defeat the committee's motion.

Sessions of the Assembly and the House of Delegates, the bar group's legislative body, began Monday and ended today. Tomorrow morning several hundred members of the association, many accompanied by wives and families, will sail for London on the Queen Mary.

The 80th annual meeting of the association will reconvene in the British capital on July 24 for further business with the British Bar. The London phase of the annual meeting will end July 30.

Judge Hutcheson's resolution declared that it was the duty of lawyers and of other citizens to "see that our judicial system is not destroyed by contemptuous disregard of the Court's decisions with which we do not agree."

The good faith of judges should not be impugned, he asserted, as long as they declare the law and interpret the Constitution in good faith.

Louis C. Wyman, attorney general of New Hampshire, was applauded when he said that it was "the duty of every lawyer to speak out at any time against decisions with which they disagree, without impugning the integrity of members of the Court."

Pay Adjustments Are Promised to Police in DeKalb

DeKalb policemen who criticized their pay under the county merit system which went into operation Monday have been told certain pay adjustments will be made.

The policemen, heated over alleged inequities in the new system, were told by merit system director Mattox L. Purvis and Chief Brady Knight that their complaints will be looked into "immediately." They assured the policemen at a special meeting that the system will not allow two and three-year men to be overtaken by men with only one year of experience.

The policemen received checks Monday boosting their pay t the nearest step on the pay scale set up by the merit system. The pay scale and job classifications were approved by the county commission.

Wind and Water Meet Quota For Russian Rail Engineer

MOSCOW, July 16 (AP)—A Russian railroad engineer named Vorobov is described as a genius by seven of his fellow workers in the railway newspaper Gudok—he has discovered that water and even fresh air can be shipped in tank cars to meet his quota for "liquid" freight.

In the Soviet Union everything is done by plan, from the number of fares a cab driver is supposed to pick up to the tons of coal a miner must dig. Success in meeting the quotas is rewarded by honors and bonuses.

Two years ago, according to the letter written by the engineer's seven associates to Gudok, Vorobov realized his section of the Vladivostok line was in danger of not meeting its quota for deliveries of liquid freight.

Vorobov ordered 50 tank cars filled with water and shipped to Usurisky. At Usurisky the water froze and it took a month to get the cars thawed out and emptied. Voroboy met his quota.

This summer Vorobov again fell behind on his liquid deliveries. He ordered water pumped from mains at Pervaya Rechka directly into tank cars and shipped to Egersheld nearby, where it could be emptied back into the mains and allowed to flow back to Pervaya Rechka.

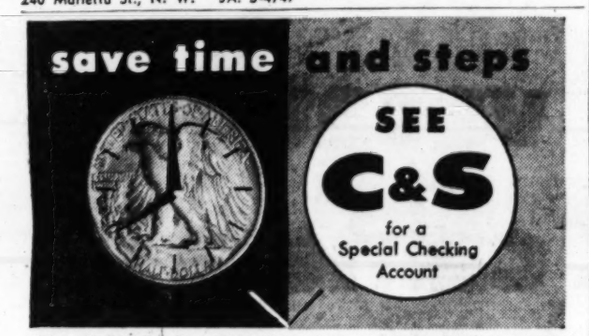

At this rate, the writers said, Vorobov could fulfill the whole annual plan in a month, but to speed things up even more he sent 15 cars with nothing but air.

Senate Votes Rights Bill To Floor as Dixie Demurs

Filibuster Looms After President Slams the Door on Compromise

that would permit the attorney general to use injunctive powers to enforce all manner of civil rights.

However, President Eisenhower voiced objection to a jury trial amendment in a statement that also seemed to oppose any move to strike out part three that Southerners argue would permit bayonet rule to enforce racial integration in the South.

In a statement expressing gratification at the Senate vote to take up the bill, Eisenhower said it has "four simple objectives."

One, he said, was "to protect the constitutional right of all citizens to vote, regardless of race or color."

BACKING COURT

"In this connection," he added, "we seek to uphold the traditional authority of the federal courts to enforce their orders. This means that a jury trial should not be interposed in contempt of court cases growing out of violations of such orders."

Then the President said the second objective was to "provide a reasonable program of assistance in efforts to protect other constitutional rights of our citizens."

This could be interpreted, as Southerners have claimed, that the administration seeks to use the bill as a weapon to enforce Supreme Court decrees on school desegregation.

KEFAUVER, TOO

Prior to the Senate vote on the motion to take up the bill, Sen. Byrd (D-Va.), laid down a 20-point attack on the measure he called "an iniquitous bill that is a refutation of our entire system of American jurisprudence."

And the southern attack was joined by Sen. O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.), who denounced the bill's proposal to "take away the right of jury trial from American citizens."

Even the liberal Tennessee Democrat, Sen. Kefauver, objected to the bill in its present form and said he thought it "unwise" to tie into a right-to-vote proposal "the entire integration problem."

Kefauver, although he announced he would support the motion to take up the bill, also spoke out for the right of trial by jury.

WOULDN'T "INFRINGE"

"I believe we should not attempt to infringe on another right which itself was achieved only after a long struggle—that is the right of trial by jury where there are questions of fact to be considered," Kefauver said.

Attacking the bill as "one of the most vicious ever presented to congress," Byrd also cut loose with a blistering attack on Chief Justice Warren of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Nothing that President Eisenhower and many members of the House and Senate who favor the bill have not seemed to really understand it. Byrd said he could forgive those "who know not what they do."

But, he said, "I strongly suspect that the modern Thaddeus Stevens, now cloaked in the robes of the chief justice of the United States Supreme Court, has a thorough and complete knowledge of what and could be done under the bill.

SUSPECTS NAACP

"And likewise I suspect that the NAACP, one of the principal beneficiaries of his official acts, had at least a working familiarity with the provisions of the bill. I suspect also that the ADA, the NAACP's Gold Dust twin, has at least guilty knowledge of what the bill proposes."

In a colloquy with Byrd, Georgia's Sen. Talmadge charged anew that the bill would make the attorney general "the legal de facto guardian of 170 million Americans.

Noting that Eisenhower commented at a news conference that he did not understand all the "legal quirks" of the bill, Byrd proceeded to enumerate 20 "quirks" he said could lead to federal dictatorship, a denial of jury trials to American citizens, a denial of equal protection of the laws and bayonet rule of the South, based on old reconstruction statutes.

as outlined by the chief, will be to eliminate as far as possible prostitution, sweep out undesirable elements in massage parlors, night clubs and "joints," and concentrate on bootlegging, slot machines, pinball machines and all forms of gambling, such as bookmaking and floating poker games.

Jenkins said policewoman Ruby Barrett would be assigned to the inspection of night club operations, with particular emphasis on the type of floor shows presented.

"I hope the persons who hold privilege permits to operate businesses will take heed and hew to the line," Jenkins said. "If they don't, then we have no choice except to put them in jail and take away their licenses."

The two captains and sergeants were instructed to confer frequently with Fulton Criminal Court Sol. John I. Kelley.

"I'm giving you a big stick and the authority to use it," Jenkins told the four superior officers. "I want the job done. I want good cases supported with evidence. But I want the job done. The responsibility for doing it is yours."

Ellis Expects Fund Boost Of $80,000

The Fulton County Welfare Board is expected to get $80,000 more in funds yearly from the state as the result of a reallocation of sharing in administrative expenses, the board learned Tuesday.

Wellborn R. Ellis, county welfare administrator, said the board's budget for next month anticipates, on the basis of the number of cases that were handled in May, receipt of $29,933 from the state.

The department previously has been getting $22,980.50 a month from the state as its part of the county department's administrative costs. The amount is based on the total caseload and number of personnel.

Ellis said the new budgetary amount had been confirmed by a state welfare official.

In another action, the board learned that Tom Slate, vice-chairman of the board and a member of it for two terms, will not seek re-appointment to the board for health and business reasons.

Board Chairman R. E. Dorough said Slate's term expired June 30 and Slate had advised him he was not seeking re-appointment.

Meanwhile, Dorough explained, he understood that nominations for successors to Slate and Dr. Preston Sumner, another board member who recently resigned for business reasons, are being submitted to State Welfare Director Alan Kemper.

ed police to place a special patrol in the section several weeks ago. Detectives said the suspect fitted the description given in virtually all complaints and that all victims would be asked to view him in police line-ups.

Several of the robbery victims were injured severely enough to require hospital treatment, detectives said.

The Negro was sentenced in 1942 to serve 20 years on charges of purse snatching, officers related. They said he was released in 1955.

The Negro turned all questions aside, even after identification in the robberies, with: "Gimme a lie detector test," officers said. They said arrangements were being made with the GBI to give the test, probably Wednesday.

Detectives Harry McCollister and E. F. McKillop said they arrested the Negro Monday night after seeing him following a white woman at Juniper and Courtland streets, NE. They said he attempted to escape on foot when he saw the patrol car.

Mrs. Rosser, a widow, evidently was beaten about the face and strangled with a necktie as she prepared to close the station. Investigators said the slayer took approximately $140.

Wreck Injuries Fatal To Woman at Appling

APPLING, July 16—Mrs. Elsie G. Taulzenberger, 55, of West Palm Beach, Fla., died today of injuries suffered in an automobile crash two weeks ago, the State Patrol said.

Mrs. Taulzenberger was injured July 1 in a two-car crash six miles north of Appling on Georgia Highway 104, troopers said. One other person was killed in the collision.

Richard Jenkins Is Found Guilty

Richard V. Jenkins of Avondale was found guilty Tuesday on charges of leading a conspiracy to peddle wholesale liquor in dry counties without paying a special wholesale tax.

Four other men named as Jenkins' coconspirators were acquitted.

The jury returned not guilty verdicts on William C. Mize, Olin T. Godwin, Lawrence D. Estes and Robert Bussey, all of Atlanta.

The government charged the four men were employes of Jenkins and that they conspired in a million-dollar-racket with him to defeat the purpose of the federal tax law.

One of Jenkins' attorneys, Charles R. Edwards, said it is likely the case will be appealed.

'Carousel' Starts Slowly But Comes Alive Quickly

Despite flickers of lightning and thunder in the distance, a near capacity crowd turned out for Tuesday's Theater Under the Stars performance of "Carousel."

The theater lived up to its name: the stars won the fight overhead, and after a slow start, finally sparked upon the stage. But an opening pantomine scene proved weak in leading spectators into the gay, "musical" spirit of the piece.

The dramatic entrance of Nettie Fowler (Rosalind Nadell), however, seemed suddenly to breathe life into the show. Bustling among the young girls' chorus, she turned in a performance both natural and gay.

Once started, the show slipped swiftly forward.

Nettie, singing a lilting "June Is Bustin' Out All Over," was followed by Carrie (Dran Seitz) with a bright antic and expressive reprise of "Mr. Snow."

Corday Howard danced a light hornpipe and even the too-weak character of Billy Bigelow (Andrew Gainey) gained sympathy with his "soliloquy."

Michael Kermoyan gave a forceful performance as the reckless seaman, Jigger Cragin, dominating scenes usually monopolized by the main characters.

A high point came shortly after the start of Act Two, when Cragin and Dran Seitz rough-housed through a hilarious "seduction" scene. Kermoyan followed this with a laugh-compelling rendition of "Geraniums in the Winder" and "Stone Cutters Cut It on Stone." ALLAN HEAD.

A Film First For Georgia

Hawkinsville, in the heart of middle Georgia, will be the scene Wednesday of a motion picture world premiere.

"God Is My Partner," co-starring Marian Ross and Walter Brennan, will be shown at the Thompson Theater in Hawkinsville. It will follow a parade and a series of gala events which will be staged under the supervision of J. H. Thompson, Georgia theater owner.

Miss Ross visited in Atlanta Tuesday on her way to attend the opening performance of her first starring role. She was honored at a luncheon at the Variety Club here and she made a series of appearances on television and radio.

Shortly after her arrival here, Miss Ross visited Gov. Griffin and he assured her he will attend the opening.

Tri-Cities Join Airport Survey

City governments of East Point, College Park and Hapeville have pledged full cooperation to the Metropolitan Planning Commission for a traffic survey in and around Atlanta airport.

Resolutions were adopted by the respective city councils following a request from a joint meeting of the City of Atlanta and the Fulton County Commissioners.

MOVIE REVIEWS

'The Weapon' A Fast Moving Mystery Thriller

"The Weapon," now showing at the Peachtree Art, is a swiftly paced melodrama about a child in jeopardy.

Steve Cochran, Lizabeth Scott, Herbert Marshall and a voluptuous French actress, Nicole Maurey, star in the story of a little boy who finds a murder weapon and then is tracked by the killer seeking to retrieve it.

Ten-year-old Jon Whiteley gives an excellent performance as the hunted child. There is nothing especially new about this picture's theme, but it is a well-done mystery thriller.

Reviewer's rating: Good melodrama. Family classification.

MEDICAL SCHOOL HAS DUAL GOAL

Emory-Grady Disputes Persist Through Years

paralleled opportunity to study cases that they might only read about if they were in other medical schools.

Another need that Grady meets is that every medical school must have a source of charity patients for its advanced students. Emory University Hospital caters basically to private patients.

The die for the recent resignations was cast in 1946, when 10 physicians forming the planning committee of Emory Medical School issued a report. The question posed to the committee was whether the school should be consolidated at Grady Hospital, or on the Emory University campus.

GUIDING DOCUMENT

Evidence bears out that this report has been the guiding document of the medical school through the years.

The report lists the following advantages of Grady Hospital as the complete site of the medical school:

A large source of clinical material; a central location; a central meeting place for members of various hospital staffs and that the buildings now used for the Negro hospital clinic could be converted to Medical School buildings when the new hospital is completed.

DISADVANTAGES SPOTTED

The disadvantages were identified as: the projected new hospital might be too large to be completely serviced by the faculty of the Medical School (this was written 11 years ago and today there is evidence that this prediction is true); a grade B medical school may be admitted to Grady at any time by the action of the Hospital Authority; in certain departments the patient load is already so great that adequate time for teaching and research is lacking; easy access to other schools of the university is lost; it will be difficult to obtain the money to develop at Grady . . . assurances from Grady cannot be obtained as to the security of Emory's teaching program, and every step forward at Grady requires additional endowment funds.

This report advocated development of the medical school on the Emory campus, suggesting that "teaching facilities will be maintained at Grady Hospital as long as requested by the Hospital Authority, thus obtaining . . . mutual advantages without sacrificing our independence."

BUILDING CAMPUS

The planning committee suggested building up the medical school on Emory's campus but retaining its relationship with Grady Hospital. It also suggested construction of additional facilities, and an office building (the present Emory Clinic), all to be located on the Emory campus.

In 1951, the basic contract between Emory and Grady was signed. It commits to Grady Hospital the "first and prime responsibility to render care to the sick and injured."

Early this year, an agreement was signed between the two institutions that specified Emory Medical School will "supervise and direct all professional services to patients at Grady Hospital."

This agreement was merely a statement of fact that had been assumed long ago.

It now can be seen why approximately 11 professors either resigned or were fired this past year.

Essentially, the first two years of medical school consist of learning from the text. The last two years of medical school, the internship, and the residency, are in the most part accomplished at a "teaching hospital," such as Grady.

Thus, department heads at Grady were pressured from both sides.

On one side, Emory University was adhering to a 1946 theory that called for a shift in emphasis from Grady Hospital to the Emory campus.

PATIENT CARE GOOD

On the other hand, Grady Hospital felt that patient care was good, and, even though some members of the hospital authority knew about some of the conditions pointed out in Dr. Hingson's report concerning anesthesia-related deaths, there was no apparent action to take corrective measures.

And in between all of this was the instructor, attempting to teach his students and care for his patients.

The contract requires four full-time Emory professors to be at Grady.

No professor doubted that was correct, but the clinical staff at Grady said that they—as physicians—were providing charity patients with inadequate care, and, if no one else would take the responsibility, they would have to do so.

Emory University has asserted that there was little controversy.

Yet, the fact that the chiefs of three of the four departments at Grady Hospital have resigned or have been fired has caused concern among those familiar with the situation.

The Emory Clinic was indeed part of the controversy. Although it was designed as a partnership for faculty members who would spend some of their time practicing medicine, the partnership aroused the Grady faculty by refusing to admit some of the full-time faculty to its full-time membership.

Lines of authority certainly provided some of the trouble.

Members of the clinical staff at Grady were dissatisfied with Dr. Arthur Richardson even before he was appointed dean.

UNHAPPY RELATIONS

They were also unhappy with Frank Wilson, the secretary of the Hospital Authority.

And, there is a considerable amount of documentary evidence that the Emory officials did not get along too well with the Hospital Authority.

The entire situation has been muddled and the outlook none too bright.

On Sept. 20, 1956, Dr. Arthur Richardson, the dean, according to the Fulton County Medical Society bulletin, was quoted as saying:

"Poor delineation of these areas and the fact that they frequently overlap causes constant bickering as to who is going to pay for what.

NEED COMMON VIEWPOINT

"Until the Hospital Authority and Emory can see the problems with a more common viewpoint, there will continue to be trouble."

A scant four months later, after the first of the resignations, Dr. Richardson said:

"We will build around a hard core of loyal faculty members . . .

"The future is bright."

program at Grady has been under study since the fall of 1955, but that it was a situation which could not be corrected overnight.

Dr. Galvin has been on the Emory Medical School staff since 1946, and has served as a consultant at Grady and the Veterans Administration Hospital.

He is a medical graduate of the University of Vermont and formerly was director of anesthesia at North County Community Hospital, Glen Cove, N.Y. During World War II, he was chief of anesthesiology at Ashford General Hospital, White Sulphur Springs, West Virginia.

Nation's County Officials To Consider Resolution Asking a Softer Rights Bill

By ALLAN HEAD

A resolution urging Section 3 be deleted from the administration's civil rights bill will be presented for debate during the final session of the National Association of County Officials Wednesday afternoon.

The resolution has been drafted and will be considered by the resolutions committee at 10 a.m. Wednesday, Judge M. Ward Forman of Springville, Ala., said Tuesday.

Section 3 of the civil rights bill would permit the attorney general to obtain federal court injunctions against violations, or threatened violations of voting and other civil rights.

Support for the resolution already has been promised by delegates from Pennsylvania and other northern and western states, Judge Forman said.

"I think we have enough in committee to report it out," he added. Forman said that should the resolution die in committee it then would be offered from the floor.

The resolution originated in the Alabama delegation, according to Forman. He said it is "short, simply worded," and "almost certain to be approved" by the convention.

"Every state is interested in the right of trial by jury," he added. "Section 3 is the part that takes away the right of state and local authorities to try their own cases."

Judge Forman is a former NACO president and chairman of the NACO roads and highways committee. His committee will offer no resolutions for convention action Wednesday, he said.

Bernard F. Hillenbrand, NACO executive director, said Tuesday the board of directors has approved a resolution commending the President's Commission on Intergovernmental Relations and laying groundwork for a "grass roots campaign" to implement the committee's recommendations.

The resolution will be among those presented for convention action.

John Sammons Bell, Atlanta attorney and acting chairman of the NACO legislative committee, said his group also would propose a number of resolutions.

They will include: a resolution opposing federal aid to education, a resolution noting the importance of water control and asking NACO to have a competent engineer report on the problem at the mid-winter session, a resolution asking continued tax exemption at all levels for municipal and city bond issues, and a resolution commending columnist David Lawrence for "forthright writing" in defense of the Constitution, states rights and local government.

Other resolutions may be presented by NACO committees on civil defense, welfare and federal real property.

Among speakers addressing the convention Tuesday were Rep. William Cramer (R-Fla), Robert E. Merriam, assistant director, Bureau of the Budget, Washington, D.C., and Hugh Gallagher, assistant administrator, Federal Civil Defense Administration.

Cox Praised In Senate By Russell

Constitution Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, July 16 — Following is text of Sen. Russell's remarks before the Senate on the death of Gov. James M. Cox:

"Mr. President, the news of the passing of Former Gov. James M. Cox of Ohio will, I am sure, be received with sadness throughout the entire nation.

"The remarkable career of Gov. Cox is in the best tradition of the United States. There is no other land, to my knowledge, under the canopy of heaven that offers the opportunity which enables one to start without any resources—indeed, without the advantages of a formal education—and achieve the position in the life of the greatest nation on earth that was won by Gov. Cox.

"PECULIAR SADNESS"

"We in Georgia have a peculiar interest and feel a peculiar sadness at this news, because of his affiliation and association with our state. Several years ago he purchased two papers in Atlanta among the largest newspapers in the Southeast, and he has operated them from that hour until the time of his death.

"Mr. President, as I understand, Gov. Cox was a poor boy. He never had the privilege of attending college, but he made a great success in personal business and accumulated a large fortune.

"Not only was he successful in the business field but he made great contributions to the field of statecraft at a time when members of the Democratic Party were being mowed down over the nation outside the Southern States, the traditional stronghold of Democracy.

NOMINEE

"Gov. Cox was elected to Congress and three times a governor of the State of Ohio. He was the nominee of the Democratic Party for the exalted office of the president of the United States in 1920.

"He was nominated at a period when all resentment in the pent-up motions that had followed in the wake of World War I created a backwash that made it impossible for any Democratic candidate to win.

"He kept faith, and made a great campaign. Had he been elected, as I believe he would have been in a normal time in our history. He would have made a great president of the United States.

"His wise counsel, his devoted patriotism, his valuable contribution to the political life of our land will be badly missed in the days that lie ahead."

to be a man of broad vision, great talent and earnest dedication."

In Ohio, Gov. C. William O'Neill said of Gov. Cox that "his great contributions for good will live forever. His wise counsel and valuable influence will be sorely missed by his legion of friends in the whole nation." He said Ohio "has lost one of her truly great men in the passing of Gov. James M. Cox," and added, "I extend my sincere sympathy to his family."

Atlanta's Mayor William B. Hartsfield said, "Gov. Cox was a great Democrat and American, and a true friend to our community. I knew him well and counted him a great friend. He was a forceful man, and I think we've lost a great man in the 'old school' of journalism.

"He was ahead of his years in the field of international relations. His early views on the League of Nations, as well as a great number of his other ideas, have been justified by time."

Gov. Cox's newspaper holdings included The Dayton Daily News, Dayton Journal Herald, The Springfield Morning Sun and The Daily News; The Miami Daily News and The Journal and The Constitution.

He also owned WHIO and WHIO-TV in Dayton, WSB and WSV-TV in Atlanta, and together with the Knight interests operated WCKT and WCKR radio and television, Miami.

The Cox family announced that a private burial service would be held at the Woodland Cemetery in Dayton Wednesday. Afterward a memorial service will be held in the Christ Episcopal Church in Dayton. The family requested that flowers be omitted.

Gov. Cox is survived by his widow, the former Margaretta Blair of Chicago; four children, James M. Jr., Dayton; John, New Rochelle, N.Y.; Mrs. James Glover, Honolulu, and Mrs. Robert Chambers of Atlanta, and five grandchildren.

Sen. Bricker (R-Ohio) announced Gov. Cox's death in the Senate "with great regret." He said Gov. Cox made great contributions to Ohio and to the nation and was "one of the great newspaper editors of our country."

"He wrote for himself a name in his country that will long be remembered," Sen. Lausche (D-Ohio) told his colleagues.

ABILITY AND INTEGRITY

The former Ohio governor and 1920 Democratic presidential nominee was praised by Republican Leader Knowland (Calif) as an "outstanding governor" and a leader of "great ability and integrity."

Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex), the majority leader, joined in the tributes.

"In the death of James M. Cox this nation has lost a respected elder statesman," Johnson said.

"Mr. Cox, who passed away last night, led our party in the tradition of the eminent statesman, Woodrow Wilson.

PERMANENT PRINCIPLES

"He was defeated, but lived to see the principles for which he stood become a permanent part of American policy.

"We all mourn the passing of this man. A chapter of our history has now closed."

On the House floor, Speaker Rayburn (D-Tex) said that in Gov. Cox's death "I feel I have lost one of my closest personal friends throughout the years, and one of my closest political friends."

Rayburn said Gov. Cox was "a magnificent candidate" in the 1920 presidential race, but various factions were against him. Among them, Rayburn said, was the U.S. turndown of membership in the League of Nations "very much to his regret and to his sorrow."

Rep. Henderson Lanham said "It is with deep regret that I have learned of the death of former governor of Ohio, James M. Cox.

"As the publisher of Georgia's two largest newspapers, The Atlanta Journal and The Atlanta Constitution, he has left the imprint upon the state of his social and political philosophies."

NOTHING LITTLE OR PETTY

Rep. Clarence L. Brown (R-Ohio) said Gov. Cox had been a good personal friend even though he was a member of the opposite party.

Brown recounted that he once served as lieutenant governor of Ohio when Gov. Cox was governor. "I've never known James M. Cox to do a little or a petty thing," he said.

Rep. McCormack (Mass), the House Democratic leader, called Gov. Cox "one of the strongest Democrats in the political history of our party." McCormack added: "Greater still, he was a great American."

Paul M. Butler, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, said in Washington the death of Gov. Cox meant that "our country has lost a respected elder statesman, and the Democratic party has lost a wise counselor . . . Gov. Cox conducted a vigorous, dignified and thoughtful campaign for the presidency. Although he was defeated, he lived to see the principles for which he fought vindicated on the pages of history. . . ."

MRS. ROOSEVELT SADDENED

In New York, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt said she was "very sad" to hear of his death, and added:

"I remember him as my husband's running mate and had always had a great respect and admiration for him."

James Farley, former postmaster general, said:

"I was grieved to learn of the death of Gov. Cox. I knew him intimately and well for many years. I was the beneficiary of his advice and wise counsel while chairman of the Democratic National Committee. He was a truly fine American—a great statesman. He was a most successful publisher who made many fine contributions."

Georgia Role Of Cox Cited By Talmadge

Constitution Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, July 16—Sen. Herman Talmadge paid the following tribute to former Gov. James M. Cox in the Senate Tuesday:

"Mr. President, I desire to associate myself with the remarks of my distinguished colleague, Mr. Russell, and also the senator from Florida, Mr. Holland, about the passing of Gov. Cox.

"His life was certainly a success story in the best American tradition. From humble origin he served several terms in Congress. He served three times as governor of the great state of Ohio. I believe he was the first three-term governor that state ever had.

"He was the candidate of the Democratic party for the presidency of the United States in the 1920 election.

"He purchased two of Georgia's great daily newspapers in Atlanta, and had been an integral part of the life of Georgia since that time.

"On many occasions he visited in the city of Atlanta in the performance of his duties as publisher of these two great newspapers and was widely known in my state. Members of his family lived there. Others visited there frequently.

"The news of his passing will be a great shock to the people of our state.

"The nation has lost a great leader. All of us are sorry at the news of his passing."

He Loved This Great Country, Rayburn Says in Cox Tribute

Constitution Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, D.C., July 16—Speaker Sam Rayburn made the following statement on the floor of the U.S. House of Representatives Tuesday:

"I desire to join in (the) tribute to Gov. Cox. In his passing I feel that I have lost one of my close personal friends throughout the years and one of my closest political friends. He was the candidate of our party, the Democratic Party, in 1920, after having been governor of his state for three terms. He was a distinguished member of the House of Representatives. He made a magnificent campaign in 1920 but things went against him. We had just come out of a great war. Many people were distressed. The League of Nations was the principal issue. He took that side. His opponent took the other side. The League of Nations was ultimately defeated, very much to his sorrow. One of the greatest political writers I have ever known followed Governor Cox in his campaign in 1920 and he gave this estimate of him as a campaigner. 'He is the campaigner superb: he is the best I ever saw or heard.' But his plea did not make a popular appeal to the American people and he went into private life where he really served in a great fashion, not only his native state but all of us throughout the length and breadth of this great country of ours that Jim Cox loved with a passion and always desired deep in his heart to serve, to see that the great institutions of this, the mightiest, the greatest and in my opinion, the best government that ever existed among men, may be perpetuated for many, many years."

fields of blood. . . . I am in favor of going in."

When he lost, he avoided Washington, even when his running mate in 1920, Franklin D. Roosevelt, urged him to come here after 1932 and carry on the fight. He would fight, he said, where the battle was hardest, among his friends and neighbors in the Middle West, and this he did for two long generations.

This is the part of the struggle that was overlooked in the Congress today. For all the farewells were the politician who lost the presidency, whereas the real story of Gov. Cox was of the editor and printer's devil who stayed the course.

Through the years, he and his faithful editor, Walter Locke, fought the battle for internationalist policies under difficult circumstances. He was surrounded in southeastern Ohio by the three most isolationist newspaper cities in that part of the country: Cincinnati and Columbus, Ohio, and Indianapolis, Ind. He was often at odds with his own party during the Roosevelt era on domestic economic policies, yet on foreign policy he stood firmly for the collective security principle which he pioneered after the death of Woodrow Wilson.

It is symbolic that he lost consciousness for the last time in his own newsroom. Last week, he came to the office as usual, despite his 87 years, walked into the newsroom and collapsed. This was the end of his long journey, and it is significant that only the Ohio legislators emphasized today, not that he was a politician, but that he was a newspaperman.

With the passing of Gov. Cox, the era of the great political press giants of the first half of the century has closed. William Randolph Hearst of San Francisco and New York, Col. Robert R. McCormick and Col. Frank Knox of Chicago, William Allen White of Emporia, Josephus Daniels of Raleigh—all are gone.

So are many others who fought alongside or against Cox in the great debate over the destiny of the Republic in its relations with other nations after World War I—Adolph S. Ochs of The New York Times, Joseph Pulitzer of The World and The St. Louis Post-Dispatch, Col. Robert Bingham of The Louisville Courier-Journal, Joseph Patterson of The New York Daily News, Louis Nieman of The Milwaukee Journal, Edward W. Scripps of the Scripps-Howard papers and many others.

The difference with Cox was that he lived to see the culmination of his fight, and also build a great organization to carry it on after he was gone.

Gov. Cox, Left, Poses With William Jennings Bryan

Friends Pay Tribute to Gov. Cox

Tributes to Gov. James M. Cox poured in Tuesday from his friends all over the nation. Following are some of the messages received:

Bobby Jones, lawyer, famous golfer: "I always considered Governor Cox as a real good friend. And, I was of him. He was a great man. I think he had the most insatiable thirst for information and the longest and most accurate memory of anyone I ever knew. He was an ardent golfer and a good one. He certainly led a most distinguished and useful life and I extend my sincere sympathy to young Jim and the rest of the family."

Robert F. Maddox, financier, former mayor of Atlanta: "I knew Governor Cox personally and with a great deal of pleasure in his friendship. I found him a most amiable man, and had the pleasure of seeing him often on his visits to Atlanta, his adopted city. I deeply appreciate his services to our community. We were about the same age, and reminiscence was one of our special gratifications whenever we met."

John O. Chiles, president of Adams-Cates Co., Realtors, prominent in Atlanta's business and social life: "Not only this community but America as well has lost one of its great citizens. It was my proud privilege to have known him intimately since he adopted Atlanta as his second home. I have a deep sense of personal loss."

Harrison Jones, former chairman of the board of the Coca-Cola Co. and now a director and member of the executive committee of the company: "Governor Cox was a stalwart statesman of the old school who saw the right and ever fought for it. He was a constructive force nationally and in his own state, and used his newspapers as swords for the betterment of every community and to strike down wrong. He will be missed. I am one who greatly admired him."

Robert Snodgrass, Republican national committeeman from Georgia: "I was tremendously saddened by the news of the governor's death. He represented an era that is passing and I wonder if my generation has the force and determination of the group whose passing is represented by the death of Gov. Cox. He exerted a great influence on the development of the country. While I differed politically with the governor, I had a great deal of respect and admiration for him as a man."

• • •

Rep. Phil Landrum of Jasper: "I regret the passing of James M. Cox. He was a great American who made many contributions to the business and political world. He was respected by both political parties."

Dean Raimundo de Ovies, dean emeritus of the Cathedral of St. Philip: "First I was struck by Governor Cox's keen intellect. The next thing that impressed me after meeting him was his definite purpose for his life. While I could not agree with some of his theories, I could find no disagreement with his integrity. To me he was exceedingly kind. His death is a shock and a realization of loss."

O. C. Aderhold, president, University of Georgia: "Georgia and the South are grateful for the leadership provided by Gov. Cox. Through his newspapers he promoted the improvement of education at all levels and for all ages. The death of such a man is a great loss to the nation."

• • •

Rep. Henderson Lanham of Rome: "I regret to learn of Governor Cox's death. He was a great Democrat and a great American. His business interests identified him with Georgia. As publisher of The Atlanta Journal and The Atlanta Constitution, his political and social philosophies have left a deep imprint on the state."

Rep. John J. Flynt Jr. of Griffin: "The death of Governor Cox marks the passing from the American scene of a dynamic newspaperman and publisher. He was a man of powerful driving force and made substantial contributions to progress in many fields. I extend my sympathy to his family."

• • •

Rep. John L. Pilcher of Meigs: "I believe that Governor Cox was a great newspaperman, a great Democrat and a great American. This nation will be poorer for his passing."

• • •

Mrs. Howard Ross Hanson, president and treasurer of the Atlanta Biltmore Hotel: "I loved Governor Cox and I loved his wife. They were charming and gracious people. They were both great additions to the beauty and progress of Atlanta. They were our neighbors and friends, and we shall miss him sorely."

Ben Fortson, Georgia secretary of state: "I think he was one of the great men of the country. He was a great citizen, not only in the newspaper field, but also in political life. He was always interested in the progress in this country and building the economy of the country to its highest peak. And he always used his newspapers for public service."

Joseph E. Birnie, president of the Bank of Georgia: "Governor Cox was a great influence in the newspaper publishing field, and in the Democratic party. He will long be remembered. My acquaintance with him was brief, but I was greatly impressed with his strength of character."

W. A. Sutton, director of the Georgia Agricultural Extension Service and Georgia 4-H Clubs leader: "I feel very deeply about this loss. Governor Cox's complete support of George C. Biggers' interest in 4-H Club work in our region proved a lasting asset. We recall especially the Atlanta newspapers' sponsorship of 4-H scholarships and the annual banquet during the 4-H state congresses, as well as the presentation of the cottage at the Rock Eagle 4-H Clubs Center, in Putnam County.

"Governor Cox's Georgia newspapers have always been most generous in supporting the teaching of agriculture, of home-making and advancing 4-H Club work in news and editorial columns."

William V. Crowley, president, Fulton National Bank: "I was genuinely fond of Governor Cox. When I was a banker in Miami in 1924-1927, I got to know him well. I recall that on the golf course he apeared interested in other people, and had a great knack of getting information out of them."

Dr. Goodrich C. White, retiring president of Emory University: "Governor James M. Cox was a firm friend of education in Georgia and wherever his influence was felt throughout the United States. I join with his admirers everywhere in expressing sorrow at his passing."

• • •

Dr. James Ross McCain, president emeritus of Agnes Scott College: "I have been tremendously pleased with the high standard of journalism Governor Cox has developed and encouraged in Atlanta. He exemplified the spirit of the freedom of the press in identifying each of his newspapers with the best interests of the community in which it appeared. I found him personally a charming and friendly man."

Robert W. Woodruff: "Governor Cox was my friend and his passing is a great personal loss. Professionally he left the imprint of his personality on many phases of human endeavor—particularly business, politics, public service. He will be remembered as a truly great American."

Archie Lindsey, chairman of the Fulton County Commission: "In the death of Governor Cox, Ohio and the national Democratic organization have lost an outstanding statesman and newspaper editor. Except for a sharp turn of fate in 1920, Governor Cox undoubtedly would have been elected to the highest office in our great country. Fulton County and its people express their sincere sympathy to the Atlanta newspapers in the loss of their great leader."

Richard H. Rich, president of Rich's, Inc.: "We have known Governor Cox well since his interests have brought him to Atlanta, and have found him a remarkable man. I feel I can speak too for Frank H. Neely, the chairman of our board, who at the moment is on a tour of the Pacific. Mr. Neely and I felt Governor Cox had a great grasp and understanding of world affairs. His death is a loss not only to Dayton and Miami and Atlanta, but to the entire nation as well."

Charles H. Jagels, president of Davison-Paxon Co.: "I knew Governor Cox only in his later years mainly as a publisher and as a man. To me he possessed a tremendous vitality and a never-ending curiosity, which was remarkable in a man of his years. The record proves that in his prime he was one of America's greatest and most versatile citizens."

• • •

Rep. Prince H. Preston of Statesboro: "The passing of James M. Cox, ex-governor of Ohio and 1920 standard-bearer of the Democratic Party, removed from the national scene a distinguished patriot and a staunch Democrat. From humble beginnings, James M. Cox achieved outstanding success in the fields of journalism and broadcasting, but millions will remember him for his determined fight in the 1920 presidential campaign for the ideals of Woodrow Wilson, and in the years that followed as a devoted adherent to the principles of the Democratic Party that he served so faithfully and well."

Rep. Paul Brown of Elberton: "In the passing of Governor James M. Cox, the nation has lost one of its most outstanding and useful citizens; one who has served well his country in various capacities as a member of Congress, as governor, as a newspaperman and in the radio and television fields."

James V. Carmichael, president of Scripto, Inc.: "I am greatly distressed. Governor Cox has been one of the greatest forces of good in our state. He was a real personal friend. A man of his leadership in all state and national affairs is going to be missed by everyone. He never compromised the truth and defended it furiously."

Robert Arnold of Covington, chairman of the State Board of Regents: "Governor Cox at all times was interested in the development of our educational system in Georgia and he has freely lent the use of his newspapers toward its development. The Democratic Party has lost one of its old-time stalwarts."

• • •

Francis Marion Bird, president, Atlanta Chamber of Commerce: "Nothing I can say would overstate my admiration for Governor Cox. He was a real American who started at the bottom and rose to the top of the ladder.

"He was the greatest American of our day, in my estimation. As far back as 1920 he was of top stature in the nation, being chosen the Democratic candidate for the presidency. In retrospect we can see that he was right, and if he had been elected and his views on the League of Nations had prevailed, much of the grief the world has suffered might have been avoided."

Ben J. Massell, real estate developer: "I talked with Governor Cox many times in my business dealings with him, including purchase of the old Atlanta Journal building. I was greatly impressed by his simplicity of manner. He was amused when I told him that I started business in the same spot where his office is located in the new Journal-Constitution building. Atlanta and America has lost an outstanding figure."

John L. Conner, president of Southern Federal Savings and Loan Assn: "Having come in contact with Governor Cox as a neighbor, during his part-time residence in Atlanta, I came to admire and respect him greatly for his outstanding ability and his business and political convictions."

Devereaux McClatchey, president, Atlanta Board of Education "He rendered unusual and outstanding service to the entire nation, and sought to bring progress in every constructive work. We feel great sorrow in his passing."

Luther S. Tatum, president Atlanta Kiwanis Club: "Atlanta sustained a great loss in the death of Governor Cox. He exerted a great influence in the molding of public opinion."

Miss Ira Jarrell, superintendent, Atlanta schools: "Contributions made by Governor Cox were immeasurable. His influence in affairs of government and community life brought progress. His death is a great loss to Atlanta."

Jack Adair, realtor, president Capital City Club: "Governor Cox was a great citizen of Atlanta and Georgia. His counsel was sought on many occasions in matters of great importance. I personally feel a great sense of loss, since I knew him and his family quite well. His passing is a great loss, not only to Atlanta but to the nation as well."

Ed A. Gilliam, Atlanta Board of Aldermen: "Through his leadership in the newspaper field, Governor Cox made a wonderful contribution to this community. His leadership also brought progress to our nation. His death represents an irreparable loss to Atlanta and to the entire country."

• • •

John A. White, senior member, Atlanta Board of Aldermen: "The death of Governor Cox brings a terrible loss, not only to the city of Atlanta, to which he was such an inspiration, but also to the entire South and the nation. He was a grand man, and truly a national leader."

Salem Loses A Round To Meyers

Judge Thomas L. Camp dismissed Tuesday a warrant brought by attorney Joe Salem against liquor store operator Lee Meyers charging him with attempting to run him down with an automobile.

Salem immediately announced he intends to take the matter before the Fulton County grand jury.

The Fulton Civil Court judge, following the end of the commitment hearing which began Monday, said it was his duty to decide if there was sufficient evidence to hold Meyers for the grand jury.

"CAN GO TO JURY"

"I'm going to discharge the defendant. If you think I'm wrong, you can go to the grand jury," he told Salem.

"We do intend to take it to the grand jury," Salem told a reporter later.

Meyers, during the hearing, denied there was anything whatsoever to Salem's charge that he attempted to run him down June 26 with his car on Walton street at Fairlie street.

Meyers said that as he approached Salem, the attorney was "ambling" across the street, reading a newspaper. He said he allowed Salem to get across the street and thought nothing of the incident.

MEYERS CONFIRMED

Louis Fochs of Daytona Beach, Fla., who handles a linen supply business for Meyers there, said he was with Meyers in the car on the day of the incident and confirmed Meyers' version of it.

Salem and Frank A. Bowers Jr., an attorney who appeared as a witness, contended Meyers' car accelerated speed as it approached Salem in the crosswalk. Salem said he had to run to get out of its path.

Osgood Williams, attorney representing Salem, said the contention of fact in the assault with intent to murder case presented "questions of fact for a jury."

Veterans Service Considers Ending Publicist's Contract

Veterans Service Director Pete Wheeler said Tuesday he was considering dropping the department's contract with the Sid Williams public relations firm.

The action is under consideration because of a recent reduction in federal funds, Wheeler declared.

He denied a published report that Williams' firm was being dropped on orders from the governor's brother, R. A. (Cheney) Griffin, because of Williams' closeness to Lt. Gov. Ernest Vandiver.

"I haven't had any communication from the governor on it," Wheeler stated.

The Veterans Service director said Williams' firm has been employed for a number of years to prepare news releases, booklets, annual reports and like material.

"We are in the process of trying to make up a $1,200 a month cut in our budget from the federal government," Wheeler said.

Dropping Williams' contract is one of the ways the department might meet the cutback, he added. added.

Williams, publisher of several weekly newspapers in Georgia as well as a publicist, was not available for comment. Williams' firm has public relations contracts with other state departments.

Here's How It Feels When Atom Bursts

By MARJORY RUTHERFORD

WANT TO KNOW how it feels to be near an A-bomb explosion?

The heat is intense; a sheet of paper held in front of your face will burst into flame.

You can "practically see through your arm from the light—the same sort of sensation you get from looking at the sun through closed eyelids."

The ground heaves under you, and you think of earthquakes.

There is the tremendous "shock of the sound when it reaches you . . . so darned much dust that gas masks are mandatory for breathing."

THAT GRAPHIC FIRST-HAND DESCRIPTION comes from a young Atlanta officer who was in a six-foot trench only 4,200 yards from a recent Nevada test explosion more than twice as powerful as Hiroshima and Nagasaki bombings.

Lt. Roger B. Marx

Second Lt. Roger M. Marx, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Boyer Marx of 256 Brighton Rd., NE, is stationed at Camp Desert Rock, Nev., with the 526th Ordnance Co. His outfit maintains the heavy armored motors needed for Uncle Sam's summer series of nuclear tests.

The Atlantan described sensations of his first A-bomb tests in a recent letter to his parents here.

With a nice understatement Lt. Marx reported he has been "suitably impressed with atomic-type explosions."

He was as close as Department of Army regulations allow to the last test—"about as close as I'd like to get to any of them," he added wryly.

THE ATLANTAN HAS A TIP for any person seeking protection in a bombing.

"One of the most remarkable things I've seen," he wrote, "is that intense as the heat from the explosion is, any sort of material between you and the heat will protect you—even a sheet of paper held in front of your face if you're lying on the ground. The paper will burst into flame, but as the heat is instantaneous, that's all that would burn."

Servicemen connected with the atomic exercises often feel they are in "a dream-world," Lieutenant Marx declared. Sometimes they spend "nights out in the forward area waiting for a shot . . . have it postponed, then work the next day without getting any sleep, then go back out again the next night."

He had a rather grim postscript: "I have learned a lot about nuclear weapons, their effects, and defense and protection against them. And who can guess as to whether this information won't be needed in civilian life?"

Number of Fires Is Sharply Decreased

NEW YORK, July 16 (AP)—New York City had 5,000 less fires in 1956 then the previous year, but still rang in more than 44,500 alarms. Public cooperation and increased inspection were credited with the decrease, the third in as many years.

Forest Park Surveys Water

A survey to determine Forest Park's water needs for the next 10 years will begin immediately under direction of an Atlanta consulting engineer firm.

Meanwhile, restrictions on the use of city water are remaining intact, City Manager G. Frank Hill said.

The water survey will be conducted by Wiedeman & Singleton. The results will be projected on a 10-year basis.

'Bell, Book' Casts Spell on First Nighters

A captivating comedy about love and witchcraft cast a pleasant spell over Atlanta Arena Playhouse firstnighters here Tuesday.

John Van Druten's "Bell, Book and Candle" is an excellent vehicle for the intimate type of theater offered by this repertory group. Under Stanley Tackney's direction, the sparkling, swiftly-paced play added up to one of the best all-around productions seen in the Arena Playhouse this season.

Personable leading man Robert Dane and Ann Wickham, who plays a modern-day witch, made the most of their starring roles. James Lentz shone in a small part, and comedienne Sue Baxter and Paul Eichel won applause for auspicious professional debuts.

A well-executed set and some "magic effects" deserve special mention.

Performances are scheduled for the rest of this week at the Arena Playhouse in the Atlanta Woman's Club daily through Sunday at 8:30 p.m., except for Saturday. Saturday performances will be given at 7 and 9:30 p.m., with a Wednesday matinee set for 2:30 p.m. — MARJORY RUTHERFORD.

An armed bandit robbed a Columbus sports promoter of $1,200 while the victim was "raiding the icebox" early Tuesday morning.

Ward said he opened the door and was confronted by a pistol-toting intruder who told him, "Fred, I don't want to hurt you but I want your money. Give it to me or I'll kill you."

Ward said he gave the man his billfold containing $1,200 and the bandit fled to his car and drove away.

He told police he had seen the man before but did not remember where or when and was unable to furnish police with his name.

3rd Army Band Plays to Inmates At Penitentiary

The U.S. Third Army Band from Fort McPherson presented its annual concert to the inmates of the Federal Penitentiary in Atlanta Tuesday evening.

The band, conducted by Warrant Officer Earl Mays, is composed of approximately 75 persons. The musical program consisted of light classics and popular numbers.

Warden Fred Wilkinson said about 2,600 men were in the audience.

According to Wilkinson, the warden's office tries to arrange outside entertainment for the prisoners whenever possible, usually about every six weeks, and that both the inmates and the prison officials appreciate this occasional link with the outside world.

Tobacco Belt Humming ---It's Market Time Again

for the most it is at least 50 per cent of their cash any time of the year and having it in hand, even briefly, is a happy, heartening occasion.

This year's tobacco crop will be smaller than in any recent years—due to a 20 per cent allotment cut by the Department of Agriculture and excessive rainfall in March. The quality of the leaf remains the same, most farmers agree, and for that reason they're hoping the price will be up from the average of $43 to $45 a hundred pounds of last year.

The hue and cry over lung cancer has brought about certain changes in the growing of tobacco.

Larry T. Torrance, the county agent at Douglas, explained it:

"For years buyers on the Georgia market have been mostly interested in a light, mild tobacco," Torrence said. "We tried to provide it and a thin, lemon-colored leaf brought the best prices. But since the cancer scare has popularized filtered cigarettes the demand is for heavier, stronger tobacco. We've been spacing out the plants to thicken the leaves, topping them more and using sucker control. This year farmers expect to get better prices for deeper orange-colored, almost red tobacco."

Buyers and auctioneers are streaming into the tobacco towns, setting up the complex organization through which tobacco is sold the instant the auctioneer gives the signal and is swiftly moved from the floor of the warehouse, beginning the journey to the North Carolina factories. Warehousemen have spent days hiring schoolteachers and bookkeeprs to work in the office, and high school and college lads to move the great "sheets" of tobacco from farmers' trucks, through the scales and onto the warehouse floor.

Meanwhile, on the farm the entire family and as many of the neighbors and extra hands as can be recruited are busy cropping the green leaves, "stringing" them on poles for firing in the great barns, and then packing the cured leaves into the firm, carefully patterned circular mounds.

"When we are putting in at our place," explained Mrs. Patton, "everybody works, children and all. I usually have to spend part of the day cooking dinner for the hands. That means frying four or five chickens, fixing a lot of vegetables and having some cured meat besides, as well as a few pies and cakes. When dinner's over I come to the barn and work with the rest."

In Douglas a local minister will "bless" the tobacco before the auction begins. There will be a preliminary program in Statesboro, but most towns, like Nashville, begin when the auctioneer lifts his eyes to the clock and says to the buyers assembled before him, "Ready, boys?"

Nepal Asks Anti-Red To Form New Cabinet

KATHMANDU, Nepal, July 16 (UP)—King Mahendra has asked a leftist political leader outspoken in his criticism of Russia and Communist China to form a new coalition cabinet.

Premier Tanka Prasad Acharya resigned last Sunday and Dr. K.I. Sing was called on to present a new government to the King by July 29.

DeKalb's Toney Forfeits Bond in Recorder's Court

DeKalb County Commissioner James W. Toney failed to appear in Decatur Recorder's Court Monday night to face charges of disorderly conduct.

City records svhow Toney forfeited $18.50 bond by failing to appear before Judge William E. Zachary. He had been arrested Saturday morning by Decatur policemen as he was leaving the Decatur City Hall, where he had gone to post bond for a friend, Sgt. S. T. Maddox said.

Sgt. Maddox said in his official report Toney was arrested when he began cursing loudly upon leaving the City Hall. Officers other than Maddox signing court records were J. J. Knight, B. E. Cowart and Richard Bailey.

He Gives Up Pistol, Badge To Be Monk

DETROIT, July 16 (AP)—A young policeman, perplexed over man's troubles and tragedies, is putting aside his gun and badge to become a monk.

A year and a half as a patrolman convinced John W. Weglarz, 24, he said, of the great number of people who need religion.

So Weglarz is to join the Holy Ghost Brotherhood, a Roman Catholic missionary order, Aug. 1.

"Until I became a policeman," he said today, "I did not realize what was going on in the world around me.

"But after riding around in a scout car and coming in contact with many different types of people, you begin to wonder."

As a policeman since Jan. 1, 1956, Weglarz has handled almost every assignment, among them the lonely night beat, hospital detail and holdup squad.

Lint Miller Dies at 66; Former Highway Chief

LAKELAND, Ga., July 16 (AP)—W. Lint Miller, physically thrown from the office of state highway chairman in a dispute with former Gov. E. D. Rivers nearly 20 years ago, died today in a hospital at nearby Valdosta.

He was 66 and had been in failing health for several months.

Miller was president of the Farmers and Merchants Bank and a prominent South Georgia Methodist layman. Surviving him are his widow and three sons, Mose Miller of Lakeland; Willis Miller, Valdosta; and Dr. John Miller, Augusta.

The Georgia Supreme Court upheld lower court decrees restoring Miller to the highway chairmanship in a bitter legal fight starting in 1939 over control of the highway board.

Rivers had charged the chairman with using the office to further a campaign for governor. The latter countered that the governor was fired because his department broke up an asphalt monopoly controlled by Dr. Hiram W. Evans, former imperial wizard of the Ku Klux Klan.

Miller was forcibly ejected when he defied an ouster order by Rivers.

In the attendant litigation court citations were issued against Gov. Marvin Griffin, then a gubernatorial aide, and three capitol employes for ejecting Miller. Each was given a 20-day sentence for or a $200 fine and the contempt convictions were upheld by the State Supreme Court.

Miller obtained a federal injunction but was barred from office by national guardsmen ordered out by Rivers to "prevent confusion and disturbance." U.S. District Judge Bascom Deaver in Macon directed the arrest of the governor on the grounds that he had defied state and federal court orders by the use of military force.

The governor was arrested by a U.S. marshal as he attended a Georgia Education Assn. convention at the Macon city auditorium.

The contempt proceedings were stayed by the Circuit Court of Appeals, however, when it appeared that the state courts were about to settle the legal dispute.

Miller and Rivers were fellow townsmen, both from Lakeland.

TEACHERS, CONSULTANT TALK OVER SCIENCE EDUCATION PROBLEMS

Miss Louise Stakely, Atlanta; Mrs. Nina Kennedy, Statesboro, Dr. Malvina Trussell, FSU; H. G. Rowe, Carrollton; Paul Guptill, Atlanta

Home Economics Loses to Science To Top Interests of Educator

By AGNES GAINES

The outlook for women in the field of science, once regarded as strictly a man's profession, is becoming better and better, according to Dr. Malvina Trussell, professor of science education at Florida State University.

On a recent visit to Atlanta to take part in the science education workshop being held at Emory University, the native Georgian qualified this statement by saying that the field of science education was better suited for women.

Dr. Trussell got her B.S. degree in home economics from GSCW, but her science courses fascinated her so much she lost all interest in home ec and went on to get her master's and Ph.D. degrees from Cornell in biological science.

"I was interested in physics when I first started," she said, but I knew I'd never be able to go far in that, since I was a woman."

CONSULTANT

Dr. Trussell acted as consultant for the group, which is trying to promote better science education in Georgia elementary and high schools.

"I'm trying to look at the program objectively to see if it would work in actual practice," the friendly gray-haired woman said.

She is well qualified for such a job, since she taught in Fulton County schools for several years and at Georgia Teachers College for 23 years.

The workshop is planning a science curriculum for Georgia schools for kindergarten through the 12th grade. The program will be tried out next year in 25 or 30 pilot schools throughout the state.

The Emory group is working in connection with a similar one at Atlanta University, of which Ed Weaver is in charge. Both groups are sponsored by the State Board of Education and the State Department of Education.

TOO HARD?

Dr. W. B. Baker, professor of Biology at Emory, is in charge of the Emory workshop.

"The first thing we want to find out," he commented, "is why a child's interest in science becomes deadened by the time he reaches high school."

One reason for this, he maintains, is that most students regard science as too hard for the average high school pupil—something for the brains. Another reason is that there is too much duplication of basic courses in elementary and high school. The student feels that he is getting the same thing every year.

As one high school student expressed it: "I've been taking the same health course since I was in the second grade.

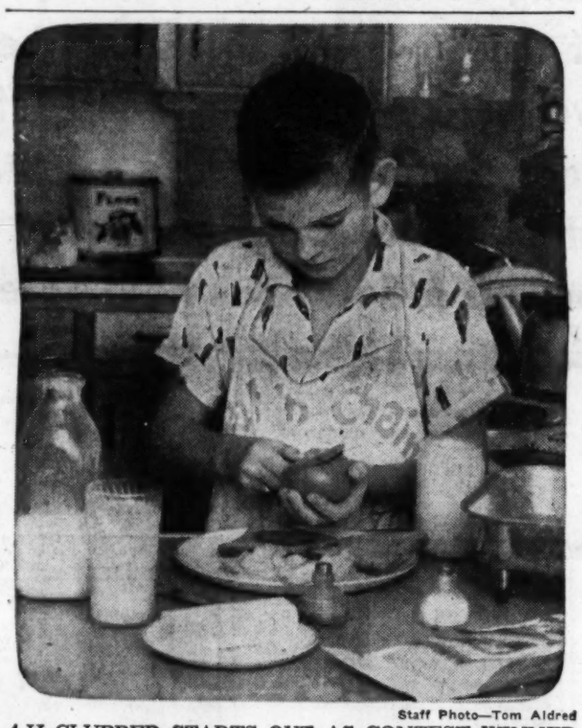

The new program, which will be developed within the framework of the present Georgia curriculum, will make every science concept and principle available to the child in elementary and high schools.

All the new ideas in science, especially in atomic energy, will be incorporated into the program, which will stress the atomic age.

"We feel that we've been talking down to the students on atomic energy. They have been getting information from other sources, especially television," Dr. Baker said.

"It's up to us to challenge this knowledge he already has and to interest him further in it."

Twenty teachers were selected from Georgia schools for the workshop on the basis of experience, education and locality.

4-H CLUBBER STARTS OUT AS CONTEST WINNER

Don Reeves Dramatized a Snack, Won First Place in Fulton County

4-H Winner Dramatizes Between-Meal Snacks

By JEANNE HIGGINS DEAVER

An 11-year-old boy doesn't have much time for puttering around in the kitchen. And Don Reeves from Roswell is no exception.

Nevertheless, he's the first place Junior 4-H clubber in Fulton County in the food category.

Don, who recently completed his first year in the 4-H Club, finished eight projects during the year. But the one he chose to dramatize in competition was a new category for boys in the club — between-meal snacks.

His next move is to Rock Eagle 4-H Center in August to compete in the district achievement contest.

Don is a typical 11-year-old who is busy even when he's sitting still. And his thoughts turn more often than not to the school band in winter and to baseball in summer. Yet, he took a basic seven chart in hand and worked out a speech and a demonstration on his idea of what a between-meal snack for a boy should be like. And it was good enough for first place.

SANDWICH FEATURE

Don's snack featured a bacon, lettuce and tomato sandwich on whole wheat bread. The slices of bread were spread with butter.

"I had learned that butter keeps the bread from getting soggy," said Don.

After studying some material he was given on nutrition, Don decided that a sandwich made of two vegetables and a meat on buttered, whole wheat bread came as close to being balanced, nutritionally, as any snack can be. He added a glass of milk to be sure.

Other winners in the junior division who will go to Rock Eagle are Richard Patterson Jr., Fairburn, in livestock conservation; Roger Corley, Palmetto, in poultry; Joe Haralson, Palmetto, in tractor maintenance; Barry Mansell, Roswell, in forestry; Richard Phillips, Alpharetta, in electricity; Jimmy Hamrick, Duluth, in talent; George Polatty Jr., Roswell, in public speaking; Richard Campbell, Fairburn, in health, and Herman Teal Jr., Palmetto, in gardening.

SENIOR WINNERS

TO WED GEORGIAN

Miss Robin Hudgins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ward Hudgins of Franklin, Tenn., will wed Rex Mallory Turner Jr., son of the Rex M. Turners Sr. of Thomaston, on Saturday, Aug. 31, at St. Philip's Church in Franklin. She attends Alabama Polytechnic Institute where she belongs to the Tri Delta sorority. Mr. Turner attends the same college and is a member of Sigma Chi fraternity.

West End Club Plans Meetings

The West End Woman's Club will meet Wednesday, July 24, at 1 p.m. The board will meet at 11:15 a.m. and a covered dish luncheon will be served at noon.

Mrs. Virginia Crosby of Marietta will talk about her trip to England. Miss Ellen Lee will play the piano.

BLOND TANNED DANCER KEEPS ON HER TOES

Miss Dran Seitz Appearing at Theater-Under-the-Stars

Blonde Dancer Versatile

By ELIZABETH MORGAN

Miss Dran Seitz, a sprightly young blonde who usually plays theater roles with her identical twin, is dancing on her own twinkle toes this summer in Theater Under-the-Stars.

Twin sister Tani is seeing European sights while Dran works through a grueling summer stock schedule which lasts until October.

Actually, dancing plays a minor part in the busy blonde's contribution to Atlanta's outdoor theater. Playing leading roles in "Plain and Fancy" and "Carousel," Miss Seitz has left a versatile, talented impression on local show-goers.

VERY CLOSE

Of the sister relationship, Miss Seitz said, "We're very close, luckily, but very much individuals. . . . We disdain the twinny thing, and we each have our steady boy friends." But, explained the small-sized actress with the big bright smile, a twin sister act provides excellent access to show business.

Commenting that her chosen profession is hard to crash, Miss Seitz added, "We don't want to use this gimmick the rest of our lives, but it has been very helpful."

The 25-year-old sisters rent an apartment together in Manhattan.

STRONG SOPRANO

Although Miss Seitz sings a strong, well-trained lyric soprano, she prefers straight acting. The sisters appeared in the Broadway productions "Ondine" and "Fanny." And recently in Sweden they finished a pilot film which they now are trying to sell to a television sponsor. The film, again, capitalizes on the twin idea of two American girls exploring Europe.

The Misses Seitz are spending their 11th year in show business. They had no particular impetus, explained the Atlanta representative, but for them the theater has become "a way of life."

The green-gray-eyed Miss Seitz grew serious as she tried to explain, "Why I stay in the business is one of those very difficult questions. Nothing comes easy for me, but if you love the theater you're dedicated to it. You keep acting and then one day it just slips up on you, and you realize the theater is your whole life. It's fascinating."

American born of Norwegian parents, the twins really dug hard into the drama when they operated two little theaters in 1952 and '53. Explained Miss Seitz, "We wanted to do good parts and get lots of experience before we went to Broadway. And then, after we had gotten it out of our system, we gave it up."

They took turns with the chores—when one sister starred in a play, the other directed. They took seasonal turns with their theaters, too—they worked in the summer at Lake George and in the winter at Dobb's Ferry, N.Y.

VEGETARIANS

Both girls are vegetarians . . . Miss Seitz was reluctant to talk about the reasons for this food preference. Too many people misunderstand, she said.

Now smoothly tanned with freckles scattered across her turned-up nose, Miss Seitz said in her breathy, earnest voice, "I lie out in the sun as much as possible. I would like to be very, very brown. . . . I don't know why, but I have a very good feeling of well-being."

Can Dieters Shrink Stomachs?

By IDA JEAN KAIN

There is a popular controversy as to whether or not you can shrink your stomach by the practice of eating smaller meals. As Voltaire once remarked when asked to discuss a subject, "Delighted, but define your terms."

The term "shrink" is misleading. We should rather think in terms of expansion and contraction. The stomach is a muscular organ which is fairly elastic — it has to be.

Compare the stomach to a balloon. When considerable food is consumed, the stomach is forced to expand. The continual practice of overeating tends to keep the stomach distended.

ADVANTAGE

One of the advantages of dieting is that on smaller meals the stomach contracts. According to Dr. Alfred George in his excellent book, "Your Weight and Your Life," the size of the stomach becomes adapted to the smaller meals and the feeling of fullness develops more rapidly.

This comfortable feeling of having had enough to eat is believed to be caused by the tension exerted from within on the circular muscle fibers of the stomach. It is then that nature gives the satiety signal, but when this signal is repeatedly ignored, overeating becomes a habit. Through long training you then require more food before you feel satisfied.

Studies with people who have been on starvation diets show that food capacity does "shrink."

DRAMATIC CHANGE

Successful dieters report a dramatic change in their food capacity. They all describe the empty feeling experienced at the start of a diet. But after a few days or a few weeks, these same dieters begin to feel quite content with their smaller meals. Later on they wonder how they were ever able to eat the amount of food they formerly enjoyed.

Summed up: It's a moot question as to whether or not there is a change in the size of the stomach, for on smaller meals the stomach most certainly contracts. The end result is you do not want so much to eat.

'Air-Cooling' For Georgia?

DOUGLAS—If I've said anything ugly or snubbing about air conditioning in the past, please pass me the salt. I'm ready to eat my words.

Air conditioning is the greatest thing to hit this neck of the woods since Eli Whitney invented the cotton gin. In fact, if you'd give me a choice, I'd take air conditioning in preference to the cotton gin.

My spartan tendencies which cause me to say, with what I consider to be sweet reasonableness, that central heat and central cooling are effete inventions dedicated to softening the human race, died a quick death about 2 p.m. yesterday. I think they were drowned in perspiration.

South Georgia is at its richest and most opulent now. Everything is ripening. The sun has tilted one of those reflector ovens, like they use around camp fires, toward this portion of the earth and it is slowly, majestically moving toward fruition. When you ride through it and even the tiniest breeze dries the perspiration on your face, you can rest your eyes on the green pastures and think how beautiful it all is, coming back inevitably to the Bible line: "The earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof."

The "fullness thereof" is mighty impressive—corn taller than a Tech basketball center's head, with browning silk on every heavy ear; great emerald heaps of watermelons at every crossroad; pink and gold peaches heaped high at kitchen doors as women rush through the ritual of canning and freezing; tomatoes glowing like ruby fire, pears swelling on the trees, beans and okra and squash; fat cattle deployed like picturebook cattle in green picturebook fields; and in the cool of the evening, fat, lazy fish leap and flash sportively about placid, lily-edge farm ponds.

Oh, it's something to see and enjoy, this lovely countryside—as long as you keep moving. Or if you can stop and go in one of the big, cool houses in a pecan grove and beg a drink of water, it's still pleasant enough.

But spend a few hours by the roadside with car trouble and you know what I mean about air conditioning.

The car becomes a pressure cooker, stewing you to a tender, pulpy mass in your own juice, and when you open a window it's really like lifting the lid to season yourself liberally with gnats. We've had a lot of car trouble this trip and while Bill Young, the photographer, goes in search of help, it's my lot to wait and stew. Once at Swainsboro we timed the car trouble so we could wait for repairs in an air-conditioned drugstore. But at Statesboro, with diabolical accuracy, the motor conked out on a sunbaked plain where the stuff they spray cotton with is heavy in the air and you can't rest your eyes on anything because they are full of salty brine.

An hour or two of that and you have a new outlook on air conditioning, all right.

When we came to Douglas last night, the earth rested and regained its energy in the merciful darkness. I took a turn driving early and watched the stars come out and breathed deeply of the sweet, damp, swampy fragrances that rise from little creeks and branches. Then Bill drove and I dozed in my corner, coming to as the surprisingly bright lights of Douglas showed ahead.

"You care where we stay?" Bill asked and I roused to give an emphatic opinion.

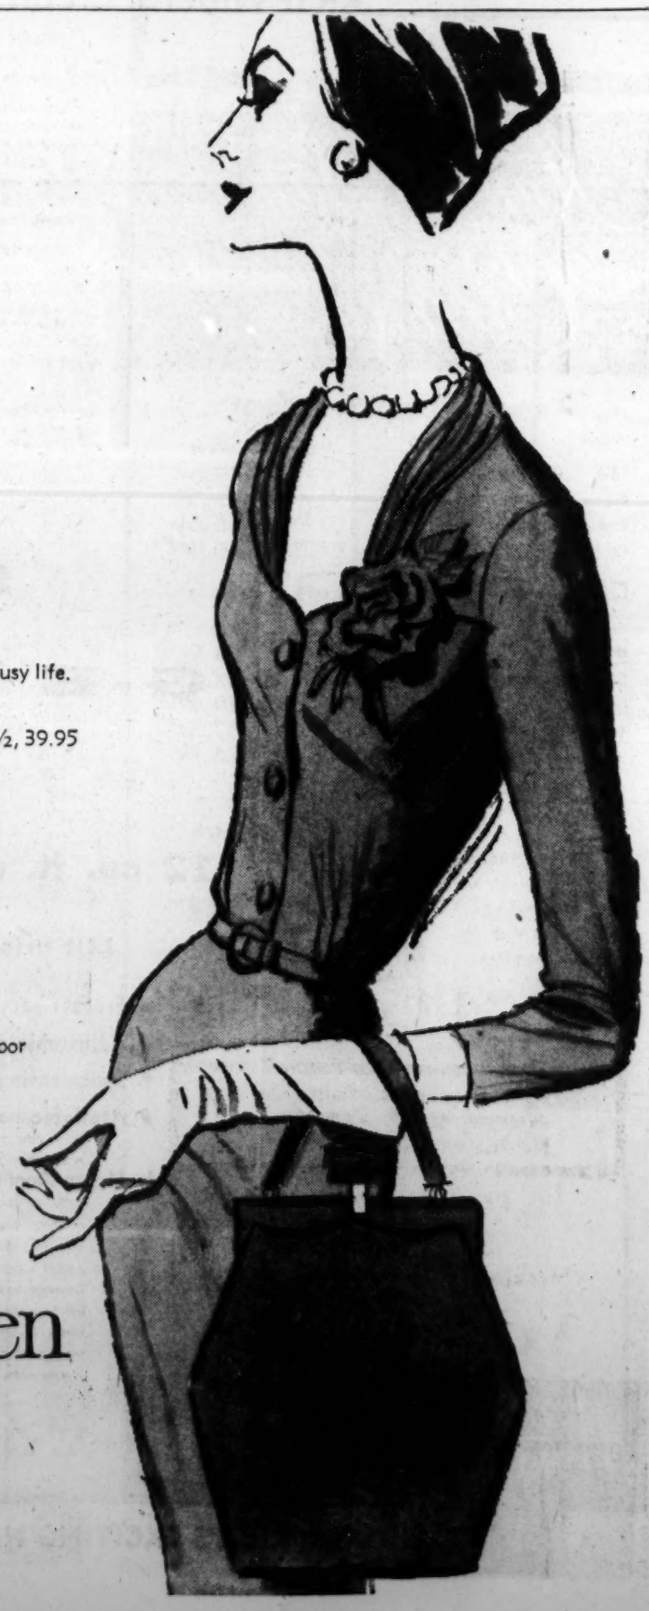

"Only that it's air-conditioned," I said.

ATLANTA WOMAN LAWYER IN COURT
Miss Joan Larsen of Legal Aid Society

Femininity Masks Agile Mind Of Young Woman Barrister Here

By MARGARET McLEMORE

Some days Joan Larsen's eyes are green, other days, this brunette has deep blue eyes.

Her personality is as intriguing as her pretty eyes.

As assistant counsel for the Legal Aid Society, this young lawyer spends a good part of most work days in Civil Court of Fulton County or in the Domestic Relations Division of Superior Court.

Miss Larsen doubts if she will ever become hardened to the poverty and problems of her clients (Legal Aid provides counsel only for charity cases) but her emotions do not in any way hamper her ability.

AGILE MIND

Observation of this 25-year-old in court pleading a client's case indicates her femininity masks an agile mind.

How did she become a lawyer? Her "destiny was inevitable," she said. She comes from a family of lawyers.

Her late grandfather, W. W. Larsen of Dublin, was a Congressman from Georgia; her father, another "W. W.," is a former solicitor for Dublin Judicial Circuit. Today, her father and brother, W. W. Larsen Jr., practice law together in Dublin.

Miss Larsen originally took law at the University of Georgia "just to receive a good general education." But the more she studied law, the more interested she became. "By the time I received my degree, I knew I'd joined the ranks of Larsen lawyers."

ON EDITORIAL STAFF

Upon graduation, she worked in the state attorney general's offices, and later became a member of the editorial staff of the Harrison Co., publishers of law books.

She joined the staff at the Legal Aid Society because she reasoned she couldn't "really write law" until she had practiced it more. She still does part-time work for the Harrison Co.

"The day of men resenting women in law has passed," according to Miss Larsen, who believes men lawyers have "now accepted us—that is, as long as we are capable lawyers, which is as it should be," she added.

Her efficiency apartment on houses a varied library . . . legal text books, Earl Stanley Gardner, Robert Benchley, the Harvard Classics along with historical biographies and auto-biographies pertaining to European history.

She prefers European history to American because of the "personalities who shaped history."

"Only in Europe has the course of history been altered by single individuals," she explained.

NOT INTRIGUED

Cooking doesn't intrigue Miss Larsen "at all." Sewing does but only "for the enjoyment of it." "I don't sew to save money—I sew only when I'm in the mood," she said.

A Bulldog supporter, she attends about all of the university's football games, but says she usually becomes more interested in the crowds and "seeing everybody" than the actual play.

"Yes, I talk shop after hours," she said. "I can't help it and I don't intend to try to curb the habit . . . 'cause I think that's when you acquire new ideas," she added.

She doesn't plan to ever give up law. What if she marries?

Her prompt decisive reply was: "I'd work part-time. . . . I couldn't ever give up law."

Teen-Age Mail

Her Mother Puts Ban On Kissing

By DOROTHY RICKER

Dear Mrs. Ricker:

I am 16 years old. I am considered a normal teen-age girl. I get above-average grades in school and have many friends. My problem is my parents.

I have been dating a boy for almost a year, but my mother thinks a teen-age girl should not kiss a boy. She has said that if she knew me to kiss a boy I would really be in trouble with her.

After dating this boy so long I have become very fond of him. I don't think it is wrong, or sinful to kiss him goodnight. But Mother seems to think that one thing leads to another. I don't approve of parking because, in that case, "one thing could lead to another," and I am strongly against petting.

One night last week this boy and I returned home from a date. Mother was spying on us and saw me kiss him goodnight. Now she has the notion that I should stop dating altogether and not go out with boys for another year!

While trying to reason with her, she even accused me of parking. That is something I have never done, although I have been tempted at times.

I have always respected my parents' wishes, but it's getting so I don't even want to come home half the time. I want to do what is right, but I think Mother is being unfair. Is my thinking unusual or very wrong?

If a girl has been dating a boy over a period of time and they are fond of each other, I believe it is all right for her to kiss him goodnight if she wants to. I do think it is unwise for a girl to kiss a boy on their first date, or to kiss every boy she dates.

And, it is very foolish for a girl to feel obligated to kiss a boy just because he has taken her out.

Since you seem to have a "squared away" perspective about petting and realize the dangers involved, your mother's attitude, in my opinion, is wrong.

This column is conducted for teen-agers and their parents. Letters can be answered through the column only—as soon as time and space permit. Write your problems to Dorothy Ricker in care of The Atlanta Constitution.

"OUR LADY OF HOPE" SHRINE BEAUTIFIES ATLANTA GARDEN

Mrs. Eugene Chapman and Cathie of Greenville, S.C., Relax Beside Statuary

Statuary Graces Garden Of Atlanta Woman

By YOLANDE GWIN

On July 17, 1871, the vision of a saint, "Our Lady of Hope," is said to have appeared for four hours before four small children at Pontmain, France, and told them to pray for peace.

This was during the Franco-Prussian war. The next day the Prussians were halted, and 10 days later an armistice was signed.

PRAYER PLANTS

Arising from a bed of prayer plants, "Our Lady of Hope" stands as a token of admiration for Mrs. Angier from a group of friends. It also forms an interesting conversation piece for the many friends of Mrs. Angier. They like to drop by her garden during the cool of a summer evening and wander along winding paths, view formal and informal beds, and walk beneath rows of trellises laden with fragrant roses.

They also learn something about "Our Lady of Hope." The devotion to the saint dates from the Middle Ages. The first shrine to her was erected at Naziers in Northern France in 930 A.D.

A revival of the devotion to her began in 1848. However, it did not become widespread until the Franco-Prussian War, when she is said to have appeared before the children.

An investigation, according to Roman Catholic files, reveals that Bishop Laval declared the vision authentic. It was later ratified by Pope Pius XI and now the devotion is approved.

BACKGROUND

The statue's setting in Mrs. Angier's garden is an appropriate background for many meetings of the Sacred Heart Fraternity of the Third Order of Mary and the Catholic Business and Professional Women's Club.

Although Mrs. Angier has added hundreds of bulbs of every kind, flowering shrubs and vines, the actual garden was planned by Thomas C. Law, the former owner, for the late Mrs. Law. It is now cared for and kept in picture book trimness by Mrs. Angier, the present owner, and her daughter, Mrs. John Haley.

Your Stars Today

Daily Guide—Try not to be deterred or discouraged from continuous application toward your aim. There could be some little complications which might cost you time or money, but tomorrow promises to be favorable for a smooth performance, so keep everything under control. Be somewhat skeptical of ideas presented and investigate motives.

In the late hours, the sudden break in routine which may have developed Monday can be expected to keep things lively.

Tomorrow the Leos, Arians and Sagittarians should plan to take advantage of unusual favorable aspects for the smooth working out of all types of plans. It will be a generally harmonious day for everyone.

Happy Birthday, Cancer! There is a chance for much growth now if you will be satisfied to settle down to a more gradual development of established new patterns. There is a long period of ups and downs in financial matters, when you could make gains through unusual ideas, inventions or different work. This month and next is a good time to take short trips or be with close kin or neighbors.

Keep to sensible diet, rest hours and working schedules. In the middle of October you can expect extra activities and expansion at home base and in domestic affairs. Be sure that any domestic situation which has been a long time in solving is now solved permanently.

YOUR CHILD MAY HAVE WORMS

1 OUT OF 3 DOES!

Fidgeting, nose-picking and a tormenting rectal itch are often telltale signs of Pin-Worms or Round Worms . . . ugly parasites that medical experts say infest one out of every three persons examined. Entire families may be victims and not know it.

To get rid of Worms, these pests must not only be killed, but killed in the intestines where they live and multiply. That's exactly what Jayne's tablets do . . . and here's how they do it:

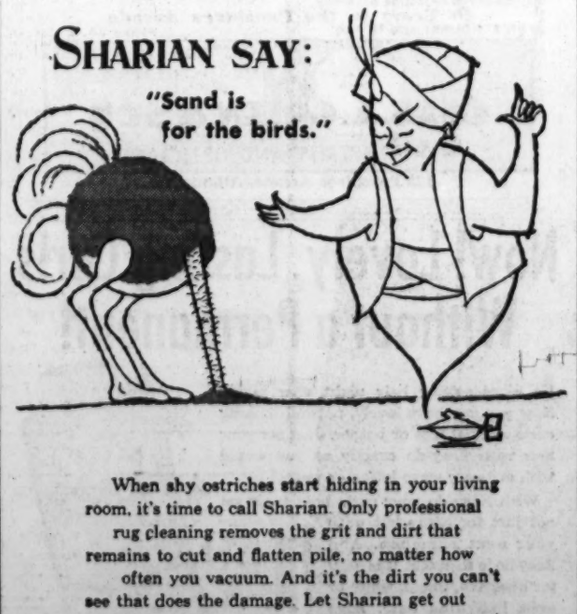

First—a scientific coating carries the tablets into the bowels before they dissolve. Then—Jayne's modern, medically-approved ingredients go right to work—kill Worms quickly and easily.

Don't take chances with this dangerous, highly contagious condition. At the first sign of Pin-Worms or Round Worms, ask your druggist for Jayne's P-W or R-W . . . the small, easy-to-take tablets perfected by famous Dr. D. 5 College Presidents Support Plans for Junior Institutions

Presidents of five of Georgia's senior colleges expressed general agreement with a plan for establishing junior colleges through the state Tuesday.

They stressed, however, that junior college programs should not curtail the activities of the existing colleges, Rep. Frank Cheatham of Savannah said.

Cheatham is chairman of a legislative committee studying a proposal to establish a system of community junior colleges without dormitories or dining halls.

The Savannah legislator said he did not believe junior colleges would interfere with the programs of existing schools because the junior colleges would be aimed at relieving future overcrowding.

Presidents who testified before the committee Tuesday were M. E. Hoag of North Georgia College, Robert E. Lee of Georgia State College for Women, Z. S. Henderson of Georgia Teachers College, Ralph Thaxton of Valdosta State College and I. S. Ingram of West Georgia College.

Dogs Given Ulcers by City Noises

By DR. T. R. VAN DELLEN

Man an asthmatic fly? Yes, but each person represents an individual problem. Pressurized planes are safe when there is wheezing or shortness of breath, even while resting. Longstanding asthma, associated with severe lung complications like emphysema, may bar airplane travel.

Should communion be offered to an alcoholic? This controversial question arose at a recent Midwest seminar on alcoholism conducted by a group of clergymen.

The medical director of the Keeley Institute, Dr. Herbert Karolus, would not hesitate to offer it if the individual "believed that the wine in sacrament is Christ's blood for forgiveness of sins and strengthening of faith."

A member of Alcoholics Anonymous expressed his opinion: "He'd be a pretty weak sister if he could not handle that little bit of wine."

A dog's life is far from pleasant, especially in the city. Dr. W. C. Glenney, president of the American Veterinary Radiology society, says these pets get ulcers from horn blasts, dense traffic, doubts about relations with other city dogs and the general chaos of urban living.

Washington, D.C., is not only the nation's capital but is the nation's capital city for psychiatrists. There are more than 300 and the number is growing constantly.

But there is a lack of psychiatric units to handle emotionally disturbed patients who require short term hospital treatment.

Several new hospitals were built in metropolitan Washington in the last 10 years but only one included a psychiatric unit. It has 25 beds and is overworked, considering the number of psychiatrists. Plans are now afoot for 58 more beds in other hospitals.

Psychiatric units are becoming more popular because they are located in general hospitals and do not carry the stigma of commitment to a mental hospital. They offer facilities for modern treatment and in the future, 10 per cent of the beds of every new general hospital may be devoted to psychiatry.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions relating to health and hygiene in his column, and by mail when self-addressed, stamped envelope is enclosed. Letters should be addressed to Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen, c/o The Atlanta Constitution, Atlanta 2, Ga.

Griffin Wants Courts To Fix A Price for Stone Mountain

Gov. Griffin said Tuesday that if the state buys Stone Mountain, "I would prefer that the courts handle the price."

Condemnation proceedings would insure that "there's no 'hereafter' about who made a profit off it," the governor declared.

Condemnation would also insure that the state could obtain an unclouded claim to the land, Griffin said.

The governor said he was in favor of naming some group like the Atlanta Realty Board to make an appraisal of the property. "It's sort of hard to determine the value of a Stone Mountain, the only one like it in the world," Griffin observed.

Then if the owners of the property were not satisfied with the appraisers' figure, "we would run the thing through the courts," the governor continued.

Griffin said he had received 31 more letters about purchase of the mountain Tuesday, with only one opposed. In addition, a petition signed by 69 Clarke Countians approved plans for the purchase, he said.

Tow Rope Sinks Its Own Vessel in Harbor

GENOA, July 16 (UP)—The tug Vortice was capsized by its own tow rope and sank in the harbor this week while trying to help the Italian liner Esperia into her pier. The rope got under the tug's keel and when the liner suddenly pulled away over it went. The five crewmen were saved.

Opening lead: Ten of diamonds.

When an American team, of which your reporter was a member, invaded French territory in 1956, we were soundly repulsed by a highly aggressive outfit of men. Early in June this year one of my teammates, Samuel Stayman, in cooperation with Edith Kemp of Miami Beach, was able to extract a bit of revenge by carrying off the five session pair championship at Antibes on the French Riviera. Competing were French and Swiss teams and numerous internationalists from Great Britain, West Germany, Austria, and Italy.

Shown today is a defensive effort which contributed to the victors' success. Mrs. Kemp's selection of the ten of diamonds for the opening lead is worthy of note. That a diamond must be led is too obvious to require comment, for the double of a slam in a bidding sequence of this type calls for the lead of dummy's suit.

Mrs. Kemp did not yield to the temptation to cash the king of spades first. It was a moral certainty that Mr. Stayman was void of diamonds and retention of the high spade would enable a quick re-entry to the West hand for another ruff.

The ten of diamonds is an unnatural lead from this holding. When a ruff is imminent, this is a lead-directing signal requesting partner to return a high-ranking suit, tho even without the signal, East's choice of the proper suit to return would have been clear.

East ruffed, returned a spade, and a second diamond lead produced the trick worth 500 points. Stayman, however, had tasted blood and proceeded toward the big kill. A neutral lead would permit declarer to win the rest of the tricks but the actual return of the king of clubs killed the dummy and yielded another for an 800-point sting.

Yorkshire Lass Back in Class as Teacher's Bride

HUDDERSFIELD, England, July 16 (UP)—A 16-year-old girl went to school today as the bride of her 32-year-old teacher.

Jean Senior and Paul Sykes, a widower, were married secretly last Friday after a "whirlwind courtship" of two months. News of the marriage, which made Jean the mother of Sykes' eight-year-old son, was announced today.

"We love each other and it's going to work," Sykes said.

Jean returned to classes for the first time yesterday but left her wedding ring at home.

"The other girls would only laugh," she said.

The Shaky Chair

NASHVILLE, July 16—The president's chair almost collapsed when Charlie Hurth sat down in his room at the Southern Assn. All-Star headquarters in the Noel Hotel Tuesday afternoon. Perhaps it was an omen, for these are perilous times in Hurth's circuit.

New Orleans, the largest city in the Southern, staging a last-ditch fight for survival; Birmingham and Memphis, solid pillars in the Southern for years, have been taking a licking at the box office despite winning clubs.

Outlar

Now the recurring rumor that Atlanta will graduate to Triple A which has been blowing around for at least five years, has been revived. Only this time there appears to be some fire behind the smoke, because Earl Mann is interested in such a move. In previous years, the Cracker owner has turned an icy shoulder to all suggestions that Atlanta, a major league city in industry and other sports, deserved a seat in higher baseball society.

Five years ago I asked Mann why he didn't elevate the Crackers to Triple A. He said he hadn't been invited. Furthermore, he wasn't seeking an invitation, for he didn't think the time was ripe for advancement into faster company. Expense and various other reasons were cited.

Tuesday afternoon, I asked Mann if he intended to move the Crackers into the International League or the American Assn. next year.

He said he didn't know, but he was very much interested. Certainly the Crackers can have a berth in the International League. A high-ranking baseball figure told this writer last spring that Atlanta would be welcomed in the International League any year.

—A Baseball Plum Triple A Wants To Pluck

Atlanta is a plum in the sour pudding of minor league baseball. Nothing excites baseball men like the whirl of turnstiles, and the Crackers are usually in the top 10 in the minor league attendance parade.

I believe that Atlanta would support a major league franchise, provided the city and county fathers provided the stadium the city deserves. From letters received from fans who share the same idea, I'm convinced the people would like to build a modern stadium, not only for baseball, but for a pro football franchise. Under existing financial conditions, it's impossible for an individual to finance a stadium. Other cities such as Milwaukee, Minneapolis and Jacksonville have built stadiums.

Of course, there is no possibility of landing a major league club without a new stadium. But Atlanta will receive a bid into Triple A society anytime Mann lets it be known that he's in the market. And, judging from the way he talked Tuesday, I'd say he'll be in the market this winter.

The current wave of speculation, in my opinion, was set off by a member of the parent Milwaukee Braves. The Braves have planted a terrific minor league club in Wichita this year, but the customers are staying away in droves. Though it may be denied at present, the Braves won't operate a club in Wichita next year.

The International League, of course, would be more attractive to Atlanta than the American Assn., so a franchise trade might be worked to enable the Braves to operate a Triple A club in Atlanta. Mann has made no mention of such a shift, but that's the way the plot looks from here.

—The Legislature May Decide on the Ballot

However, before you lay odds that Atlanta will become a Triple A franchise next year, you'd better consult the Georgia Legislature.

Negroes have played on baseball teams in every city in Georgia in organized ball. Nat Peeples, you'll recall, played for Atlanta in spring exhibition games in 1954 and played in a Southern Assn. game in Mobile. If he had been a top drawer player, Negroes undoubtedly would be playing in the Southern Assn. today. But that was before the Supreme Court swung its club.

Now several solons have vowed that Negroes aren't going to play in Atlanta, and every team in Triple A has colored ball players. The Legislature almost passed the segregation sports bill in its last session. If Atlanta makes strong overtures to the International League, the bill possibly might become a law.

For that reason alone, Atlanta is likely to be doing business in the Southern Assn. again next year.

Naturally, Charlie Hurth hopes the league's mealticket will remain in the family.

Asked to comment on the possibility of Atlanta vacating the Southern, Hurth said, "I think Atlanta is better off in the Southern, but that's a decision for Earl Mann to make. It's his ball club. I know the Southern is better off with Atlanta."

Hurth admits that the league is in trouble even with Atlanta in the fold, but he is confident that the Southern will operate again next season.

"Maybe we'll go down, as people predict, but I don't think so, not even if Atlanta pulls out. And I'll tell you one thing, if we ever do go down, we'll go down swinging. Our clubs are determined to battle it out."

Perhaps they will. The meeting here Wednesday could be the last for the eight members, but I doubt it. Don't be surprised if all eight clubs, including Atlanta and New Orleans, answer the Southern bell in 1958.

MANN'S EYES TURN UP

Shift to AAA Can Mean Rocky Road For Crackers

By AL THOMY

Earl Mann put his chips on the baseball shuffle board Tuesday afternoon.

"There's no use denying it," he said. "We are interested in getting into a Triple A league. Now there's nothing whatsoever official about it. I believe this way:

"We're interested in obtaining the best baseball possible for Atlanta fans, and Triple A could be that brand now. In the future, say 10 years, it could be major league baseball."

The statement was in answer to a story that Atlanta would be in the International League next year. There has been talk Havana, after a profitable start, has faltered badly at the gate, and the International is looking for a replacement between Richmond and Miami.

And then there's the possibility of an opening in the American Assn., where Wichita, the Triple A club of the Milwaukee Braves, has attracted little spectator interest though it's leading the league.

"There are many problems to be ironed out in a shift to Triple A," said Mann. "First, the territory has to be drafted by one of the leagues, and they would have to make a settlement with the Southern.

"Then a Triple A team would increase expenses by at least $75,000 a year. That means an increase of about 25 cents on admissions, but I'm sure the fans would understand that.

"We would have to have more help from the civic organizations if we are to go Triple A.

"In the future, I believe Atlanta will be in the major leagues. And if the city is interested in going major league, it should start thinking about a ball park which would seat 30,000, and be increased to 50,000 if needed, with ample parking space. The city and the county could get together on it.

"Do I think Atlanta has the population to become a major league city? I certainly do. For comparison, look at Milwaukee, which has 800,000 people. The Braves started the whole shuffle, and the people there really support the team.

"Not only that, but Milwaukee gets 50 million dollars worth of publicity a year from the baseball club.

"I understand Atlanta raised two million dollars to advertise the city this year. A major league baseball team would be a much valuable asset.

"Travel is no problem now. Jet planes take one hour from Atlanta to New York.

"I definitely think major league baseball is coming within 10 years."

Should Atlanta move up to Triple A what would the effect be on the Southern Assn., which is having its troubles these days?

"Well, I'll say this. Other leagues have had to make changes and adjustments. Jacksonville and Knoxville are good baseball cities. A league has got to be stronger than any one team; otherwise, it's in bad shape."

Teams in the International and American Assn. carry Negro ballplayers. Would that hinder an Atlanta switch?

"They're playing in Augusta, Macon, Savannah and Columbus now. I don't think that would be a problem. If people want to segregate schools, that's their business, but I don't see how they can deprive a man of his livlihood."

How about affiliation. "I hope someone is interested, and I hope it's Milwaukee. We've had a wonderful relationship with the Braves, and we don't want to relinquish it."

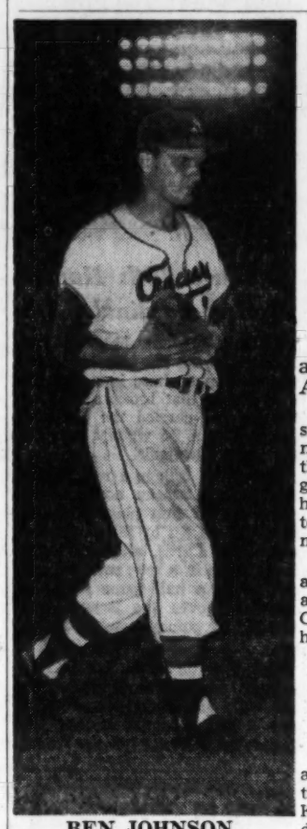

The International League includes Richmond, Havana, Montreal, Toronto, Buffalo, Rochester, Miami and Columbus. The make-up of the American Assn., reads Denver, Omaha, Louisville, Indianapolis, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Charleston and Wichita.

Mann estimates that expenses in the International League would be "more than doubled," and in the American Assn. "about tripled." The International would be more convenient, with more natural and geographical rivals.

Ponce de Leon Park, in Mann's opinion, would be "semi-adequate" for Triple A ball.

But he added:

"Atlanta can support Triple A baseball, and we'd draw more people. We've got to be interested. Atlanta is a great sports city."

Crax Recapture Lead After Baron Scare

MacKenzie Quells Uprising In Ninth Frame To Win, 4-3

By AL THOMY

The first-place team in the Southern Assn. will take a two-day vacation, while the second-place club meets the All-Stars Wednesday night at Nashville.

On the eve of the annual all-star game, the Atlanta Crackers moved back to the top perch in the Southern with a spine-tingling, 4-3 decision over Birmingham before 5,973 screaming customers at Ponce de Leon Tuesday night.

Meanwhile, Nashville dropped another game to Chattanooga, and fell a half game behind the Crackers, who closed out their home stand with a 7-5 record.

The Barons gave it the good try Tuesday after eight scoreless innings against the offerings of right-hander Ben Johnson.

They regrouped in the ninth and chased three runs home on two master wallops before lefty Ken MacKenzie came on and induced pinch-hitter Joe Tipton to sky to left for the third out. Baron runners were left stranded on third and second.

And this was a night for catcher Sammy Taylor. It seems the power in the Cracker lineup has progressively moved down the middle of the order. First, it was Bob Montag, then Ev Joyner, and now Taylor.

Taylor's tremendous home run into the straightaway center-field bushes produced three runs in the fifth, after Dick Phillips had tripled and scored on Montag's single. It was Taylor's 10th homer of the season.

Starter Bud Black had a two-hitter working until the fifth.

Phillips, first man up, slammed a pitch to left-center and made three bases without trouble. After Frank DiPrima grounded out, Montag lashed a hit to center for a run. Joyner was hit by a pitched ball.

Then Taylor leaned into a Black pitch and drove it to the center-field bank. While Bill Wilson looked for the ball in the bushes, all runners circled the bases.

Right-hander Jim Atkins came on to manhandle the Crackers the rest of the way. They got only a single hit—a double by Taylor in the eighth—off Atkins, five timely ones off Black, who is now 2-2.

Johnson fashioned a three-hitter for seven innings. Jim McManus had a hit to right and NASHVILLE, July 16—Manager Cal Ermer will start right-handed pitcher Gary Bell and a left-handed lineup against the Nashvill eVols in the 19th annual Southern Association All-Star game Wednesday night in Sulphur Dell.

Ermer, gunning for his third triumph at the All-Star helm, sends the league's hottest pitcher against the power-packed Vols. Bell fired a no-hitter at Little Rock in his latest appearance for Mobile and the 20-year-old Cleveland farmhand has surrendered only one hit in the last 16 innings.

Despite their near .300 average, the slugging Vols have the dubious distinction of being the only host team to fall from first place grace before meeting the All-Stars. Atlanta's victory over Birmingham and Chattanooga's thumping of Nashville shoved the Vols into second Tuesday night.

Ermer gunning for his third triumph at the All-Star helm, dipped into his Chattanooga pitching deck and selected the hard-throwing Griggs to open against the power-packed Vols. Griggs an Atlanta native, will match his 13-6 record against a slugging

BASEBALL BOSSES DENY CRACKERS IN FOR SHIFT

From Press Dispatches

Talk of Atlanta replacing either Havana of the International League or Wichita of the American Assn. drew sharp comments from baseball officials around the nation.

Milwaukee farm director John Mullen was the first to comment on the report that the Southern Assn. (Class AA) club would acquire AAA status in either the International or American Assn. in 1958.

"Anything's liable to happen with the various baseball realignments, but as far as anything concrete being done regarding Atlanta, there is nothing to it," Mullen said.

In Montreal, International League Secretary Harry Simmons said the story was "a complete fabrication."

"There has never been any talk of moving the Havana franchise nor any intention," Simmons said. "It is common knowledge that Havana has been hurt by the political situation there, but no one has ever suggested moving the team, nor has anyone from Atlanta made any approaches as far as this office knows."

International League President Frank Shaughnessy commented, "as far as I know, no change is contemplated at the present time."

In Cincinnati, Gabe Paul, general manager of the Cincinnati Redlegs, who have a working agreement with Havana, told a reporter "Havana is a solvent operation and has no intention of moving the franchise." He said the information came from Havana.

Possibility of Atlanta taking over Wichita's spot in the American Assn. was mentioned because of the poor crowds

CLEVELAND, July 16 (AP)—Herb Score can resume workouts Thursday and pitch a game in from four to six weeks, Dr. Charles I. Thomas said today after examining the Cleveland Indian pitcher's mending eye.

Herb Score

The southpaw was hit in the eye by a line drive last May 7, and he has been out of action since. For a time he could barely see out of the injured eye.

"There has been great improvement in the condition of the eye," Dr. Thomas said. "The function of the eye has returned close enough to normal for Herb to resume workouts this Thursday.

"I am very pleased with his progress to date. I think it advisable that Herb condition himself in Cleveland, rather than travel with the team. He should be able to pitch in four to six weeks, depending on how long it takes for Herb to get in shape."

Score, 24, and his new bride, the former Nancy McNamara, returned to Cleveland early today from Florida, where they were married last week.

Blum Defaults Golf Crown

By BERT PRATHER
Constitution Sports Writer

AUGUSTA, July 16—Early arrivals for Georgia State Men's Amateur championship, which opens for a four-day run Thursday, freely predicted that this one may be dominated by golf's younger set. Qualifying is down for Wednesday.

With five times state king Arnold Blum of Macon letting his crown go by default, Georgia's fledgling swingers seemed to have sensed this is the year to move the elder statesmen to the low flights.

They are here in droves. And many of them are fully acquainted with pitfalls of the rugged par 72 Augusta Country Club course. They played and learned it the hard way during last week's State Junior Championship here.

And, of course, there are such talented golfing upstarts as Billy Gibson, Art Patchin, Emory Williamson and Johnny Reynolds who have grown up on this course. They know every blade of grass on it as do such other young stalwarts as Cobby Ware, Jake Howard Jr., Billy Price and Jimmy Raines, now graduated to the collegiate set.

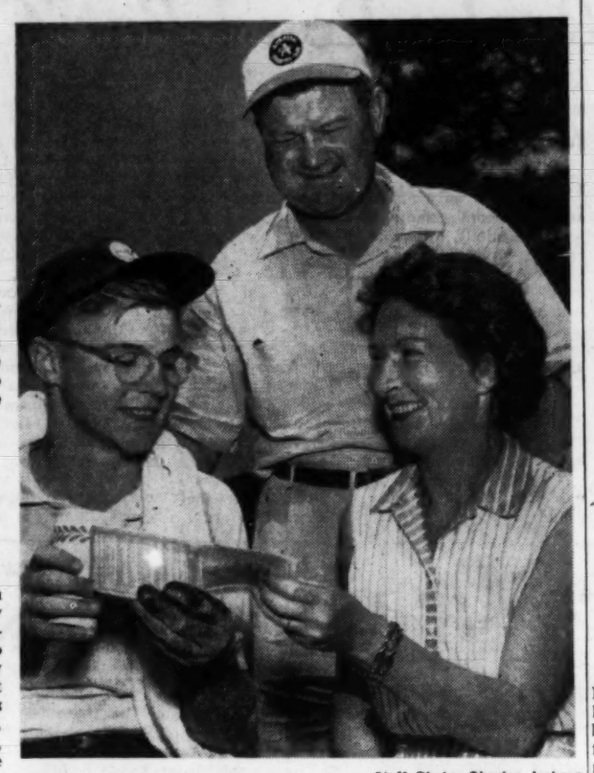

Patchin carded a one-under-par 71 for the best score to date in a practice round. He was one of the few entrants to go 18 holes of practice play.

Then from out of town there are such capable young candidates as Eddie Sams, new state Junior king, and his Athens sidekick, Jimmy Gabrielsen; Jimmy Cleveland, Bobby Pierce, Atlanta; Bill Ploeger, Darien; Davis Adams, Macon, and a host of others.

Ware turned in the second best practice score with a 72 Monday. Price and Bob White of Savannah scored 73s.

So it is small wonder that veteran Frank (New Mule) Mulherin Jr., of the host club, is walking about with a worried look on his handsome face. Frank captured the State back in 1937, and though he hasn't said too much about it, those close to The Mule know he's bent on placing his name on the big trophy again this year.

Charlie Harrison, though he's still a young man in his 20s, is being drafted by the elder statesmen group to bolster their ranks against this youth movement. Charlie could save the day for them.

BILLY THE KID—For the past two weeks, 16-year-old Billy Gibson has played slightly sensational golf in finishing second in both the Piney Woods Invitational at Thomasville and the state Juniors at Augusta. Now he's gunning for the State Men's Amateur, which opens at Augusta C. C. Wednesday. The little Augustan is shown here with his beaming parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. (Hoot) Gibson. Hoot is secretary of Georgia Golf Assn.

Tournament officials, who announced earlier they were expecting around 175 players to attempt to qualify, expressed disappointment that only 80 have signed so far. Entries, however, will be accepted until noon Wednesday and a large crowd of entries is looked for in the morning.

Wednesday's 18 holes of qualifying will set up divisions of 32 each for match play starting Thursday morning.

And Who Said That Baseball Was on Way Out

PHILADELPHIA, July 16 (AP)—Tony McClone, 10 years old and a red hot Phillie fan, from suburban Wynnewood is away at camp for the first time this summer.

Philadelphia Bulletin columnist Frank Brookhouser reports his parents got the following letter from him after they had forwarded a newspaper so he could read about a Phillie double-header with Brooklyn:

"Dear Ma and Dad—Is Lopata well enuf to play: How come Harmon played the 2nd game of the twin bill, did Anderson get hurt? We didn't go swimming on Mon. because it rained. And how come Valo played right, did Furillo get hurt? P.S. We played bingo Mon. nite. I didn't win."

Tony had so many baseball queries he forgot to sign his name.

Spahn Halts Phillies' Express With Steady Six-Hit Chore, 6-2

Smith Crew Holds First

PHILADELPHIA, July 16 (AP)—Milwaukee's Warren Spahn slowed down Philadelphia's National League express train with a six-hitter tonight as the Braves trounced the first-place Phillies 6-2 at Connie Mack Stadium.

The rarefied atmosphere of the League summit proved bothersome to the upstart Phillies. The only thing that kept them in their half game lead was second place St. Louis' 7-5 loss to the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Milwaukee, however, remained in third but was only one percentage point behind St. Louis. Brooklyn, meanwhile, moved up a game from the top and the Phillies, though in first, were ahead of the Dodgers by only nine percentage points.

Philadelphia had moved out on top last night for the first time in over three years with a 6-2 triumph over the Cardinals, roaring from five games behind in just two weeks.

The loss broke a four-game winning streak.

Although the Phillies have been hitting steadily over the past two weeks, they gave Spahn little trouble. Both their runs were unearned.

The Braves hit safely in all but the eighth inning, chasing Harvey Haddix in the third and harassing three more Philadelphia pitchers.

ing error by Card right fielder Wally Moon that proved the big difference.

Moon's errant peg gave the Brooks a 2-all tie in the fourth inning, which Gino Cimoli opened with a single. Gil Hodges then lashed a drive toward the scoreboard in right, which Moon just missed on a one-handed stab. Cimoli, holding up on the play, got to third, then was waved home as Moon's throw bounced into the St. Louis dugout for an automatic two-base error.

Hodges was credited with a double on the hit by the umpires and also waved home—setting off an argument that wound up with Card Manager Freddie Hutchinson being ejected from the game.

Snider's 20th Homer Downs Cardinals, 7-5

BROOKLYN, July 16 (AP) — Duke Snyder blasted his 20th home run with a man on base in a four-run fifth inning that broke a 2-all tie tonight and carried the Brooklyn Dodgers to a 7-5 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

It was the fifth in a row for the fourth place Brooks, now just one game shy of first place Philadelphia, beaten 6-2 by Milwaukee tonight. The Cards, although losing their fourth in a row, retained second place, a half game back, by one point over the Braves—who stayed four points ahead of Brooklyn.

The four-run fifth, handing young Lindy McDaniel an 8-6 record with his second defeat in a row, nailed it for the Brooks, but in the end, it was a two-run throw-

Redlegs Lose Robinson As Giants Triumph, 6-1

NEW YORK, July 16 —Frank Robinson, Cincinnati's All-Star left fielder, was struck on the head by a pitched ball and carried from the field on a stretcher tonight as the New York Giants defeated the Redlegs 6-1. Willie Mays had four consecutive singles and Daryl Spencer drove in four Giant runs with a single and two home runs.

Robinson, the 21-year-old slugger who was the National Leagues Rookie of the Year last season, was struck above the left ear by a Ruben Gomez fast ball in the eighth inning. The ball split his protective helmet and it bounded into the Giant dugout as Robinson crumbled at the plate.

First reports said Robinson had suffered a concussion and that there was no sign of a fracture. He was conscious and spoke coherently during the examination in the clubhouse, then was removed to a hospital as a precautionary measure.

Spencer got the Giants started with an RBI single in the fourth after Mays had led off with a single against starter-loser Hal Jeffcoat and then stole second. Singles by Don Mueller and Ed Bressoud, who drove in the other two Giant runs, made it a two-run frame.

Spencer also closed the scoring, lining his second homer of the night and eighth of the season in the lower right field seats with a man on base in the eighth off reliever Buster Freeman.

Freeman had come on in the seventh and was greeted by Bressoud's home run off the right field foul pole. Jeffcoat left with his seventh defeat against eight victories after the sixth inning, when Spencer found the left field seats for his first homer of the game.

Gomez struck out four, walked four and gave up six hits while being backed up by three double-plays.

Brim's Foe Junior Choice

Special to The Constitution

WASHINGTON, D.C., July 16—Johnny Brim Jr., Georgia's State AAA high school champ and sectional medalist, faced the toughest assignment of Georgia's four-man entry in the 10th annual United States Golf Assn. Junior championship starting here Wednesday morning.

Brim, a slightly-built lad of 17, squares off at 11:44 a.m. against the tournament favorite Jack Nicklaus of Columbus, Ohio. Nicklaus, who played in this year's U.S. Open, was a semifinalist in last year's junior champion at Williamstown, Mass.

Richard Tatum of Atlanta is first Georgian to tee off. He's paired with John Ward of Overland Park, Kans., at 8:21. Jimmy Allen of Athens goes against Richard Casabella of Louisville, Ky., at 11:16, while Don Patterson of Decatur meets Gerald Zar, Palos Verdes Estates, Calif., at 2:46 p.m.

BurkeWhipsWristInjury, Says PGA Tourney's Next

DAYTON, Ohio, July 16 (AP)—Defending champion Jack Burke Jr. put his aggravated left wrist to test in a windup practice for the PGA golf tournament today and then announced: "It's okay. I'll go for it."

He scored a two-under-par 69 over the 6,773-yard course showing no signs of pain or strain.

Burke, winner of both the Masters and Professional Golfers Assn. championships last year, opens defense of the latter crown at 11:12 a.m., EST, tomorrow against Gene Marchi, pro of the host Miami Valley Golf Club.

It highlights 64-first round head-o-head battles involving 128 top-flight tournament professionals and little-known club teachers eager to impress the home folks with a victory over one of the big names.

The first match goes at 8 a.m. It will set off a series of eliminations demanding a total of 162 holes in the space of five days. The finals are slated Sunday.

Burke bruised the tendons in his left wrist recently in a home accident on the day he removed the bandages from his right wrist. This had forced his withdrawal from the National Open tournament at Toledo a month ago.

If misery loves company, Burke has it. At least three other top-ranked contenders were fighting assorted ailments on the eve of the 39th annual match play wrangle of the professionals.

Sam Snead, seeking his fourth PGA title, complained of bursitis in his left arm which he said for a while threatened to halt his tournament career. Former National Open champion Ed Furgol fell through a fence in Montreal, suffering a thigh injury which has kept him out of the last two tournaments. And Chick Harber, 1954 PGA champion, is getting over the whooping cough and said, "the medicine leaves me weak."

Snead, who won in 1942, 1949 and 1951, said his left arm pained him so much at the Masters this spring that he thought he would have to withdraw. Later a doctor told him to quit golf until the condition eased.

"I went to Burke's doctor and got some whirlpool and electronic treatments," said Snead. "I feel I can hit the ball all right."

Harper, Pomeroy Ready for Action

Special to The Constitution

DAYTON, Ohio, July 16—Charlie Harper of Columbus, and Ewing Pomeroy of Atlanta, Georgia's only representatives in the National PGA championship, were ready to face the opening gong Wednesday after two days of practice here.

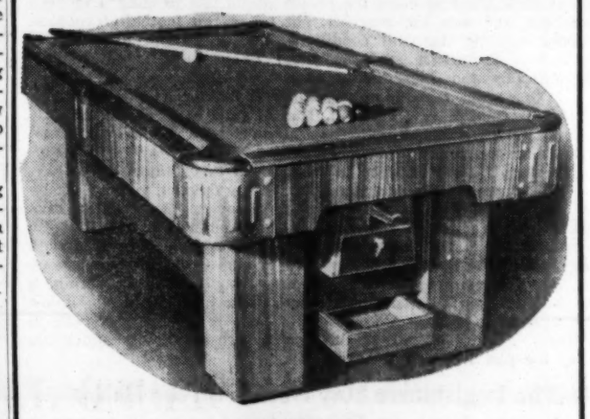

Harper meets Ray Hill, a very capable pro from St. Paul, in his first rounder Wednesday at 10:30. Pomeroy, who is in the bottom half of the 128-player match play event, tangles with Toney Tiso, of Tuckahoe, N.Y., at 12:12 p.m.

Fights But Falls To Jo Gunderson

OMAHA, July 16 (AP) — Barbara Romack Porter, tournament medalist, led a parade of 16 winners through the first round of the Women's Western Amateur golf tournament Tuesday at Columbus, Ohio.

Although off her steady qualifying pace of a three-under-par 70, the little blonde from Sacramento, Calif., didn't have any trouble eliminating Betty Kerby of Akron, Ohio, 4 and 3.

Sixteen-year-old Joyce Denson of Atlanta, Ga., gave Jo Anne Gunderson of Seattle, Wash., USGA and Western junior champion, a terrific battle before losing, 2 and 1. Joyce, shooting a four-over-par 40 for the front nine, had a one-up lead at the turn.

Gunderson stretched her lead to two-up by winning No. 13 with a par four. The Georgia youngster came back with a birdie three on No. 15, but they halved No. 16 with a par five and Jo Anne ended the match with a par four on No. 17.

a grounder just off first which bounced away from DiPrima. Pitcher Black had the other in the third.

The evening's work began to on Johnson in the eighth. The Barons picked up two singles, but couldn't score.

They broke the dike in the ninth.

Tom Wright opened with a 400-foot home run over the right-center boards, and Ed McGhee followed with a single to right. Joyner made a nice catch on Jack Dittmer's wrong-field drive, and then an easy one on Matt Batts's fly ball.

Dick Camilli, son of the famous Dolph of Brooklyn fame, stepped up and buggywhipped a long home run over the left barrier, for two more runs. After Johnson walked pinch-hitter Ken Walters, and gave up a left-field double to Inman Veal, manager Buddy Bates went to his bullpen for MacKenzie.

And Johnny Pesky went to his bench for pinch-hitter Joe Tipton. Every pitch counted now, and the prize was first place.

MacKenzie worked the count to 2-2, and Tipton fouled off several pitches. He then lifted a high fly to Joyner for the third out. The Cracker left-fielder made only three putouts all night, but they were the most important of the game.

The Crackers now take a couple of days off, then resume on Friday in Birmingham. The 1 p.m. game will be carried on the "Game of the Day" broadcast. It's a make-up of an earlier tie game. The regular game is scheduled for 7:30.

CRACKER DIARY: Pitcher Ben Johnson, shortstop Joe Morgan and catcher Sammy Taylor take an early plane to Nashville Wednesday, where they will appear in the Southern Assn. All-Star Game. From Birmingham, outfielder Ed McGhee, shortstop Inman Veal and first baseman Jim McManus will accompany them. McManus has been in a hitting slump lately. "I haven't been able to do anything the past two weeks," he said. . . . Manager Johnny Pesky went from white to black in an effort to salvage a game from the Crackers. From Frank White to Bud Black, that is. . . . McGhee was shaken up slightly after running into the right-field fence chasing Ev Joyner's foul drive in the third. . . . Better Fielding Bureau: Morgan went deep in the hole to throw out Dick Camilli in the eighth. . . . Add felding gems: Ken Guettler leaped high to spear McGhee's bouncer to right in the ninth, and held it to a single. . . . And that man Joyner. He raced back to the fence in the ninth to haul down a sizzling wrong-field drive by Jack Dittmer.

Thomas Powers Pirates To Double Win, 5-3, 5-4

PITTSBURGH, July 16 —The seventh place Pittsburgh Pirates shoved the Chicago Cubs deeper into the National League cellar tonight, taking a 5-3 decision in a regularly scheduled game after earlier completing a suspended game and winning it 5-4 on a homer by outfielder Frank Thomas.

Bob Rush had a one-hitter until the seventh inning of the regular game when the Pirates scored three times, two of the runs on a double by Thomas.

Rush, who now has a 1-9 record, started out in superlative fashion. He gave up a double to Dick Groat after one was out in the first inning—then set down the next 16 Pirates in order. In the seventh he gave up a leadoff single to Bob Skinner and another double to Groat before getting Bill Virdon to fly out. Then Thomas doubled home two runs and scored on Gene Baker's triple.

JUNIOR BASEBALL

DISTRICT 2 AWAITS CHARGE OF DEKALB HOMER BRIGADE

By GEORGE CUNNINGHAM

DeKalb Memorial All-Stars will charge into Buckhead's Bagley Park July 26 with a power brigade as awesome as the one Jeb Stewart turned loose on the Yankees some years ago.

George Cunningham

Occasion is the District Two Little League Tournament. But unlike the swift Confederate cavalry, the raiders this time have sacrificed speed for that precious baseball commodity—home runs.

Coaches J. D. Berry and Tom Singley own 14 muscular youngsters who between them have swatted 59 homers during the recent season.

Leading the wallop ledger, with nine apiece, are Henry Rumble and Randy Carroll. Then there's seven-homer-hitting Kirk Ivey, Mitchell Williams and Gary Harmon.

Ordinarily, one would expect the opposition to keel over in the face of such credentials—like some American League teams appear to do when the Yankees come to town.

But hear some of the opposition:

GLENWOOD HILLS AMERICAN spokesman: "Those home runs don't frighten us. Our two pitchers, Larry Turner and Allen Stanton, can beat anybody."

GLENWOOD HILLS NATIONAL spokesman: "When you have pitchers like Ed Pattillo, Bob Tucker and Dutch Borg and hitters like Farley Jenkins and Harry Fuller, you never enter a game the underdog."

And finally, the defending champion, DECATUR AMERICAN: "There's an old saying. 'You're the champ until dethroned.' I think that states our case fairly accurately."

Precincts unheard from were Buckhead American and National, Decatur National, Clairmont, Belvedere and Tucker. That is, unheard from before the tourney fireworks.

LITTLE LEAGUE ALL STAR TEAMS—DECATUR AMERICAN: Cubs, Alen Calloway, Alan Kenton, Carter Moss (.500, 6 homers), George Polto (.300 plus), and Wayne Price; Senators, Roy Chapman, Ralph McCumber (.415, 2 homers) and Ray Myers (.418); Indians, Johnny Georgius (.417),Russ Gladding and Randy Lummus (.517 and 1 homer); Red Sox, Mike Hornibrook (.327), De Matthews (.421), and Doug Shackelford (loop leading .547 and 3 homers) . . . DECATUR NATIONAL: Tigers, Jerry Haynes (p-3b), Jeff Holles (c) and Bob Hooten (ss); Giants, Dave Crow (ss), Blackie McLeod (util.) and Dave Shaw (3b); Cardinals, James Alday (ss), George Moseley (3b, .470 loop high); Jim Nash (p) and Butch Crook (p); Braves, Bill Crabtree (of), John McCamman (1b-p) and John Uttenhove (if); Braves, Larry Womack is a last-minute replacement for .460 hitting Dana Sherrill, who'll miss the tourney because of a recent appendectomy . . . GLENWOOD HILLS NATIONAL: Cards, Farley Jenkins (.476), Winston Haygood, Ed Pattillo and Zach Claxton; Tigers, Bob Tucker, Bill Wadsworth and Tom Sprayberry; Rebels, Harry Fuller (7 homers), Bicky Vaughan and Dicky Cochran; Braves, Dutch Borg, Mike Steele and Mike Hathcock.

GLENWOOD HILLS AMERICAN: Cubs Roger Derthick (.500), Larry Groce, Everett Shrader Jr. (.500) and Sam Whatley Jr.; Yanks Larry Turner (.429) and Tom Wilder; Crackers' Steve Beck, William Forsyth Jr., Gary Freeman and John Huss; Tars' Paul Bateman, John Heist, Frank Johnson and Allen Stanton (loop leading .621). . . . DEKALB MEMORIAL (with homers beside names): Yankees Henry Rumble 9, Danny Tate 4, Jimmy Berry 5, Kirk Ivey 7 and Mike Bryant; Indians Mitchell Williams 7, Randy Carroll 9, Joe Pope 3, Jimmy Sikes 6, Teddy Ray and David Martin; Red Sox Gary Harmon 7; Dodger Jeff McMullan 1; Tiger Ronnie Nunnally.

Lookouts Drop Vols From Top Rung, 8-6

From Press Dispatches

Chattanooga knocked Nashville from first place in the Southern Association standings here tonight 8-6. Atlanta, winner over Birmingham, moved into first place a half game ahead of Nashville. Chattanooga is in third, two games out of first.

Mobile defeated Little Rock, 7-1, in the other scheduled game.

Russ Heman and Hal Griggs, who was scheduled to start for the All-Stars in Nashville tomorrow, took the mound for Chattanooga. Heman hurled 5 and 2/3 innings and was credited with the victory.

Chattanooga manager Cal Ermer, who also is the All-Stars' pilot, named Gary Bell of Mobile, who hurled a no-hitter against Little Rock Sunday, as his new choice to start tomorrow's glitter tilt in Nashville.

Leftfielder Vernon Morgan with 4 for 5, including a double and triple, batted in four runs to lead the Looks as they handed the Nashville club its fourth consecutive loss in the Lookout city.

John Brechin started for Nashville and was credited with the loss. He was relieved by Calvin Howe and Jim Sprankle.

American Assn. President Ed Doherty answered, in Denver, "I don't know a thing about it. Milwaukee owns the Wichita franchise and has a working agreement with Atlanta. After that 9,937 crowd at Wichita last night for the Association All-Star game, the Braves might do some head-scratching before moving the franchise."

From Columbus, Ohio, minor league President George Trautman commented: "I have heard absolutely nothing about such a move.

Upsets Set The Pace in City Tennis

A mild sprinkling of upsets replaced the rain forecast for Bitsy Grant Tennis Center Tuesday afternoon.

All told, four seeded players were ousted from the Atlanta City Junior Championships by unranked opponents. To wit:

Fifteen-year-old Speed Howell, who beat third-seeded Billy McNeill, 6-3, 6-1, in boys 18-and-under competition. Howell also advanced to the semifinals of 15-and-under singles by stopping Alex Gaines, 6-2, 6-0.

Speed's eight-year-old brother, Richard, bowed to John Taylor in the 13-and-under bracket. Taylor rallied from a 0-6 first set loss to trim his third-seeded foe, 7-5, 6-1.

ON A BICYCLE OR ON A COURT, BIRCHMORES COVER GROUND

By MICKEY LOGUE

It stands to reason that a girl whose father once traveled around the world on a bicycle can cover a lot of ground on a tennis court.

Heredity or environment should see to that—even if the rules make her pass up pop's old method of transportation for her own two feet.

Becky Birchmore, a pretty, petite Athens 15-year-old, didn't take up tennis until two years ago. She was 13, practically ancient compared with many of the tykes who toddle to the courts these days.

But it must have been inevitable that Becky should become interested in tennis. For one thing, she's interested in most everything else; for another, the adventurous spirit given her by father and mother would hardly ignore such a challenge.

After Fred A. Birchmore, put his daughter on the road to tennis success, she advanced rapidly. Becky's tennis particularly blossomed this past season under professional supervision. Then, too, she and fellow Athenian Barbara DuPree have been helped by playing against Georgia's freshman team.

This year she and Atlantan Pat Meyer teamed to win the Mississippi 18-and-under championship. En route to the title, they beat Sylvia Bradley and Roberta Allison, top-ranked Southern 15-and-under tandem.

Tuesday Becky upset "teammate" Pat, third-seeded in the City Junior 18-and-under bracket. Though the competition looks too rugged in that division for her to win, late-comer Becky is definitely a bright star on the Southern tennis horizon.

Her incentive was whetted this year by a challenge from Papa Fred. Becky has wanted a horse for some time, so, her father said, "When you win the Southern girls' championship or beat me two sets, I'll get you the horse."

"She beat me this summer, so, I've got to get her the horse," Birchmore chuckled Tuesday night.

He was handicapped by an arm injury at the time, but says Becky deserved to win. Quite an accomplishment, beating the Athens senior champ.

There are three other little Birchmores coming along, and one, sister Linda, already has made Fred put in writing a similar horse deal, for say . . . 1963.

Birchmore was an exchange student in Germany during the mid-thirties. While waiting for school to start, he made a tour of England and Europe on a bicycle. Eventually he wound up in Egypt.

There he was robbed of his billfold and passport. He waited six weeks for a new passport and by then school was under way, so, he continued his bicycle jurney through Palestine, Persia, Afghanistan, India, etc. He followed Alexander the Great's route.

Birchmore later traveled the length and breadth of Canada and the United States.

"In 1939, somebody gave him a bicycle built for two, so, he got married," said Mrs. Birchmore, another adventurer and charming conversationalist.

They explored Central America, Cuba, and Jamaica on their honeymoon.

They'd like some day to take their girls and boys on a bicycle tour of Europe.

Birchmore, who recently saw the movie "Around the World in 80 Days," said he recognized much of the country he had seen before, but realized he had chosen the wrong method of transportation. "I should have had a balloon or elephant," he said.

Birchmore is a former Southeastern Conference boxing champion; wrote a book, "Around the World on a Bicycle."

His daughter Becky is following in his championship path. She's also an accomplished follower of the arts. Her music teacher says she has real piano ability—just needs a little more time off from tennis to practice.

'No-Hit' Bell Takes Aim At Big Bad Vols Tonight

outfit with a near .300 average.

The glittering star cast, tailor-made for the inviting right-field Dell fence, will have six left-handed hitters swinging against Vol ace Bob Kelly.

Kelly, a unanimous choice for the Star squad, vacated his berth along with manager Dick Sisler and Stan Palys when the Vols nailed down the host role. The lean right-hander, with the crackling curve, owns a 16-6 record, despite reversals in his last three outings.

The Atlanta Crackers, who have been threatening to have Nashville in second place when the curtain goes up on the classic, will have two representatives answering the opening bell. Shortstop Joe Morgan is Ermer's choice for the lead-off slot, and power-hitting catcher Sammy Taylor has been dropped to the No. 8 spot in the order. Other southpaw swingers among star starters are Stan Robseboro and Vern Morgan (Chattanooga), Bob Coats (Memphis) and Jim McManus (Birmingham). Eric Rodin (Little Rock), Herm Killebrew (Chattanooga) and Griggs are the three right-handed hitters.

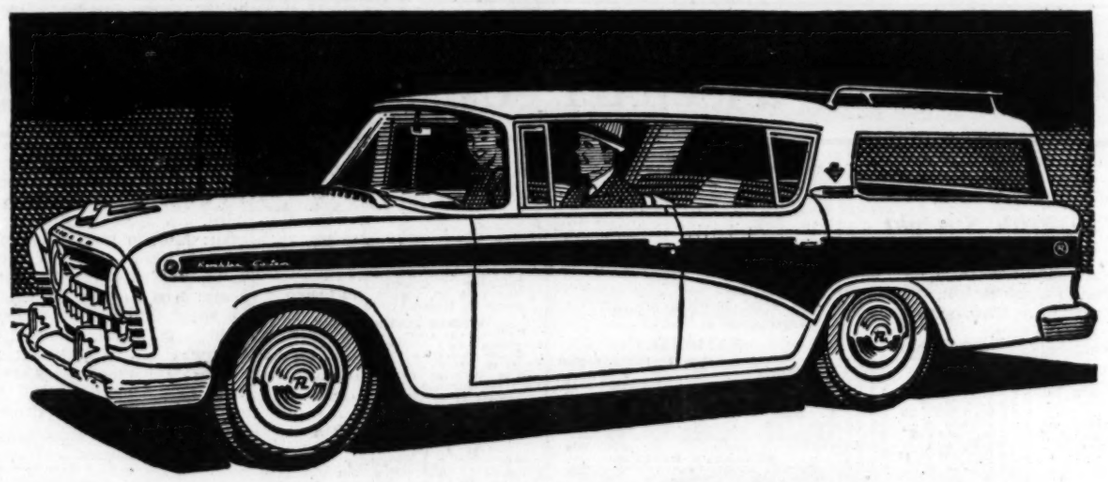

Vol boss Dick Sisler is hoping that his club fares better against Ermer's All-Stars than it has against Ermer's Lookouts. For, after clinching the mid-summer attraction for the Dell, the Vols had bowed to the Lookouts four in a row, the last loss rolling the Vols for first as Atlanta won, 4-3, and got the loop lead tonight. Fans looking in on that game were getting something of an All-Star preview, for Ermer has four of his Lookouts ready for the first pitch Wednesday.

Sisler will go along with his regular crew. He'll be at first base, with Larry Taylor, Tommy Brown and flashy Phil Shartzer rounding out the infield. Palys, the league's leading sticker with a .391 average, Ex-Cracker Stan Hollmig and George Schmees will patrol the outfield, and Dutch Dotterer will handle the catching.

Ermer has a star-studded pitching staff to toss at the hard-hitting Vols, who will be attempting to improve the host team's 10-8 bulge. In the last four years, however, the Stars have walked away a winner on three occasions. Birmingham was mauled, 10-0, and 10-5 in the last two encounters, with big Jim Lemon clouting a record four homers in the 1955 classic..

Radio Soap Operas Are Fading Off Air

By PAUL JONES

The soap opera—born and bred in the depression years—is on its way out on radio. The final demise of the soapers which have peddled the highly emotional stories of domestic strife for almost 30 years may not come for a couple of years. But, the beginning of the end is in sight.

ABC-Radio is dropping three of its soapers—My True Story, When a Girl Marries and Whispering Streets. Unfortunately, one of these daytime dramas has been snapped up by NBC-Radio in a multi-million-dollar deal. The show going to NBC-Radio is My True Story, which was a mainstay on ABC for 15 years.

Jones

Personally, the passing of these daytime drama shows won't affect our lives at all. Hardly had they ever arrested our attention except when, through curiosity, we tuned in to a portion of the story. The suffering of the heroine—or the hero as was the case sometimes — often was unbearable and we had to switch to another station.

But the passing of the soapers will bring a change in the lives of thousands of radio listeners who tuned these shows in as religiously as they ate breakfast.

There were, at one time, millions of women who suffered through all of these soap operas each day—five days a week. We have known women who refused to leave the radio to answer the telephone or the doorbell during one of the soap operas.

THE DAYTIME DRAMAS became known as "soap operas," "soapers" or sudsers" during the 30s. They were thus named because almost all of the plays, which ran for 15 minutes, were sponsored by a soap manufacturer. Lever Bros. was one of the principal backers. Often one drama was followed by another, each selling a different bar of soap, which was being manufacturer by the same firm.

All shows had something else in common—they all dealt in corny emotional themes. The dramas had either a mother-in-law problem, a teen-age daughter who wanted to run off with a man twice her age, a handsome doctor who was making advances to a pretty patient or a nosey neighbor who was about to wreck a happy home by idle gossiping.

In all dramas there was suffering. Without suffering and tears there was no show. All of the soapers had their own weird theme music, generally played on a small pipe organ, and throughout the play music was used to heighten the suspense or emotional punch.

There was another peculiarity about the plays. Almost all of the actors spoke in a whiney voice. There were overtones of despair in everyone's dialogue. Even the happy lines were spoken with a vocal frown.

TELEVISION TRIED to get the soap opera fad started. We still have some of the 15 minute emotional dramas on TV. But, they, too, are being replaced by the old movies and other forms of entertainment.

Commando Kelly

Prosperity must have helped to bring an end to this era. The soapers did thrive during the lean years of the 30s and their popularity did begin to wane when greenbacks became more plentiful in recent years.

Come to think of it, how have the Lever boys been getting rid of all that soap here lately?

* * *

MRS. SUSIE PURCELL of Atlanta writes: "I see where Mr. W. F. A. does not like some of the acts on TV. Who does? I I fully agree with him that commercials should be changed more often. However, if he will get the newspaper and read during the commercials I think he would find it more entertaining and more relaxing. Try this Mr. W. F. A."

SGT. CHARLIE WELCH, of Dobbins Air Force Base, says: "Mike Wallace's guest, Commando Kelly, who quoted on the front page."

Bar Association Delegates Down 15,570 Cocktails

NEW YORK, July 16 (UP) — The American Bar Association reported that delegates to its annual three-day convention downed 15,570 cocktails at the opening reception.

"As the afternoon wore on," the association's daily convention bulletin said, "it became increasingly more difficult for observers to distinguish among faces." It did not know how many of the 3,800 lawyers and the 2,000 wives with them "participated" in the drinking.

'Smugness' On Inflation Curb Feared

WASHINGTON, July 16 (AP)—An economics professor today cautioned against any "smugness" concerning the effectiveness of inflation controls.

John R. Moore, associate professor of economics at the University of Tennessee and visiting associate professor at Cornell University, gave his warning to a Senate committee studying the question of industry administered prices.

He said he would "hesitate to argue that we have sufficient knowledge about our economy to continuously maintain high level stability.

"The setbacks experienced by monetary policy in the last few years," he continued, "should put us on our guard against smugness concerning our mechanisms of control."

He told the monopoly subcommittee headed by Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn) that "further investigation certainly" is necessary.

This, he said, should include a study of the "differential behavior of costs as well as prices under competitive conditions and conditions of concentration.

"The effect of labor organization on wages is certainly worth investigation," he continued. "Merger activity should also be studied," he told the committee.

Over-Counter Firms May Report to SEC

WASHINGTON, July 16 (AP). The Senate Finance Committee today approved 12-3 a bill which would require many larger companies whose securities are traded "over the counter" to file periodic financial reports with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Filing requirements now apply to corporations whose securities are listed on a national stock exchange would be extended to companies with stock not listed on a national exchange but having at least 10 million dollars in assets and 1,000 shareholders.

The committee estimated about 600 companies would be affected by the bill, which was introduced by Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark). Sens. Capehart (R-Ind), Bricker (R-Ohio) and Payne (R-Maine) voted against reporting the bill.

Advances Claimed in Fight Against Use of Gas Stamps

2/3 Success in Month-Old Campaign Petroleum Retailers Group Reports

By BOB WILLIMON

A month-old campaign to stamp out the use of premium stamps in dealer-operated service stations here already is nearly two-thirds successful, the Georgia Assn. of Petroleum Retailers claimed Tuesday.

The trade group's figures show that agreements to stop the practice have come from 47 of the 75 major-brand dealers who were offering the stamps when the "independence" drive started.

It admitted that another nine operators also had agreed to discontinue stamps, then changed their minds, but said that the remaining 465 dealer-operated name-brand stations here don't use stamps.

Local trading stamp officials recently expressed doubt that the current move to discontinue stamps had become widespread. One said most of his accounts regard the stamps as a valuable asset and added he believed they would continue handling them.

But GAPR field director Keller Melton said the campaign would be stepped up Wednesday with a "progress" meeting to allow dealers to "register protests and opinions."

Meanwhile, the GAPR has mailed out 500 posters to advise patrons that service stations displaying the cards cannot afford to give trading stamps on premiums because profits have not kept pace with operating costs.

The "only alternative" if the practice is continued, say the posters, would be to increase prices or decrease the quality of service.

GAPR, whose 500 Atlanta Chapter members represent "about 90 per cent of the some 600 complete (with service bay) service stations in the area," is assisting in the campaign at the request of the participants, Melton said. The state GAPR organization, an affiliate of the National Congress of Petroleum Retailers, claims 3,590 Georgia members who pay from $10-to-$25 a year in dues, depending on gallonage sales.

The current campaign is aimed at "getting dealers out from under the additional cost of doing business entailed by the stamps," Melton said. He estimated that this cost amounts to from "2-to-3 per cent of the gross" and is not offset by higher prices.

Wednesday's meeting will be the third for the campaigners. The last meeting was held in the form of a "rally" at Sandy Springs on July 2 after Atlanta, Marietta, Decatur and DeKalb County denied permission for the group to hold an "independence from stamps" parade.

Southern Bids For Expanded Air Service

Southern Airways has applied to the Civil Aeronautics Board for expanding its regularly scheduled airline service to new cities in Georgia and Tennessee.

The company, in petitions filed Monday, seeking to start service between Atlanta and Jacksonville, Fla., via Augusta, Savannah and Brunswick. A second route is sought between Atlanta and Jacksonville with stops at Albany and Waycross.

Under the application Southern would operate non-stop service between Atlanta and Albany, both presently on Southern's routes, and fly one-stop service between Albany and Jacksonville. It requested suspension of trunk-line service at Waycross (EAL) and Brunswick (EAL and Delta).

In the Tennessee application, the company seeks to begin service between Memphis and Knoxville, via Jackson, Nashville, Tullahoma and Chattanooga. A second Tennessee route is sought between Memphis and Knoxville with intermediate service to Muscle Shoals, Huntsville and Chattanooga. An additional route between Chattanooga and Atlanta, via Rome, is included in the application, which asks suspension of trunk airline service (EAL) at Rome.

List Rises Again, But Backs Away

Record Earnings of DuPont, General Electric Aid Spurt

NEW YORK, July 16 (AP)—For the second straight session the stock market today backed away from an early advance which promised to carry it even further into new high ground for the year.

After today's initial spurt faded, the market spent most of the day in an irregular state with some selected issues quite strong. But prices weakened in a late sell-off, putting the market moderately but definitely on the downside.

After a day of consolidation of Friday's new 1957 high it looked as if the market would step ahead handsomely at the start today.

GOOD NEWS

There was plenty of good news to fuel the rise. A couple of industrial giants, Du Pont and General Electric, had announced record half-yearly earnings. Jones & Laughlin, one of the top-ranking steelmakers, was able to report a rise in net income despite a lower operating rate. Later in the day International Business Machines also disclosed record earnings. Meanwhile, industrial production for June was reported staying at a high level.

In the early transactions, Du Pont, General Electric and General Motors touched new highs for the year. General Tire reached an all-time peak. By the close, however, all of these stocks were on the downside except General Tire which held a point of its best gain, which was 3½.

AMERICAN EXCHANGE

Prices were mixed on the American Stock Exchange. Volume totaled 1,000,000 shares compared with 1,110,000 yesterday. Among gainers were Mesabi Iron, Pacific Petroleum and Woodley Petroleum. Losers included New Jersey Zinc, British Petroleum and Molybdenum.

Corporate bonds declined in routine trading.

Sugar Futures

NEW YORK, July 16 (AP)—World sugar futures were lower today. The sharpest losses were recorded in nearby September and October. Brazil was reported offering raws as low as 5.40 cents a pound f.o.b. Do you have a loss in some stock?

Nearly every week, we get letters from investors who ask if they should sell some particular stock at a loss — or hang on in hopes that the price will come back to about what they paid for it.

Sometimes we tell these people to keep their stock.

Sometimes we tell them to sell it.

Why?

Because every such question is a case unto itself . . .

Because, basically, each one boils down to a brand new problem of investing.

But given a man's objectives, given the sum he could realize from the sale, the problem becomes one of comparing the prospects for the stock he owns with the outlook for all other stocks suitable to his investment objective.

A fair-sized job, true.

It involves ready access to any number of facts about sales and earnings, about policies, products, and plans . . .

Relative comparison of performance, both past and present . . .

Careful consideration of company managements, industry prospects, business in general, the world situation as a whole.

The average investor just doesn't have that much information available, not on hundreds of different stocks anyway.

But we have a Research Department — one of the biggest and best in the business — that does have that kind of data at hand, and if you'd like their opinion about selling (or buying) any security, it's yours for the asking.

And while you're about it, you might like to have a current review of your complete portfolio, a detailed analysis based on your own particular objectives.

We will be happy to furnish that, too, if you'll just write—

Cotton High At the Close

NEW YORK, July 16 (AP)—Cotton futures turned higher as the market's reaction on Monday generated sufficient professional short covering and new buying today to give prices a boost. Final prices were 60 cents to $1.15 a bale higher, with new highs for the day made as trading ended.

Sentiment on prospects for new cotton legislation this year, aimed at lower price supports on the 1958 crop, continued mixed. Some traders, however, maintained their conviction that such chances are not good and their buying of futures helped to sustain the market.

Expectations that the final loan will be boosted on cotton over the interim support price was a strengthening factor in 1957 crop futures today.

Oats Decline, Corn Eases

CHICAGO, July 16 (AP) — Additional gains were scored by nearby wheat and soybean futures on the Board of Trade today but distant new crop deliveries were weak.

Corn was a shade easy and oats dropped on selling inspired largely by a bearish crop report. The nearby rye contract moved upward with wheat.

Good cash demand was the main buying influence in wheat futures. No. 2 red wheat brought around 1¾ over the July contract and No. 2 hard wheat around 3 cents above July.

Both soybeans and corn have been making excellent progress in the main belt and continued good weather could see a production increase, the Quaker Oats Co. crop summary said.

Coffee Futures

NEW YORK, July 16 (AP)—Coffee "M" futures were lower today on local and trade selling. The lack of aggressive roaster demand for green coffee, the current seasonal decline in coffeee consumption and the favorable crop prospect in Brazil had a depressing effect on traders. Coffee "B" futures were irregular.

Spot Santos No. 4 ex-dock closed at 55.75a. Cost and freight offering include Santos bourbons 3s at 50.50-52.50n and 5s 49.50-51.50n.

"B" futures closed 30 lower to 55 higher. Sales 43 contracts.

Dry Goods

NEW YORK, July 16 (AP)—Print cloth sales in spot position accounted for most of the action in the cotton textile market Tuesday. Converters appeared reluctant to bid for forward goods at this time. The popular 80-square print cloth construction sold at 17¾ cents a yard for average makes.

Interest in lighter weight blends of wool with synthetics was the highlight in the wool goods situation where buyers are now making the rounds on offerings of spring 1958 lines.

Small selling of filament goods for nearly fourth quarter was reported in the synthetic market. Fourth quarter selling of nylon was also noted in a limited way.
